ICKES ACCUSED OF LYING FOR TAX CUT HERE

$4,265 Yearly Saved
by 'Honest Harold.'

Assessor John S. Clark yesterday charged that Secretary of the Interior "Honest Harold" Ickes had obtained a 22 per cent reduction of 1943-44 taxes thru a false sworn statement concerning a building which he owns at 213-33 S. State st.

The Ickes statement resulted in a reduction of the valuation of the Ickes property and served to cut down the taxes of the secretary $4,265. Assessor Clark sought to rectify the reduction by ordering the old and higher valuation restored for the 1945 tax year, on which the tax will be paid next year. A public hearing will be held, under the law, to affirm or reverse Clark's action, which will affect the 1945, but not the 1943-44 taxes.

Winnetka Tax Also Out.

It was also discovered that, when Ickes obtained the tax slash on his State st. property, he also obtained a tax cut of more than $900 on his spacious Winnetka home, which he has not occupied since he went to Washington 12 years ago as one of the first and most stalwart New Dealers in President Roosevelt's administration.

Official interest focused on the State st. tax hearing, which took place last summer before the board of tax appeals. Ickes filed a sworn statement asking for the tax reduction and later appeared personally. In the sworn statement, signed and notarized in Washington, D. C., Secretary Ickes described his State st. property as three stories high, whereas it is five stories high, and gave the annual rental income as $24,000, whereas, Assessor Clark charged, the rental is in excess of $61,000. The appeals board accepted Ickes' presentation as true.

"The land value of Ickes' building was $11,500 a front foot, which is the uniform value in that area," said Assessor Clark. "The reduction scaled it down to $9,000. That would throw all State st. assessments out of balance."

"Tax delinquencies by neighboring property owners might result, Ickes' statement was contrary to the facts. The board of appeals undoubtedly was misled by his sworn statement."

Sworn Statement Filed.

"Honest Harold" inherited the State st. property from his first wife, Mrs. Anna Wijnarth Ickes, killed in a motor accident in 1935. For 1935, 1936, 1937, 1938, 1939, and 1942 Ickes tried thru agents—lawyers and tax experts—to get a tax cut. All failed. Finally Ickes himself came to Chicago—and won.

In June, 1944, he filed his sworn statement. He listed rental at $2,000 per month, and the height of the building at three stories. He contended that the maximum land value should be $400,000. The assessor's valuation was $504,160.

On Aug. 7, 1944, Ickes appeared before the tax appeals board, accompanied by Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, a former collector of internal revenue, now Republican member of the election board, who had failed to get a tax cut for him for 1942.

Benefit Gained for Two Years.

Last Dec. 8 the board, accepting Ickes' sworn statement, slashed his land valuation from $504,160 to $394,560, a gross cut of $109,600, which made his taxes $15,397 instead of the previous $19,662—a reduction of $4,265.

Secretary Ickes received an amended and lower tax bill for 1943. Because the new valuation was recorded in the assessor's office, the same lower valuation also was applied to the 1944 tax bills. These went out April 1, and cannot now be changed.

Tax experts said recovery of the tax differential is impossible, but prosecution on the basis of the sworn complaint by Ickes is possible.

Naming Elliott to Be General Brews a Fight

Ships Horses by Rail

Fort Worth, Tex., Jan. 25 (AP).—Col. Elliott Roosevelt's Dutch Branch ranch herd of Arabian horses today was en route to his wife, actress Faye Emerson, in California. The horses, a stallion, four brood mares, and three colts, were shipped from here by rail freight Tuesday.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—A sharp senate engagement was anticipated today over the belated third wedding present President Roosevelt gave to his 34 year old son, Col. Elliott Roosevelt, by nominating him to be a brigadier general.

Confirmation of this nomination by the senate would give the President's second son the most meteoric rise in the army for a man without previous military experience and without a college education. He entered the army four years ago as a captain.

It would also give the Hyde Park line of the Roosevelt family its first general and put Elliott well ahead of his three tall brothers in the race for military honors which has brought the four brothers 12 promotions in three and a half years of war.

Until the present war none of the Hyde Park Roosevelts had ever served in the American army. In the Revolution the family members were Tories. Neither the President, his father, his grandfather, nor great-grandfather had borne arms in war.

Record of Other Branch.

The Oyster Bay branch of the family, whose greatest representative was President Theodore Roosevelt, gave many fighters to the country. Theodore himself was a colonel in the Spanish-American war, commanding the Rough Rider regiment.

At the outbreak of the World war he offered to raise a division and his four sons all went into the service. One, Quentin, met death in the air. Two of the surviving sons, Kermit and Theodore Jr., died in active service in the present war, the former in Alaska and the latter in France after he had led his men across the beaches on D-day. Theodore Jr. became a brigadier general only after long and valorous service in two wars.

The nomination of Elliott was one of 103 which the President sent to the senate advancing officers to general rank—78 brigadier generals, 22 major generals and three lieutenant generals.

The nominations, including Elliott's, go to the senate military affairs committee, which now has a subcommittee investigating air travel priorities as an outgrowth of his shipment of Blatz, bull mastiff, from London. This incident, along with Elliott's rapid rise, was expected to provoke a senate battle on confirmation.

Flown Across Atlantic.

Elliott sent the dog across the Atlantic on an army plane. The animal was sent on an "A" priority from Washington to Hollywood to Elliott's movie actress bride, Faye Emerson. Three servicemen were put off the plane at Memphis, Tenn., but the dog was allowed to remain on. The dog was driven some 55 miles in an army vehicle and delivered to Elliott's third wife by an army major after its arrival at a west coast army air field.

Elliott was commissioned a captain in the army specialist reserves as a present on his 30th birthday, Sept. 23, 1940. He was assigned to a desk in the air corps procurement division buying airplane parts, a field in which he had no previous experience.

This appointment, which came as the draft was getting under way, became an issue of the third term campaign. As a result of national furor over the desk appointment, Elliott turned in his resignation.

Refused by General.

It was refused by Brig. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, then commanding Wright field. Echols, who has been in the army since 1916 and won the distinguished service medal and the Purple Heart for action in four of the major American battles of the World war, now is chief of staff

No Bunk! 108 Spend Night in Farm House

Churchville, N. Y., Jan. 25 (AP).—A farmer's wife who bunked 108 storm stranded motorists in her nine room house last night said today, "What an experience! I wouldn't want to do it every night."

Mrs. James W. Ehrmentraut, 26, was thrust into her hostess role when wind plied snowdrifts on a nearby icy road. Motorist after motorist became stalled and knocked on the Ehrmentraut door for aid.

Eight Below Zero.

"We couldn't turn the people away in that 8 below zero cold," she said.

When automobiles, three abreast, lined the road for half a mile, Mrs. Ehrmentraut thanked Providence that a grocery truck and a brewery truck were among the stalled vehicles. Three cases of soup and one of coffee were among the commodities consumed during the night. A case of cornflakes disappeared at breakfast.

Pump Girl Breaks Bed.

The guests, from 17 to 75, included persons from Ohio, Georgia, and Washington, D. C. Among them were Bergen, N. Y., high school seniors on their way to New York. The 108 slept in the farm's three bedrooms—on chairs, but "mostly on the floor."

"One pump girl was very embarrassed when she broke the bed," Mrs. Ehrmentraut recalled.

Farmer Ehrmentraut managed to dig out his tractor this morning. Late today he had extricated all but two truck drivers of the overnight guests. They planned to leave early tomorrow morning.

12,000 A. W. O. L., ARMY CRACKS DOWN ON 4 MORE

PARIS, Jan. 25 (AP)—Brig. Gen. P. B. Rogers, commanding general of the Seine section, said tonight that the United States army's campaign against black market diversion of supplies en route to the front was a determined effort to wipe out a serious menace to the conduct of the war.

More than 12,000 men are absent without leave from their units, it was disclosed. Some have engaged in black market operations, but the majority likely are simple cases of brief absence. When caught they are returned to their units and dealt with there.

Four more American enlisted men, convicted on charges of black market operations, were sentenced to prison today by a court martial. Pvt. Virgil E. Clutta, Murphysboro, Ill., who pleaded innocent, was sentenced to 15 years.

GAINS 5 MILES AFTER CAPTURE OF LUZON BASE

Japanese Also Lose Fort Stotsenburg.

M'ARTHUR'S HDQ., Jan. 26 (Friday)—Clark field, whose 13 air strips constitute one of the richest prizes in the Pacific war, was captured Thursday by southward driving Americans along with adjacent Fort Stotsenburg. Other columns pushed even deeper to within 40 air line miles of Manila.

This climax of a campaign, which has yet to run into any concentrated Japanese opposition during a push of more than 70 miles from Lingayen gulf, avenged one of America's major setbacks of the Pacific war.

Recall Jap Success.

Japanese dive bombers wiped out Gen. MacArthur's main air strength in the Philippines at Clark field in early December, 1941, thus speeding Japanese conquest of the archipelago. The airdrome's recapture now gives the Americans a land air base to help blast open landing beaches on the coast of China.

Maj. Gen. Oscar W. Griswold's 14th army corps of the 6th army captured Clark field. It advanced so fast that the Japanese were unable to mass defenses in ridge areas where they had labored for months.

Moving for quick use of the air base, Griswold sent patrols into the nearby hills from which Japanese could impair the field's usability.

Find Many Land Mines.

The Americans, who seized Clark field early yesterday morning, found few Japanese, but many land mines and booby traps.

Most of what was once a strong Japanese garrison of several thousand troops had fallen back into the hills east of the field, where they were being pounded by American artillery.

Five miles south of Clark field advance units reached the highway junction of Angeles. Other troops penetrated to Magalang, another road hub 10 miles east of the airdrome.

This meant the Americans were on parallel highways which converge 15 miles to the south at the city of San Fernando, top of a natural funnel between swamplands on the route to Manila.

Heavy Battle for Rosario.

Altho the 6th army was scoring its greatest gains in its drive toward Manila, it still was doing its heaviest fighting north and east of Lingayen, where the Japanese were contesting every inch of ground against Maj. Gen. Innis F. Swift's 1st corps.

While the 43d division and the

RUSSIA SEEKING AMERICAN LOAN OF SIX BILLIONS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (Special).—Soviet Russia has asked the United States for credits amounting to 6 billion dollars to help reconstruct that country after the war, it was learned today.

It is understood Marshal Stalin has asked for these credits on a long term basis and at a low rate of interest and has indicated he wishes to purchase in this country a great deal of heavy industrial equipment.

He has already placed orders with the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company and General Electric for power plant equipment to replace the famous Dnieprostroi dam.

The request, larger than any other ever made to the United States by a foreign government, was proposed first to United States Ambassador Harriman in Moscow.

Discussed for Some Time.

The request has been under discussion here among officials of the treasury and state departments and the foreign economic administration for some time.

No commitment has been made by the United States to the soviet union as a result of their request. No commitment for so large a sum can, in fact, be taken by the executive branch of the government without special legislation by the congress.

Moreover, the view has been expressed by some members of the administration that the present time is not propitious for discussing a post-war deal of this magnitude and it is said to be unlikely that it will be acted upon for some time.

At first, soviet officials were said to have suggested a figure beyond the 6 billion dollar mark, and these proposals are understood to have been considered sympathetically at the treasury.

Limits It to 6 Billions.

But after further discussions with Russian officials, the latter evidently decided to limit their specific request to 6 billions.

No answer can be given by the United States to Russia at the present time for two reasons: The Export-Import bank is limited to loans totaling $700,000,000, a considerable portion of which is already obligated, and again, under the terms of the legislation establishing the Export-Import bank, it is not permissible to lend money to any government which was in default of former payments in April, 1934.

There are differences within the federal government itself as to whether the soviet government was in default at that time, some officials arguing that the soviet government was obligated to assume the debts acquired in this country by the Kerensky government and others maintaining that, under law, they were not.

Russia Owes $448,152,568.

During the first World war the Russian government borrowed from this country $187,729,750, and after the armistice they also received an additional $4,871,547 worth of war and relief supplies, making a total of $192,601,297. The Russians have paid $8,750,311 against the interest on these obligations, but as of Jan. 1, 1945, the Russian debt carried on the treasury's books amounted to $448,152,568, of which $250,551,271 is accrued interest.

President Roosevelt is aware of the soviet government's requests and can be expected to discuss them, among other things, in the forthcoming meetings with Marshal Stalin.

SLICE GERMAN'S LAST E. PRUSSIA ESCAPE ROUTE

Shells Breslau.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (Friday)—(AP).—The Red army cut the trunk railway escape route out of half-conquered East Prussia yesterday, sealing off perhaps 200,000 German troops. Berlin announced that other soviet units had pierced the upper Oder river defense line on a 125 mile front on both sides of besieged Breslau, Silesian capital.

Moscow dispatches said soviet artillery already was shelling Breslau, the reich's ninth city.

The German news agency DNB said the Russian invaders of East Prussia, totaling more than 2,325,000 men, had driven a wedge to the Baltic coast at Elbing in one of the greatest encirclement operations in history.

While Moscow did not officially confirm this report, the soviet war bulletin did announce the capture of Briensdorf, nine miles east of Elbing, and Baumgarten, 12 miles to the south. In taking Briensdorf the Russians cut the last Berlin-Koenigsberg trunk railway.

Seize 700 Towns.

Units of two soviet armies seized a total of 700 towns and villages in East Prussia as they closed in on Koenigsberg, capital of the province. Starkenberg, 17 miles southeast of Koenigsberg, was seized by the Russians, as were Gross Scharlach, 20 miles northeast, and Goldbach, 21 miles east. Berlin acknowledged that the "first line" of defenses guarding Koenigsberg had been breached and stressed the numerical superiority of the attacking soviet.

Soviet front dispatches said thousands of Russian, French, and Polish civilians, impressed into fortification work by the Germans, had been liberated, and that whole trainloads of tanks, munitions, and other military supplies had been captured intact.

Drive Nearer Poznan.

In southeastern East Prussia other soviet units seized the strongholds of Arys, 16 miles west of Lyck, and Johannalburg, 25 miles southwest of Lyck.

Capturing more than 1,500 towns and villages on the 14th day of their gigantic push toward the heart of Germany, the Russians drove to within five miles east of Poznan, western Polish stronghold and "gateway to Berlin," with the capture of Swarzedz. A town 10 miles north of Poznan also fell as the Russians surged up to the Warta river and prepared to cross that barrier in a flanking movement on Poznan.

At Swarzedz, the Russians were 142 miles east of Berlin, the closest advanced point on the road to the reich capital. The soviet newspaper Red Star, however, said some units were about 125 miles from the Nazi capital, presumably to the southwest.

Push on Pomerania.

Pushing westward across the base of the Polish corridor north of Poznan the Russians in a 10 mile advance seized Koenigs, 22 miles from the German Pomeranian frontier.

of the Sudeten mountains, the Russians rapidly were encircling the entire corner of the rich Silesian basin with its huge coal, zinc, and iron mines and factories.

Seize Road Hub.
In another order of the day Stalin announced capture of Oels, a nine way road hub 14 miles northeast of besieged Breslau, and also Ostrow, German fortress in Poland 35 miles northeast of Oels.

The crossing of the Oder at Steinau, 31 miles northwest of Breslau, put the Russians within 118 miles east of Dresden and 123 miles northeast of Prague, Czechoslovak capital, which Moscow radio said was under a German "state of siege" and the scene of rioting.

Berlin said the combined forces of the 3d and 2d White Russian armies, under Gen. Chernikovsky and Marshal Rokossovsky, which are steadily overrunning East Prussia, totaled more than 2,325,000 men, including 155 infantry divisions and eight tank corps.

The Russians not only reached the Baltic in the Elbing area, Berlin said, but also were trying to break thru farther west and widen the isolated German forces.

Pierce fighting was reported at Bydgoszcz (Bromberg) and Torun (Thorn), at the southern entrance to the Polish corridor, at Grudziadz, 57 miles south of Danzig, and also around the East Prussian stronghold of Marienburg, 25 miles southwest of Danzig.

Berlin also told of heavy fighting southeast of Liepaja in Latvia, where the remnants of 30 German divisions have been sealed off since last summer, and west and south-west of Budapest.

GERMAN WAR BULLETIN.
The German Thursday war bulletin, as broadcast by Berlin said:

"In Hungary our assault formations broke thru strong enemy anti-tank barriers between Lake Velence and the Danube river.

"South of the Vistula (river) and on the fringes of the Upper Silesian industrial district strong Soviet attacks supported by battle planes were repulsed and halted. Between Gliwicz and Brieg the enemy is attempting to cross the Oder. He succeeded in taking Oppeln after heavy fighting.

"From the southeast enemy offensive spearheads pushed nearer to Breslau.

"Posen (Poznan) and Torun (Thorn) were held against strong Soviet attacks. Furious street fighting is raging in Bydgoszcz (Bromberg).

"In east Prussia the enemy attempts to penetrate in the direction of Elbing to both flanks.

"To the east our defense front was taken back to the district of the Masurian lakes between Orlensburg and Letzen and Anyzsch and was consolidated. Between Allenstein and Kurisches Haff repeated enemy break-thru attempts were frustrated.

"On the Latvian front the enemy, after bringing up fresh forces, continued his strong attacks supported by tanks with the focal point again southeast of Liepaja. The attacks were for the most part ward off."

REDS CHOP NAZI OUTPUT OF COAL ANOTHER 15 PCT.

New York, Jan. 25 (AP).—Russia's rapid eastern advance has chopped off or imperiled another 15 per cent of Germany's vitally needed coal, leaving her only about one-third of the output she boasted in the heyday of her conquest.

Coal experts here said today the Russian strides threaten most of Germany's great war industries.

"The Germans soon will have to fold up after this," said Jay G. Coutant, fuel engineer. "She may be able to go on a few months but she'll be living on her coal and armament stock piles."

Figures provided by Coutant and by officials of the bituminous coal institute and estimates of the effect of allied air raids show production within the reich has been reduced to a rate of about 200 million tons a year compared with 400 million tons just before the war. At the height of her power Germany mined almost as much coal as the United States does now—roughly 700,000,000 tons.

Red Envoy Leaves U. S. for Parley in Moscow

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP).—The Soviet embassy disclosed today that Russian Ambassador Andrei Gromyko has gone to Moscow for consultations. London reported earlier that Fedor Gusev, Soviet ambassador to Britain, has returned to the Russian capital, presumably in connection with plans for the forthcoming "big three" meeting.

CHINA TAKE TOWN 35 MILES FROM DANZIG

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 25 (AP).—Japanese forces in a three pronged drive to strengthen their corridor bisecting China have taken Yingtak and are being engaged 18 miles south of Kuomintang, provisional capital of Kwangtung province, the Chinese high command announced today.

Japanese troops smashing from the west took Lokchong, 150 miles north of Canton. An enemy force is also striking southward from Lelyang, 35 miles south of Hengyang.

A Chinese central news agency dispatch said more than 80 Japanese ships were sunk off the coast of Chekiang and Fukien during the last two weeks by American planes and submarines.

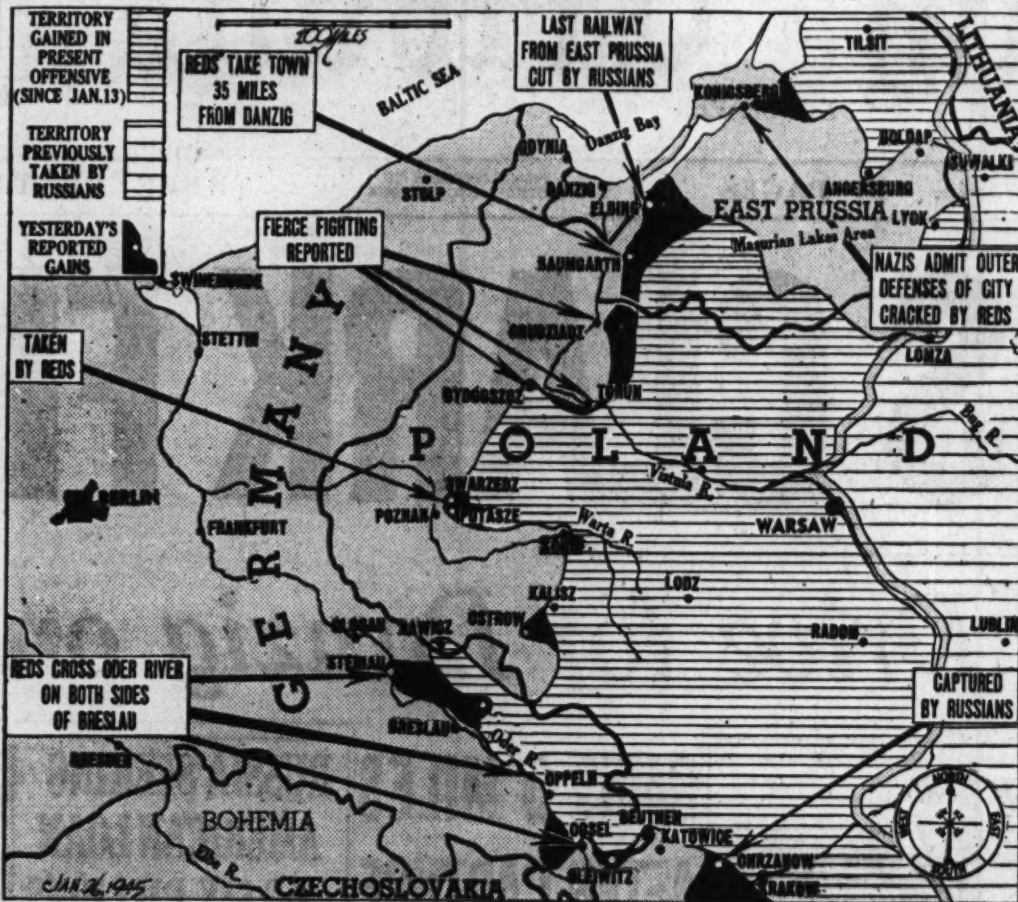

Maj. Gen. Wedemeyer, commander of United States forces in China, announced that he had transferred his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure, to Kunming to head a new combat command. The new organization will direct all American cadres attached to the Chinese.

DE GAULLE ASKS FRENCH RULE OF WHOLE RHINE

Delays Recognition of Lublin Poles.

PARIS, Jan. 25 (AP).—Gen. De Gaulle said today that "France does not intend to finish this war without assurance that the French army will be installed permanently along the length of the Rhine from one end to the other."

The head of the provisional French government said regretfully that France had not been invited to the Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference. He also asserted that the Lublin committee as the provisional government of Poland, at least not immediately.

De Gaulle said French troops must be placed along the Rhine after the war "not only for French security, but for the security of western Europe and even the security of the world."

He told 200 French and foreign correspondents that the history of the last 100 years had shown that this was necessary and asserted France had suffered too much in this war not to claim the guarantee.

Polishing of Whole Basin Urged.
"We envisage control of the entire Rhine basin as an industrial unit," De Gaulle said, adding that this, perhaps, would be an allied control because "we have no reason to exclude the other allied nations."

De Gaulle explained that French garrisoning of the Rhine would not necessarily imply extension of France's frontier to that river. He said the region's political status depended on accords with other nations.

De Gaulle said there had been no formal request to France to attend the Big Three conference, but that France enjoyed good diplomatic relations with the United States, Britain, and the Soviet Union and believed all three governments knew the French attitude.

On the Polish political question De Gaulle said: "France wants Poland herself to choose her government. Up to now have the Polish people had a chance to manifest their intentions and desires? I do not think so. So we shall see."

Recognizes London Poles.
France now recognizes the Polish government in exile in London, but has exchanged delegates with the Lublin provisional regime. The French delegate is charged with protecting the interests of French nationalities in territories under Lublin control.

Predicting the eventual resumption of diplomatic relations with Italy, De Gaulle said France had much esteem for Premier Bonomi. He added that he hoped the Italian government would recognize that the Tunisian convention of 1896 no longer existed because of Italy's declaration of war on France in 1940. [This convention guaranteed the right of Italians in Tunisia to maintain their nationality.]

Declaring it was normal and desirable to extend commercial relations with Spain to aid the French war effort, De Gaulle added that France with other countries objected to the Spanish seizure of the international zone of Tangier and considered this a question that ought to be settled.

U. S. AIR FORCE IN ITALY AIDED REDS—TWINING

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Twining, commander of the 15th air force in Italy, said today his strategic bombers and fighters had given as much support to Russian ground forces on the southern front as to allied troops in Italy.

Beginning last April after the Russians reached Bucharest, he told a news conference, the 15th coordinated its attacks with the Russian drive and made several raids at the specific request of the Russians. Prior to that, he said, the 15th hit the German targets on its own initiative.

"We did the Russians a great service and I'm sure they know it as well as we," he said. Twining, who came to Washington for conferences with air force leaders, said the 15th is not now coordinating its attacks with the current Russian offensive in Poland because the bombers would have to operate too close to the Russian lines.

JAPANESE TAKE RAILWAY TOWN ABOVE CANTON

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 25 (AP).

Japanese forces in a three pronged drive to strengthen their corridor bisecting China have taken Yingtak and are being engaged 18 miles south of Kuomintang, provisional capital of Kwangtung province, the Chinese high command announced today.

Japanese troops smashing from the west took Lokchong, 150 miles north of Canton. An enemy force is also striking southward from Lelyang, 35 miles south of Hengyang.

A Chinese central news agency dispatch said more than 80 Japanese ships were sunk off the coast of Chekiang and Fukien during the last two weeks by American planes and submarines.

Maj. Gen. Wedemeyer, commander of United States forces in China, announced that he had transferred his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure, to Kunming to head a new combat command. The new organization will direct all American cadres attached to the Chinese.

NEW GUINEA VET BRINGS HOME PET FLYING SQUIRREL

Patricia, a striped flying squirrel rescued on a New Guinea battlefield eight months ago by Pvt. Phillip Schottler, 29, of 2124 Cortland st., accompanied him yesterday to the office of County Recorder Edward J. Kalind, where he went to have his discharge papers recorded. The small pet nestled in his garrison cap and looked bored when a photographer flashed a bulb in her face. "It takes a lot to get Patricia excited," said Schottler, "after all she has been thru in the South Pacific."

U. S. AIR FORCE IN ITALY AIDED REDS—TWINING

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Twining, commander of the 15th air force in Italy, said today his strategic bombers and fighters had given as much support to Russian ground forces on the southern front as to allied troops in Italy.

Beginning last April after the Russians reached Bucharest, he told a news conference, the 15th coordinated its attacks with the Russian drive and made several raids at the specific request of the Russians. Prior to that, he said, the 15th hit the German targets on its own initiative.

"We did the Russians a great service and I'm sure they know it as well as we," he said. Twining, who came to Washington for conferences with air force leaders, said the 15th is not now coordinating its attacks with the current Russian offensive in Poland because the bombers would have to operate too close to the Russian lines.

OUUMANSKY, RED ENVOY, IS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Wife, 7 Others Also Die in Mexico City Takeoff.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 25 (AP).—Constantine Oumansky, 42, Soviet ambassador to Mexico, was killed today in the crash of a Mexican air force plane 500 yards from the airport in a take-off.

His wife and seven others, three of them members of Oumansky's staff, also died in the accident. Only two of the 11 aboard survived and both suffered injuries and burns.

The plane took off at 5:30 a. m. from Costa Rica, where Oumansky had been assigned as Russian minister to officiate at the opening of diplomatic relations between the countries.

Plane Fails to Rise.
The craft failed in its attempt to gain altitude and Dr. W. L. Gannett of the American-British hospital, said it caught fire, at least after the crash.

The two survivors, Mrs. Leo Troynitsky, wife of the first secretary who was killed, and a military mechanic, 2d Lt. Salvador Noble Morales, are at the American-British hospital.

Other Russians killed were Military Attache Savin-Lazarev and a clerk, Yuri Vdovin.

Bodies Taken to Embassy.
The bodies of the five Russians were taken to the Soviet embassy to be placed in a temporary chapel. Funeral arrangements have not been announced, but normally in Mexico they are the following day.

Oumansky became ambassador to the United States at 38 and was the youngest envoy in Washington, D. C., from a major power.

He served during the trying period for a Russian diplomat when American public opinion favored Finland during the Russian-Finnish war. This was reversed, however, when Germany invaded Russia in 1941 and Soviet forces, once poorly attended, again attracted many guests.

Oumansky was replaced at Washington by Maxim Litvinov on Nov. 6, 1941, and became ambassador to Mexico in June, 1943.

The ambassador long had been an important figure in the Russian press and had served as director general of the news agency Tass.

CHINESE SMASH JAPS CAUGHT IN U. S. ROAD BLOCK

MYITKYINA, Burma, Jan. 25 (AP).—The American "Mars task force" road block on the Burma road began paying off today as many of some 700 trapped Japanese were being chopped down by rifle and artillery fire in a 30 square mile area between Namkham, Wanting, and Namkhamka.

Elements of four Chinese divisions were overtaking the fleeing Japanese seeking to escape thru the jungle around the road block. In one enemy pocket alone Chinese troops killed more than 90. A Japanese column attempting to sneak around the road block came under the fire of American artillery, which reported "good results."

Southeast Asia command headquarters at Kandy, Ceylon, announced that the enemy was "strongly resisting" Indian troops fighting to enlarge a new bridgehead toward Kangaw on the Burma west coast.

AUTHOR PLEADS: TREAT POLAND BETTER THAN FOE

The Polish problem reduces to the simple question as to whether the nation which was the first to fight the Nazis should now be treated worse than an enemy state. This was the opinion put forward at a luncheon of the American Friends of Poland in the Arts club yesterday by Lt. Jan Karasi, former liaison officer of the Polish underground and author of "The Story of a Secret State."

"Every sixth Pole is dead," he said. "We have no capital. Warsaw does not exist any more."

"How then can Poland be made the victim of measures more severe than those directed against Italy and Romania, which were actually at war with the allies? We are asked to cede half of our country, not after the war, when frontier questions can be decided, but right now!"

He was referring to Soviet demands that vast areas of eastern Poland be surrendered to Russia.

He said the Russian sponsored Lublin committee is composed largely of strangers to the Polish people. Robert Hall McCormick presided at the luncheon.

AMERICAN RED CROSS WILL TAKE SUPPLIES INTO POLAND AT ONCE

MOSCOW, Jan. 25 (AP).—Under an agreement with the Polish provisional government, the American Red Cross will enter Poland immediately with relief supplies. It was announced today. The supplies will be chiefly medicines at first.

Elliott M. Shirk, chief of American Red Cross operations in Russia, and an assistant will take the first consignment of $40,000 to $45,000 worth of medicines into Poland and supervise their distribution. Shirk will go to Lublin and from there to Warsaw. Field work in Poland later will be headed by Dr. Johannes Bauer and three assistants.

7TH ARMY YANKS CHECK GERMAN DRIVE IN ALSACE

River Crossing.

PARIS, Jan. 25 (AP).—The Germans opened up an offensive in north-eastern France today but it was checked by savage United States 7th army counterattacks after it had broken across the new American Moselle river line at four points. The attack rolled out at dawn along a 30 mile front, with three crack armored divisions pacing at least three others in an assault which nowhere gained as much as two miles. A front dispatch said hard fighting raged tonight with the Americans inflicting punishing losses. All along the front, the dispatch said, the Nazis were checked or smashed back.

The threat to American positions at pivotal Haguenau, probably an initial German objective, was eased by doughty counterattacks which shoved the enemy back across the Moselle river east of that town, 15 miles north of Strasbourg.

Attack Other Crossings. Three German crossings of the Moselle in considerable force from two to five miles west of Haguenau and 15 miles deep into Alsace, also were under attack and the enemy was being driven back across the river.

The Germans had succeeded in cutting the Haguenau-Sarrebourg highway, as they had once before. While the late reports said the Germans were being "contained," there was no attempt to minimize the force of the push and an American staff officer said it was a "major effort" to try to reconquer all Alsace, which Hitler had incorporated into the Reich in 1940.

The Germans charged under cover of thick weather as they did in the ill-fated Ardennes campaign.

South of Strasbourg, on the northern edge of the Colmar pocket, the Germans lunged out against Osthelm, east of the River Ill—main north-south river barrier on the west side of the Rhine—five miles northeast of Colmar.

The French 1st army, repulsing counterattacks, scored limited gains, however, along the southern rim of the pocket.

British Gain in Holland.

The big German venture in Alsace, where the allies can afford to trace space for time, came as the allied armies far to the north were losing steadily to positions from whence they can resume the supreme assault on Germany from the west.

The British 2d army, engulfing eight more towns as deep as 11 miles into Germany, was within a mile of the Roer river, barrier to the Cologne plain, and sending patrols stabbing toward the river.

The Stummes were 2 1/2 miles from the enemy's Holland stronghold of Roermond, and had flattened the German salient on that front north of Aachen.

The punctured German bulge in the Ardennes was being flattened by the United States 1st and 3d armies attacking in the coldest weather of the winter—8 degrees above zero on the 1st army front.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army, pressing two miles northeast of St. Vith, had no more than seven miles to go anywhere in Belgium before it stood at the German frontier.

Push Out from St. Vith.

An arc was pushed out from St. Vith an average of a mile and a half, with the best progress made to the northeast, where fighting was in progress around Wallerode, two miles northeast of St. Vith.

Five miles north of St. Vith, the 1st division sent patrols out near Aachen after trapping and capturing nearly 300 prisoners.

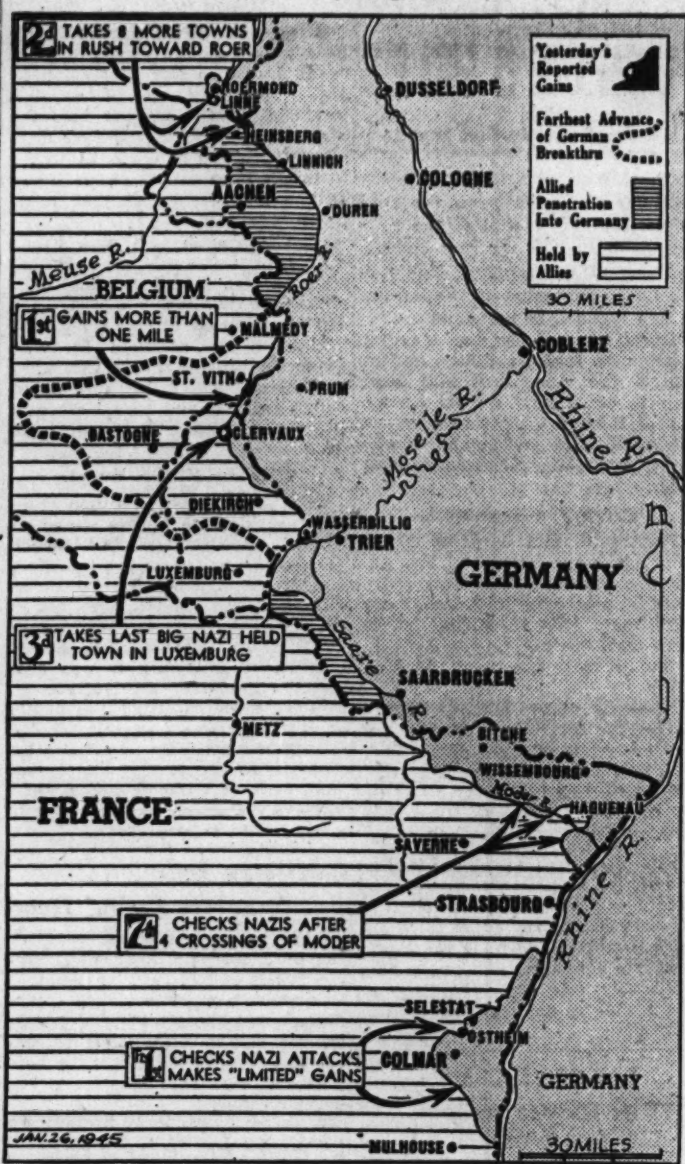

The 7th armored division caught a German column of tanks south of St. Vith and cut it to pieces.

A Reuters dispatch from London said let army troops at some places were beyond the "jumping off" points of Von Rundstedt's offensive which last month drove a deep salient into the allied lines.

In the shattered remnant of the Ardennes salient, Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army was hounding the Germans back into the Siegfried line, not

TWO MIDWEST YANKS AND 10 PALS SMASH 11 TANKS IN 3 DAY FIGHT

WEYERSHEIM, Alsace, Jan. 24 (Delayed).—(AP)—The village six miles west of the Rhine in American hands because 12 Yanks with two tanks stood their ground when the Germans made attack after attack last Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

After the battle at least 26 German tanks lay on the ridges of No Man's land northeast of Weyersheim, while others hobbled off the field damaged. Eleven of these tanks, one self-propelled gun, and two anti-tank guns were accounted for by the 12 man American team. There will be medals for these boys later, but today they enjoyed something still more precious, a rest behind the lines.

Among the 12 men were Corp. Frank Conway, gunner, of Greentown, Ind., and Corp. Robert Mitter, driver, Mankato, Minn. They had a position in a wood and a radio spotter directed their fire.

more than five and a half miles away in northern Luxembourg.

The 3d fought into Clervaux, a town of 1,000 population and the last of any size still held by the enemy in Luxembourg, after breaking across the Clerf river at a number of points.

3d Cuts "Skyline Drive."

The 3d army pushed forward up to a mile and a half thru hilly northern Luxembourg, and had cut the main north-south road, known as "Skyline" dr., between Diekirch and St. Vith, in at least two places. The road runs from two to three miles west of the Our river, which forms the Luxembourg-German border.

The 3d army's invasion of Germany in the Moselle river valley 11 miles southeast of the city of Luxembourg, met some success and the Germans were cleared from the towns of Wies, Borg, and Nennig, from two to five miles inside Germany.

Fighter bombers, pounding home the attack on the retreating enemy for the fourth day, destroyed 52 tanks and armored vehicles and damaged 58 others, and knocked out 679 motor vehicles and damaged 515 others.

HIDEOUT OF NAZI HUMAN TORPEDO CREWS SMASHED

ROME, Jan. 25 (AP).—An island hideout of German "human torpedo" crews in the northern Adriatic sea has been demolished by rocket firing allied planes, an air force announcement said today.

Not much has been said about the "human torpedoes" since they first appeared near Anzio a year ago, but the air force announcement discloses they had headquarters in a hotel on a Lussini island cove—in an area which has been a hideout foridget submarines and motor patrol boats.

Other planes attacked Adriatic shipping and road traffic and bridges in the Po estuary, although bad weather grounded most of the Mediterranean air force.

Patrol skiffs provided the only infantry activity on the sleet and snow covered Italian front.

Allied patrols ran into booby traps, mines, machine guns, and mortar fire along the Senio river, which forms the Germans' eastern winter line in the Adriatic sector and had to withdraw after reaching a bridge southwest of Cotignola.

F. F. I. OF LAST

ARMY POWERS

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.) PARIS, Jan. 25.—French Forces of the Interior were deprived of their last vestige of military authority today by a decree signed by Andre Diethelm, war minister, dissolving the FFI directing committee. This group had sat with the minister of war and given its advice on military problems affecting its members. The committee was created by a war ministry decree of Sept. 15, 1944, at which time the FFI insisted that if their forces were to be incorporated in the regular army they must retain their identity and officers.

Huge Store of Nazi Mines

MIDWEST YANKS' HEROISM HAILED BY THIRD ARMY

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.) WITH THE AMERICAN 3D ARMY, Jan. 25.—Midwestern members of the 4th armored, 9th armored, and 95th divisions have received medals for heroism against the enemy.

Four of the awards were silver stars. They went to Lieutenants Eugene C. Martin of Burlington, Wis., and Charles G. Spatz, 7148 S. Honore av., Chicago, of the 4th armored; Pvt. Stanley V. Kozlowski, 2446 Carmen av., and Sgt. William J. Kukla, 2249 N. Menard av., both of Chicago, of the 95th division.

Rescue Under Fire. When enemy anti-tank guns smashed two American light tanks their crews "balled out" and sought shelter near Lt. Martin. He discovered one tank driver was missing. Despite enemy fire, he went to the tanks and rescued the driver.

Lt. Spatz took command of a tank platoon when the leader was wounded and directed the destruction of a Nazi anti-tank gun and three mortars. Then the platoon moved into a mine field. The platoon's tank and another were damaged. Spatz pulled the crews from both tanks and then, despite the fact that he was shaken and bruised, took over another tank and continued the advance.

Pvt. Kozlowski, with a noncommissioned officer, crawled under German machine gun fire to rescue a wounded comrade of the 379th regiment. Kukla and a second non-com attacked a machine gun nest with hand grenades and bayonets, killing two Germans and capturing two. They then directed their platoon's fire so that a second German emplacement was destroyed.

Winners of Bronze Stars.

The following men won bronze stars: Sgt. Arthur Helman, 3034 N. Normandy av., Chicago, whose mother lives at 3531 W. 65th place. Helman and nine other men took trucks loaded with sorely needed food and ammunition across a Saar river bridge which was under heavy shell fire.

Also Corp. Herman F. Bates, 3021 Clifton av., Chicago, who was a volunteer litter bearer under German small arms and mortar fire; Capt. Martin Rosoff, University of Illinois graduate and former Chicagoan, for excellent and heroic work as commander of a task force holding one portion of the front.

Sgt. Raymond J. Wroblewski of Blue Island, Ill., a graduate of Fenger High school, for meritorious service as a signal support sergeant. Staff Sgt. Thomas Niewiem, 1136 Hill road, Winnetka, Ill., chief of a division message center, for meritorious service during the drive on Metz and Saarlautern. All the foregoing are members of the 95th infantry division.

Of 4th Armored Division.

Others—members of the 4th armored division who won bronze stars are Pvt. James A. Moscato Jr., R. 1, Shelbyville, Ind.; Corp. William P. Urban, 3533 Madison st., Chicago, who helped knock out a Mark IV tank with a bazooka; Sgt. Galen F. Stiles of La Porte, Ind., who crawled close enough to a German machine gun nest to kill the crew, "an act of cool courage."

Pvt. Walter Grenetako, whose sister, Mrs. Anna Schwartz, lives at 640 Wrightwood av., Chicago, for sweeping for mines down the entire main street of Mittersheim, France, despite enemy small arms and automatic fire.

LARGE FRENCH ARMY PLANNED FOR WEST FRONT

U. S. to Provide Most of Equipment.

BY LARRY RUE.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.) SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, Paris, Jan. 25.—Details have been completed for equipping, clothing, and feeding several hundred thousand additional French troops to enter the front lines beside American and other allied troops on the western front. Lt. Gen. Somervell, commander of United States army service forces, said today.

At the same time Gen. Koenig, French commander of Paris, ordered officers and noncommissioned officers of the reserve classes of 1931 to 1940 of the colonial army to report at once for duty.

The decision to rearm the French in large numbers was taken only a month ago after the start of Field Marshal von Rundstedt's Ardennes offensive. It was disclosed.

U. S. to Provide Supplies.

Somervell stated that the United States would provide the major portion of the French forces' supplies, but that Britain would furnish some equipment, weapons, and vehicles and the French would provide a "considerable part."

He said a program had been inaugurated to accelerate French production, especially of textiles, metal workings, steel, and munitions. Wherever necessary, he said, American tools, raw materials, and technical assistance would be given to enable the French to resume production. Also, to save cargo space, much equipment in disuse because of battle action or normal wear will be salvaged to ease the strain on home front production.

Somervell said that at the moment there is no shortage of ammunition, tires, or other supplies on the western front, but to prevent the possibility of future shortages in any theater, American production must be accelerated by roughly these percentages: Small arms ammunition, 200 per cent over the November rate; a large part of medium and heavy artillery ammunition, 100 per cent; heavy trucks 25 or 30 per cent, and cotton duck, 40 per cent.

Denies Equipment Inferior.

Somervell denied reports that men at the front are improperly clothed or equipped because of shortages of supplies. He said there are surplus stocks of such things as clothing, socks, and shoes. He attributed reports of shortages to individual cases where the distribution system had temporarily broken down or improper use was made of what was issued. He said the western front gets priority over the Pacific theater in supply.

He asserted that the American soldier is the best equipped in the world and said he has yet to meet any soldier who preferred any item of enemy equipment to that used by the Americans. He said we have now outdistanced the Germans in practically every type of weapon used in warfare, including tanks. Somervell said American delivery of war materials to Russia had not diminished despite more than seven months of war in western Europe. He said that merchant ships now can go into the Black sea and discharge their cargoes at Russian ports.

JAPANESE CROSS MOCKS SURVIVOR OF DEATH MARCH

A Filipino Comes Back to Camp O'Donnell.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

CAMP O'DONNELL, Luzon, Jan. 25.—Felix, a Filipino school teacher—a soldier and survivor of the death march from Bataan to these miserable barren sun baked hills—returned here today to hunt information on the fate of his company.

He found that information in the cemetery where lay buried 32,000 of the 59,000 Filipinos who were driven here. Across on another knoll where even the grass is dead, lie untold hundreds of the 4,000 Americans forced into the death march.

It is hard to tell just how many Americans died here. The crosses which they erected are scattered. Hundreds are piled in one hole. Only a few have the dog tags of the men whose bones they mark. One carries a half dollar into which a soldier had scratched his name.

Burn Crosses to Heat Rice.

Bits of the crosses protrude from piles of ashes where the Japs, who turned the cemetery into a fortress of dugouts, burned the crosses to heat their rice.

From the crest of the knoll rises a concrete cross, the epitome of mockery, erected by the Jap army with this inscription: "In memory of the American dead. O'Donnell war personnel enclosure."

Felix, whose full name is Feliciano Ponsador, was a school teacher on Leyte Island before the war. He became an officer in the Filipino army and was captured on Bataan.

With other prisoners he was marched here on the 10 hellish days from April 9 to 18, 1942. As the late Col. William Dyer related in his stories in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, prisoners who fainted en route were bayoneted or beaten to death.

Meets Rockford Man.

Felix escaped after two days in this camp. He crawled between barbed wire fences at night. He reached a village a few miles away. The Filipinos there nursed him back to health for two months, then started passing him from one family to another until, in September, he reached Leyte.

When the Americans returned to Leyte three months ago he met Capt. Jesse Walters of Rockford, Ill., commander of a tank company and attached himself to it. With Walters he returned to Luzon. Today Walters brought Felix back here.

Other Filipinos were already pushing aside the dead grass in an effort to locate the graves of their brothers and husbands. Their hunt was futile. Only those who died in the first days have separate graves. The rest are buried in groups of as large as 50 to 60.

Felix has left to press on into the hills with Walters' tanks. There was a new set to his jaw. That's what the ghosts of Camp O'Donnell do to you. The Japs who killed, starved, and tortured showed no more respect for the American dead than they did for the living American.

Turkey Will Ship Britain 12,000 Tons of Raisins

SMYRNA, Turkey, Jan. 25 (Reuters).—Immediate delivery of 12,000 tons of raisins and 5,500 tons of figs to Britain is to begin under an agreement signed in the Turkish capital, it was learned today.

Refugees said the Japanese are still supporting the Santo Tomas camp by cash payments of their printing press money. This invasion paper is becoming increasingly worthless. Inflation is rampant, particularly in foodstuffs where the shortage long has been pronounced.

Friends Short of Food.

Outsiders are permitted to deliver one package weekly to the camp in contrast to daily deliveries in 1943. But the outsiders themselves are so short of food they are unable to spare much for their interned friends who dined on one meal daily prepared by the camp kitchens.

Several thousand Americans and British were still in Santo Tomas when reporting travelers last visited Manila. In 1943 the camp held 3,900. Eight hundred men were in Los Ganos and 400 others were interned at Baguio.

Internees waved to American air men when they swooped over Santo Tomas recently. Pilots reported the internees had built hundreds of "shanties" on the campus as shelter from the midday sun.

Travelers described Manila as a tense, run down city from which more than half of the one time million and a half population had fled to outlying provinces. They said the Japanese gendarmerie recently inaugurated a reign of terror. Imprisoning suspected American sympathizers and recruiting forced labor to repair blasted air fields.

Produce No Food.

Severance of communications itself would be sufficient to produce distress in Manila. It produces virtually no food. Residents are dependent on outlying farms. During the early days of Japanese occupation in 1942, Manila was similarly isolated by military order and the food situation became extremely critical.

It is impossible to verify the stories but there is sufficient evidence to indicate the situation is black. Nearly all available canned goods were exhausted during the first year of occupation. Thereafter internees and Filipinos were dependent on local products which have long been deteriorating both in quantity and quality.

REPORT CITIZENS OF MANILA DIE OF STARVATION

Distress Stories Told by Refugees.

BAMBAN, Luzon, Jan. 23 (Delayed)—(AP)—Refugees from Manila reported today hundreds of Filipinos are dying of starvation daily in the Philippines capital where many emaciated bodies can be seen lying in the shabby, unkempt streets.

Stories of starvation within the city and the Santo Tomas Internment camp were brought thru American lines by both Filipinos and neutrals who left Manila in recent weeks.

All said the Japanese had stripped Manila of foodstuffs before moving their major forces northward and had severed all communications between the capital and outlying districts.

765 AMERICANS LOST IN SINKING OF TROOPSHIP

1,400 Rescued as Vessel Goes Down Swiftly.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (P).—Along with a report of 36,456 new army casualties, Secretary Stimson disclosed today the recent sinking in European waters of a ship carrying American troops, with 765 dead and missing.

The ship was sunk by enemy action while carrying more than 2,200 soldiers, of whom more than 1,400 were saved. The casualties were divided 248 dead and 517 missing. Stimson said the ship went down swiftly.

Other Sinkings.
The date of the sinking was not announced. Next of kin of casualties have been notified. Announced loss of life has been heavy in the sinking of four other troop carrying vessels.

Casualties totaled 1,498 in the loss of two unnamed vessels in the Mediterranean last year. Approximately 300 army, navy, and marine corps men and crew members were listed as missing or lost after a submarine sank the Henry R. Mallory while she was en route to Iceland early in 1943.

The Mallory presumably was one of two ships which the navy said had been lost in the North Atlantic with more than 850 casualties.

616,951 Army Casualties.
More than 4,500 officers and men were aboard the transport President Coolidge when she was sunk in the South Pacific Oct. 28, 1942, but only five were lost.

Stimson said the new transport sinking was made public in accordance with the "established policy of stating all losses in regular course, even the some of the details may not yet be made available."

The overall report on army losses, at the war secretary's news conference, showed 616,951 dead, wounded, captured, and missing since Pearl Harbor, up 36,456 from last week. It reflected a period of heavy fighting in Belgium two or three weeks ago.

Comparisons Made.
A breakdown on today's figures and comparable ones for last week: ARMY—Killed, 117,256 and 111,306; wounded, 356,813 and 343,250; prisoners of war, 57,432 and 57,462; missing, 85,450 and 88,477.

Stimson said that of the wounded 180,520 have returned to duty. NAVY—Killed, 32,394 and 31,802; wounded, 38,513 and 37,630; prisoners, 4,477 and 4,478; missing, 9,615 and 9,454.

FORT HITS PEAK; 2 DIE; CHICAGOAN SAVED BY DOG

A U. S. BOMBER BASE, England, Jan. 25 (P).—Two American flyers were killed and seven others were rescued from a blizzard in the mountains of northern England recently after a Flying Fortress crashed into the side of a peak, it was disclosed today. The dead were Flight Officer Fred Holcombe, Swannanoa, N. C., and Sgt. Frank R. Turner Jr., Columbia, S. C., a gunner. A 60 year old shepherd led a rescue party of nine in a three hour climb up the steep mountain while the storm raged. The shepherd's dog found four Americans huddled in a peat bog. Among them was William R. Kaufman, 2317 N. Rockwell st., Chicago.

Eastern Star Gift to Red Cross

'Just a Starter'

Check of $500 for the 1945 Red Cross War fund campaign was delivered yesterday to Martin H. Kennelly, general chairman of the Chicago chapter drive, by Mrs. Ethel S. Breedlove of Arcola, Douglas county, worthy grand matron of the Order of the Eastern Star of Illinois. Mrs. Bertha M. Eagle, the state's Eastern Star Red Cross chairman, who accompanied Mrs. Breedlove, said that the donation was "just a starter" for the campaign from the organization. She said the total contribution probably will exceed the $13,500 given last year.

LEADERS TOLD RED CROSS PLANS FOR FUND DRIVE

More than 100 business leaders heard plans for the 1945 Red Cross war fund drive outlined yesterday at the first of a series of luncheon meetings of the sponsors division in the Blackstone hotel. With a goal of $11,300,000 for the Chicago chapter area, the drive will open March 1 and run thru March 31. Martin H. Kennelly, general chairman, who said Chicago always meets its quotas, but slowly, advised the sponsors to redouble their efforts and explained the need for getting contributions in more promptly. "The terrific increasing load carried by the Red Cross because of the war," he said, "makes speed in this drive a critical factor."

James A. Forgan, vice chairman of the national campaign, told the sponsors that "activities in Europe will not cease when the war with Germany is over because Gen. Eisenhower has requested that Red Cross clubs be planned for the G. I.'s wherever our troops are stationed."

40% OF MEN 28 ARE REJECTED AFTER PHYSICAL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (P).—The military's reasons for its present policy of passing up draft registrants over 29 are underscored in a new selective service survey released today.

The report shows that 40.3 per cent of the men aged 28 who are called up are rejected as physically unfit. The rejection rates go slightly over the 50 per cent mark at 34, and climb to 59.1 per cent for men 38. Sixty-three per cent of the registrants 44 years old are turned down.

These age rejection rates, selective service says "are probably the best indication of the general unfitness of men over 29 to take their places in the armed forces."

2 FLYING FORTS COLLIDE; 16 DEAD, ONE FROM HERE

Dyersburg, Tenn., Jan. 25 (P).—Collision of two Flying Fortresses near their Dyersburg base caused the death of 16 army airmen yesterday. Four others parachuted safely. The planes crashed and burned within two miles of each other.

The army officially listed 11 dead, but carried five as "missing," pending location of their bodies. Officers who viewed the wreckage said there was no chance the five survived.

Those listed as dead included Corp. Raymond H. McCoy, 517 E. 11th, Bloomington, Ind.; Corp. William C. Spaulding Jr., 1617 Fargo av., Chicago, and Corp. Corys J. Paulus, Mentone, Ind. The missing included 2d Lt. John R. Sedivec, Cary, Ill., and F/O James R. Seloveer, 902 W. 7th, Sterling, Ill. Those who parachuted to safety included Pvt. Jack R. Fyne, 6428 Greenwood av., Chicago.

HERE IS BREAKDOWN OF DRAFT REJECTION RATES FOR NATION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (P).—Here is a state by state breakdown of draft rejection rates per 100 registrants for the period February thru August, 1943, with the "white" classification including all races except Negro, and the Negro rate untabulated in states where their registration is less than 0.3 per cent of the total:

Oregon Has Best Record.
On the basis of a study covering seven months of 1943, Oregon, Kansas, Utah, Washington, and Idaho had the lowest rejection rates in the country, ranging from 24.4 to 29.3 per cent, as compared with the national average of 39.2. Because of high rejection rates among Negroes, the record of 13 southern states was above the national average. North Carolina was the highest, with 56.8 per cent of

GEN. STILWELL MADE CHIEF OF GROUND FORCES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (P).—In a move weighted with meaning for Japan, the war department today named Gen. Stilwell to command the army ground forces.

Stilwell is the American general with the longest experience in Japanese military methods. He assumes command of the ground forces at a time when the task of reorganizing and training them for a major assault against Japan—either on Japanese or Chinese soil or both—appears to be pressing for attention.

Stilwell replaces Lt. Gen. Lear, who has been assigned as deputy commander in the European theater in charge of administrative matters concerning American troops.

May Lead Final Push.

The fact that both Lear and his predecessor, Lt. Gen. McNair, received important overseas assignments after heading the ground forces strengthens speculation here that Stilwell's next job is likely to be back in the field, leading American troops in the final crushing of Japan.

Secretary of War Stimson underscored the announcement of Stilwell's new job by reading a message from Lt. Gen. Sultan in Burma which expressed regret that "Vinegar Joe" was not on hand for the triumphal opening of the Ledo road to China.

Completion of this project under jungle combat conditions and using, in part, Chinese troops which Stilwell trained in India, is regarded as fulfillment of the policy Stilwell laid down when he was in command in the China-Burma-India theater. Last fall President Roosevelt announced Stilwell's recall from the CBI theater because of "personal differences" with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China.

Watched Early Jap War.
"Uncle Joe" knows the Japanese soldier from way back. He was on hand in Peiping as military attache

In 1937 when the Sino-Japanese war broke out at Marco Polo bridge. He hiked over the great wall behind Japanese troops to watch their conquest of Inner Mongolia. Then, as now, he never deprecated the ability of the Japanese fighting man. But he says the Japanese soldier is no superman.

If Tokyo noticed the change today it might have recalled one of Stilwell's more pithy statements: "More and more Japs are destined to assume a recumbent position in this war."

Swiss Mission Confirms Mass Executions by ELAS

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 25 (P).—A Swiss medical mission today corroborated reports of medical and legal experts that hundreds of executions, took place at Peristeri while the ELAS, left wing opponents of the Greek government, were in control there. The mission said that several hundred deaths, including some gendarmes but mostly civilians, took place from 20 to 40 days ago. More than 500 bodies have been exhumed and the final toll may reach 1,500.

CHURCHILL TOLD U. S. POLICIES ON RULE OF EUROPE

Report Americans Seek Voice in Pacts.

BY RAYMOND DANIELL.
(By Cable to The New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.)
LONDON, Jan. 25.—Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden have been listening for the last three days in conversations under way here to an exposition of American policy toward Europe. They are being told how far President Roosevelt is prepared to support Britain and Russia in conflicting claims and just where the United States disagrees with her two allies, both regarding the treatment of defeated Germany and the policy that should be pursued in those countries liberated from Nazi tyranny.

From these conversations, which have been proceeding far into the night, two facts emerge clearly. They are that the United States has decided to assert itself in the settlement of European affairs, and that the old state department idea of relegating troublesome issues to pigeonholes for future settlement has been abandoned in favor of action.

Ready to Make Stand.
The measure of success of the current talks and hope for unity among the allies after the conference of the leaders of the three major allied powers, however, may depend to a large degree upon how far American spokesmen are permitted to go in making commitments and how definite those commitments can be.

For it is a fact that however much Britain would like to come to an understanding with the United States, she doesn't desire to offend Russia in doing so. She is determined to avoid any clash with the Soviets. However, she is prepared to stand up and fight for certain principles which the American and British governments have enunciated, provided she can be assured in advance that America is able and willing to help.

It is along this line that the Anglo-American talks have been proceeding. There have been hints from the United States that the big three conference has begun already. That is not true, but serious efforts are under way to resolve Anglo-American differences in advance of the meeting with Premier Stalin, which probably will take place in much warmer climate than February provides in this island or in western Europe.

Up Late at Parley.
Churchill came into the house of commons today to take part in the debate on what kind of a house of commons should replace the one destroyed by the Luftwaffe looking pretty tired and distraught. The inference was drawn generally that he had been up late the night before discussing problems of reorientation of British policy in the light of latest information from Washington, D. C., about what the President is thinking.

It is declared to be important that a measure of agreement be reached between the United States and Britain before Churchill, Stalin, and Roosevelt sit down around a table like the conferees at the congress of Vienna to settle Europe's fate, for that is what they are about to do.

The Anglo-Churchill talks are not the only ones that are going on. Soviet Ambassador Gusev is in Moscow reporting on the trends of British policy, and Ambassador Gromyko has left Washington to join these conversations.

Graduates Despite Handicap

Gift from Class

Altho a bedridden heart patient at the County hospital, Kenneth Swanson, 13, was presented with his diploma yesterday by Mrs. Elizabeth MacGregor, principal at Funston school. The blond blue eyed boy was stricken with heart trouble several weeks ago but kept up his lessons while in bed. Mrs. MacGregor said Kenneth was one of the school messengers, a patrol boy and won a certificate for his war garden before becoming ill. His 42 classmates, who received their diplomas yesterday afternoon at a regular exercise, gave Kenneth a school sweater for a graduation gift. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Swanson, live at 2137 Kimball av. His mother is a switchboard operator at County hospital.

BRITAIN TO PRINT 2,750,000 BOOKS ON POST-WAR JOBS

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON, Jan. 25.—The British government will release 2,000 extra tons of paper to publishing firms in order to produce 2,750,000 books for the fighting forces as part of a scheme to reeducate service men and women for post-war jobs, it was reported tonight.

The books, it was estimated, will cost about four million dollars. Among the specimen titles are "History of the Ancient World," "Lore of the Wanderer," "Every Man in His Humor," "Dissertation on the Nature of Virtue," and "Morals in Evolution."

Four civil servants are directing the printing job. Publishers, printers, and bookbinders are giving priority to their orders.

U. S. ASKS SWISS TO STOP TRADE WITH GERMANY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP).—The United States applied economic pressure to Switzerland today for its continued dealings with Germany. The state department disclosed that President Roosevelt is sending one of his own administrative assistants, Lauchlin Currie, to resume negotiations with the Swiss in an effort "to shorten the war."

Currie will seek two objectives: To persuade the Swiss to close their railroads to shipments of coal and other goods from Germany to northern Italy; and to cut off exports of machine tools and a few strategic metals and food supplies from Switzerland into Germany.

Reflects Allied Power.
Currie's arguments, diplomatic officials said, will be reinforced by Germany's waning military fortunes, the growing power of the allies which promises protection for Switzerland, and the fact that allied domination of post-war Europe must be taken into account as a factor in Swiss policy.

The industrial resources of Switzerland have become valuable to the Germans. Allied armies are pressing forward to the Ruhr valley and its factories, and allied planes are keeping it under continual bombardment. Moreover, the Germans are losing their "little Ruhr" in Silesia.

Cut Off from Sweden.
Some time ago they virtually were cut off from Swedish sources, as Switzerland alone remains to them an area of industrial production invulnerable to allied assault.

Even so, Switzerland's resources have not been at the unlimited beck and call of the German machine. Last October the Swiss cut off the shipment of arms and ammunition to Germany. This was far short of what the allies had sought but was all the Swiss were willing to do at the time, evidently because of their need for German coal.

WORLD LABOR URGED TO FORM LABOR LEAGUE

LONDON, Jan. 25 (AP).—The governing body of the international labor office opened its 94th session today with a move to establish reciprocal relations with other world organizations dealing with social and economic problems.

Ernest Bevin, Great Britain's minister of labor, set the keynote with a suggestion that ILO should lead the way to a sort of international parliament devoted to "improved labor standards, economic advancement, and social security."

Carter Goodridge, United States labor commissioner, presided over the group, comprised of 16 representatives of various governments and eight representatives each of labor and management. Other nations represented were Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chile, China, France, the United Kingdom, Greece, India, Mexico, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Yugoslavia, and Czechoslovakia.

SEAMAN'S WIFE GETS BACK BABY SHE GAVE AWAY

Miami, Fla., Jan. 25 (AP).—A week ago an 18 year old navy wife gave her first-born child away because she thought she could not support it. Today, by order of the Circuit court, she had her 16 day old daughter back with her, after this comment by Judge Richard H. Hunt: "It takes more than the words of a sick, money poor mother to give away her child."

He ordered the foster mother to return it to the mother, Mrs. Ada Forren, 18, of Miami.

Mrs. Forren told the court she'd tried in vain before the baby's birth to communicate with her husband, on duty at sea, then decided to offer the child for adoption. But after leaving the hospital, she said, she changed her mind.

$2,050,000 GOAL SET FOR JEWISH CHARITIES WORK

The largest budget in the 45 year history of the Jewish Charities of Chicago, listing projected expenditures of $2,050,000, was presented last night by John M. Frank, president, at a meeting in the Standard club.

Frank disclosed that $1,750,000 will be spent to support regular activities. The balance will be used to construct a nurses' home at Mount Sinai hospital, build an addition to the nurses' home at Michael Reese hospital, and add several floors to the Meyer Memorial building. A goal of $755,000 has been set in the charities' current drive.

The executive director of the charities is Lt. Col. Samuel A. Goldsmith, who recently returned to Chicago after serving for 18 months as a member of the allied military government in Italy and on the general staff of the allied force headquarters in the Mediterranean area.

NESTLÉ'S • FOR 75 YEARS, LEADERS IN WORLD-WIDE MILK RESEARCH

This new NESTLÉ'S Milk meets a vital need

... because each pint supplies 400 units of Vitamin D, now specified as the minimum daily requirement by U. S. food officials. For years, many medical men have been asking: "Are babies and growing children getting the proper amount of Vitamin D under today's living conditions?"

More Vitamin D needed, Science finds

The conclusion reached from hundreds of scientific feeding tests was that infants and growing children need at least 400 Vitamin-D units daily.

Authorities also concluded that extra Vitamin D is necessary for adults, too.

So Nestlé's has perfected and now offers the new, improved NESTLÉ'S Evaporated Milk. It has all the original fine Nestlé's qualities PLUS added Vitamin D... the form of Vitamin D that occurs naturally in cod liver oil and a form that is produced naturally in the human body by sunshine.

One pint now supplies 400 USP units... the full minimum daily requirement of Vitamin D specified for infants, children and adults by the U. S. Food and Drug Administration.

Here's what the new NESTLÉ'S Evaporated Milk means to you

For babies—this new milk, made to order for infants, will be approved by your doctor for your baby.

In your coffee and in your cooking—every time you use this new NESTLÉ'S Milk, you help everyone in your family fill his daily requirement of Vitamin D.

CHEF TO FACE CLERKS ACCUSED OF COURT GRAFT

Judge Schiller Orders Full Hearing Tomorrow.

Municipal Judge Jay A. Schiller and other officials of that court began an investigation yesterday into alleged irregularities in the handling of fines and docket sheets in the South State st. court. Deputy clerks and bailiffs were questioned and Judge Schiller ordered a full hearing in court tomorrow.

The investigation was begun when John B. David, 35, of 347 N. Clark st., a cook on a Pullman train, told of being charged a $4 fee by a deputy bailiff to take him to a currency exchange to cash his pay check so he could pay a $35 fine.

After David made his charge it was discovered that two court sheets had been made by a deputy clerk to cover the same cases. One showed that David had been fined $25 and $10 costs and the other that he had been discharged.

Had Ordered Complaint Dismissed.

Judge Schiller said he fined David the $35 originally on a charge of vagrancy, or begging, but that when he heard David was employed and had a pay check on him, he ordered the complaint dismissed.

David said a bailiff took him to a currency exchange where he got his check cashed and went back to pay the fine. This time, however, he said he was taken to another courtroom, paid the fine, and was impolitely ordered out when he asked for a receipt. He paid the bailiff $4 for escorting him to the money exchange.

Joseph L. Gill, clerk of the court, questioned two deputies assigned to that court. Edward Gemler, one of the clerks, said a deputy bailiff came into court after it had been adjourned with the mitimus ordering David to the Bridewell and paid the fine. He said he did not know the judge's finding had been changed.

Makes Out New Court Sheet.

Stanley Jakabowski, the other deputy clerk, said that later when he was checking over the court records he found that David had paid the fine and made out a new sheet to show a fine instead of discharge.

Clerk Gill said Jakabowski's conduct was irregular, but that he would await the court hearing tomorrow before taking action. Deputy Bailiff Edward Bray said he took David to the money exchange, but denied receiving $4 for that favor.

Judge Schiller said he has ordered David into court to identify all the persons involved.

"The clerk certainly had no right to change the docket sheet after the money had been paid," Judge Schiller said.

Chief Justice Edward S. Scheffer said he will be present during the court inquiry. Virgil W. Peterson, operating director of the Chicago Crime Commission, said a representative from his office also would attend.

SLAYING INQUIRY BOILS OVER INTO POLITICAL FIGHT

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 25.—Grand jury investigation of the Kasherman murder loomed today as labor forces continued to demand prompt and definite action from the city administration.

E. T. Field, business man and foreman of the jury, told Judge Paul W. Guilford that the jury probably will meet Saturday to determine its course of action in the slaying of Kasherman, editor of an expose sheet, who was shot to death Monday night. Kasherman's death has been connected unofficially with a reputed politico-underworld tieup in Minneapolis.

Union labor, as represented by the CIO, AFL, and railroad brotherhoods, offered Hubert H. Humphrey Jr., a political economics instructor at Hamline university, as a candidate to oppose the present mayor, Marvin L. Kline, in the June primaries. The unions have demanded that Kline investigate the circumstances that led to the Kasherman slaying.

BEDBUG PLEA CHALLENGED BY PAROLE BOARD

The state parole board yesterday challenged the truth of information filed Wednesday with Judge Elwyn R. Shaw in federal District court by Russell Gray, 42, a convict at Joliet penitentiary seeking freedom thru a writ of habeas corpus.

Gray told the court he had twice been returned to prison, once because he had moved from a bedbug infested room without the parole board's permission and again because he had left his place of employment when he discovered another parolee was employed there. Parole laws forbid fraternization of parolees.

Judge Shaw continued the hearing to Feb. 28 when Asst. Atty. Gen. Schwarz contended Gray had not exhausted recourse in the state courts.

EX-LION TAMER FINDS 8 WIVES HARD TO HANDLE

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 25 (Special).—Francis Van Wie, 58, the "Carbarn Casanova," and former lion tamer, went in jail today as he recounted his marriage studded "search for a happy home" which began 40 years ago in Fort Atkinson, Wis.

Van Wie's search ended successfully in Reno, Nev., last Dec. 12, he said, when he married Brutonia Evelyn Brown Crenshaw, but in the four intervening decades he had married seven other women without bothering to divorce any of them.

That is why he was in jail today instead of in his new "happy home."

Three of his wives have fled bigamy charges and he is being taken back to San Francisco to face them.

Arrested in War Plant.

The short, bald, and bespectacled former San Francisco street car conductor—when came the name Carbarn Casanova—was arrested in a local war plant today. Questioned in the office of the district attorney, he recalled details of his marital meanderings.

"The first was Elizabeth Kexel at Fort Atkinson, Wis.," he said. "I can't remember whether that was in 1904 or 1906. Anyway, I was young then and it was romance. But that didn't last long."

"Then in 1912 there was Clara Heise of Milwaukee. Later Clara and Elizabeth got together and had me in court on bigamy charges in Chicago. That was all straightened out but not until after I had spent three months in jail."

Weds Mind Reader.

Van Wie's quest for home life was interrupted by World War I, when he served in France, but he was back at it in 1922 when he wed Mabel Joyce, a waitress in a Milwaukee veterans' hospital. He and Mabel had been circus performers together—he as a lion tamer and she as a mind reader—and their marriage lasted 17 years until Mabel "found some one else and ran away."

Next in line were Sadie Levin, whom he married "in some small town in Nevada in 1941"; Juliana Voloshin in Sacramento, Cal., in 1942; Myrtle Wheeler Deering in San Francisco in 1943; Josephine Bergman in Burlingame, Cal., last Easter and, finally, Mrs. Crenshaw—"the sweetest of the lot."

Wills Goods to No. 8.

"My only regret is the disgrace I am causing Mrs. Crenshaw," said Van Wie. "She was the only one I really loved. We were so happy."

Two weeks after marrying Mrs. Crenshaw, he was served with a divorce summons filed by wife No. 4 in Nevada and he ran away to Los Angeles. In his pocket when he was arrested was a will, leaving all his possessions to wife No. 8.

"I know I have done wrong, but I don't care what they do now," said Van Wie, as he left with officers for San Francisco.

COAT STOLEN FROM AUTO.

An overcoat was taken from the car of H. M. Hoffman, 4707 Congress st., yesterday while parked in the 400 block on N. Dearborn st., he told police.

Remembers 6 Wives

(Story in adjoining column.)

"Mrs. Baxter's daughter will sit up with the baby some evening if we can find a nice young man to sit up with her!"

Francis Van Wie carries belongings in a barracks bag on departure yesterday from hall of justice in Los Angeles, Cal., after his arrest on bigamy charges.

Woman Routs Assault;

Robbed and Clothing Torn

Mrs. Mary Spencer, 39, of 1550 E. 63d st., told police yesterday that she was robbed of her purse and $45 by a Negro who seized her as she was walking along the lake front at Oakwood blvd. and tore her clothing in an attempt to rape her. Her cries caused her assailant to release her.

WIDOW, 70, FOUND DEAD.

The frozen body of Mrs. Cella Miller, 70, a pensioned widow, was discovered in a coal bin in front of her home at 3601 S. Throop st. yesterday. She died of natural causes.

WHY PHILIP MORRIS ARE HARDER TO GET!

THE War Department has recently called for greatly increased shipments of PHILIP MORRIS Cigarettes—to our Armed Forces in the various war theatres throughout the world. This inevitably results in a further shortage of PHILIP MORRIS for civilian consumption.

We genuinely regret, therefore, that you must sometimes do without PHILIP MORRIS—we also know that you would never want our fighting sons or daughters deprived of the extra relaxation and enjoyment they get from their PHILIP MORRIS Cigarettes. We trust, further, that the shortage here at home will be only temporary... so we ask you to be patient—your dealer will have PHILIP MORRIS today or tomorrow—so keep on asking until he gets his new supply.

No curative power is claimed for PHILIP MORRIS—but this is the cigarette scientifically proved less irritating to the nose and throat!

FORESEE BATTLE OVER ELLIOTT'S RISE TO GENERAL

Senate Must Pass on the
F. D. R. Proposal.

for the air staff in charge of personnel in Washington with the rank of major general, only a grade above that proposed for Elliott.

In 1941 Elliott was stationed at an army base in Newfoundland. It was disclosed at the time that he was able to arrange his duties so as to spend weekends with his family at Swampscott, Mass. He also turned up, by what was said to be chance, at the Roosevelt-Churchill Atlantic conference, which produced the non-existent Atlantic Charter.

In 1942 it was disclosed that Elliott had been made a major in a dispatch which reported Maj. Elliott Roosevelt had spent 10 days at Cairo. The army then confirmed the appointment.

Rises to Colonel.

Five months later—on Aug. 6, 1942—Elliott was made a lieutenant colonel. He took the oath in a hospital bed in Dayton, O., where he was confined with a knee injury. The injury was not sustained in action.

This visit and other home visits of Elliott and the other Roosevelt sons provoked congressional criticism that they were being jerked from battle fronts for visits home when other American boys were without special favor.

In a letter from the African front to his congressman, Rep. Lanham (D., Tex.), Elliott protested against such criticism aimed at men "who are fighting for their country," because "they can't answer back." In the letter, which was read to the house March 5, 1943, Elliott urged Republicans and Democrats to get together and win the war. He concluded by saying he was tired and that all he wanted is "to go home and live in peace on my ranch with my family."

Divorced by Second Wife.

In the same month he was promoted to the grade of colonel commanding a photographic unit. A year later he was divorced by his second wife, a Texan, and began dismantling his ranch near Fort Worth, Tex.

Last December Elliott, again on leave home, married Faye Emerson, blond movie actress, on the brink of Grand Canyon. Guests at the spectacular ceremony were brought by plane.

Elliott threatens to surpass in rank his eldest brother, James, 37, who began the war as a marine captain and won three promotions to colonel. The third son, Franklin, 31, began as an ensign and also drew three promotions to lieutenant commander. The fourth son, John, 25, has won two promotions from ensign to lieutenant, senior grade.

McAULIFFE, WHO SAID 'NUTS' TO NAZIS, PROMOTED

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, 46, who retorted with a defiant "nuts" to a German surrender ultimatum at Bastogne, Belgium, was nominated today for promotion to major general.

McAuliffe, of Washington, D. C., is deputy commander of the 101st airborne division. President Roosevelt also sent to the senate the nominations of three major generals to three star rank—Gen. Wedemeyer, chief of staff to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek; Gen. Gerow, 5th corps commander in France; and Gen. Simpson, commanding general, 9th army, western front. Simpson earlier had been promoted to the rank of lieutenant general because of his position, a still undisclosed command. Today's nomination is a result of his present assignment.

Among those promoted to the rank of brigadier general are Hammond Birks, Charles Palmer, John Gerhart, and Max Schneider, all of Chicago, and Thomas Catron II, of Fort Sheridan, Ill.

HEAR SINKIANG REBELS BATTLE CHINESE RULE

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 25.—Violent opposition to Chinese rule has broken out at several places in the central Asian province of Sinkiang, according to authenticated reports reaching here. Fierce battles between Turki groups and Chinese troops have been fought and trouble continues between the tribesmen of northeastern Sinkiang and the Chinese. The population of Sinkiang is predominantly Turki, and many Turki have never become reconciled to Chinese domination. Opposition has been particularly evident in the Ili valley, where organized Turki attacks have been made on the Chinese. The Chinese are mobilizing all the forces they can muster and many civilians are being conscripted into the army.

The Russians dominated Sinkiang politically for many years although it was nominally responsible to Chungking. The Russians withdrew in 1943 and Chungking instituted a new regime.

SON OF 2 EMPLOYEES OF TRIBUNE WOUNDED IN BATTLE IN BELGIUM

Pvt. William Lundberg, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Lundberg, 435 Birch st., Winnetka, is recovering in England from shrapnel wounds in the abdomen suffered Dec. 28 in the battle of the Belgium bulge. His parents received a letter from him yesterday. His mother, who writes under the name of Eleanor Jewett, is art critic for THE TRIBUNE, and his father is a Tribune color photographer. He was a student at St. John's college, Annapolis, Md., when he entered the army about two years ago, and he has been overseas three months.

SGT. HANRAHAN NAMED HEAD OF ROBBERY DETAIL

Sgt. John (Jack) Hanrahan, a Chicago detective for the last 22 years who has been credited with having unraveled many crimes, was appointed last night as head of the robbery detail at police headquarters.

Chief of Detectives Walter Storms selected Sgt. Hanrahan as successor to Capt. Kyran V. Phelan Jr., who was appointed commander of the Chicago av. district station. A high police official said Sgt. Hanrahan, a member of the force for 25 years, is "one of Chicago's best detectives." He has become widely known in police circles as an investigator who obtained confessions by sheer persuasion. Sgt. Hanrahan has been especially noted for his investigations of the Polka Dot and Friday night robber gangs. He is a widower and has one son.

CHARGES JEWISH BOYS BEATEN AT AMUNDSEN GAME

Efforts were being made by Summerdale police last night to learn the identity of several Amundsen High school students who beat up about 20 Jewish students from Von Steuben High following a basketball game last Friday. Five youths were beaten severely, one suffering a broken nose, police said.

Capt. John L. Sullivan yesterday addressed a written request to William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, asking that he be given a gallery of photographs of the Amundsen students so the victims could identify their assailants. L. Day Perry, principal of the school, previously refused to surrender the file.

Charges 2 Attacked Inside School.

Police investigation was started at the complaint of Ira Latimer, secretary of the Civil Liberties league, who charged that two of the Von Steuben students had been attacked inside the Amundsen school while two policemen and several members of the Amundsen faculty looked on. He also charged that during the game, which Von Steuben won, 47-46, rooters for the losing team interpreted their cheering with anti-Jewish yells and boos. Latimer said the two students attacked in the hallway of the school by a dozen rivals are Jerry Coren, 14, of 4850 N. Albany av., kicked in the groin, and Burton Stitzberg, 17, of 3039 Alnlee st., who suffered a fractured nose.

March with Teachers to Buses.

Many who left the gymnasium were assaulted on the street, Latimer said. They include Stanford Zucker, 15, of 3143 Alnlee st.; Ben Michaels, 16, of 4950 N. Harding av., and Howard Soboroff, 17, of 4733 N. Troy av. Most of them suffered blackened eyes, he said.

Most of the visiting Von Steuben students remained in the gym until the game was finished and then marched under supervision of their teachers to waiting buses.

Capt. Sullivan said his investigation failed to substantiate the charge that his policemen merely looked on during the melee.

MRS. BERNICE FANELLI.

Mrs. Bernice Fanelli, 29, who complained that her husband, Robert, 57, of 4507 Washington blvd., a waiter, wanted her to "dress like a dowager of 50," was granted a divorce yesterday by Judge Michael Feinberg in Circuit court on the ground of cruelty.

"He wanted me to wear somber clothes, and to act twice my age," said Mrs. Fanelli, represented by Attorneys Joseph H. and Norman Becker. The Fanellis were married Dec. 17, 1938, and separated last May 23.

Fanelli, who used to be in vaudeville, stepped to the bench with his hat in hand and asked the judge to suspend "for just a minute" an injunction restraining him from speaking to Mrs. Fanelli. Judge Feinberg consented.

Fanelli turned toward his ex-wife, smiled, and said: "Good-by."

BRONZE STARS ARE WON BY TWO CHICAGO HEROES

Sgt. Stephen S. Spera, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Spera, 2846 Arthington st., and Pvt. Walter R. Staskiewicz, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Staskiewicz, 5620 S. Artesian av., both infantrymen, have been awarded bronze stars for heroic action, the war department disclosed yesterday.

Spera served in Iceland and the Guadalcanal, Bougainville, and other Pacific battles during 31 months overseas. He is now at Camp Ellis, Staskiewicz, now serving in Italy, volunteered before the United States entered the war and has been overseas 13 months. He was in the African campaign.

Sgt. Jack Burke, 10227 Oakley av., is in Letterman General hospital, San Francisco, recovering from an arm wound received in the Leyte invasion in the Philippines, the war department reported.

NO CIGARETS, SO WHY GIVE CARD, DRUGGIST SAYS

Because they can't get the cigarettes to supply their customers, Chicago druggists generally are not using the cigarette rationing card system devised by the National Association of Tobacco Distributors, John M. Meyers, executive secretary of the Chicago Retail Druggists association, said yesterday. Pointing out that the supply of cigarettes is being reduced again this month, Myers said, "Dealers can't get cigarettes to supply the trade, and it makes dissatisfied customers to give out cards when you can't furnish the cigarettes."

THIS IS THE 32ND OF A SERIES

REDEDICATION an obligation to our Fighting Men

DURING the last few weeks we have been fighting upward. That is true of both the 1945 requirements to meet the needs of a two-theatre war, and of requirements for the Pacific war once the European phase is ended. For this upward revision four chief reasons are responsible:

1. Europe battle experience has shown markedly greater use of expendable munitions than was provided in the formulae upon which our original production schedules were calculated: the result has been a depletion of inventories on a scale that would become dangerous if allowed to continue.

2. Experience also has demonstrated the need for new types of weapons or increased complements of some existing types to match new enemy equipment or tactics.

3. A less easy optimism as to the early ending of the European war has given rise to a growing disinclination to gamble on the approximate date.

4. An increasing conviction prevails that the war against Japan may require ground-armed operations on the Asiatic mainland on a scale greater than originally premised.

Future changes in the fortunes and outlook of war may cause requirements to be revised downward again. But unless and until that happens, we have a clear duty to provide what we are told is needed.

What then is the production task with which we are charged? In over-all terms 1945 requirements show no important increase over the levels reached at the end of 1944.

But three factors combine to make the job a difficult one. First, with the program for nearly half of the requirement items declining, the rising schedules climb so steeply that a considerable shift of workers and facilities will be needed. Second, in addition to this shift between establishments, the recruitment needs of the armed services will make an important draft upon war workers, and where these are taken from expanding war industries, they must be replaced by workers drawn from less essential activities. Third, many munitions items are needed in as great quantity as can be produced in the first half of 1945, so that production from January through June should be higher than from July through December.

The adjustments called for come at a stage when shifts are difficult to make. Since they must be made, voluntary accommodation will save us from much otherwise necessary government regulation. The more we police ourselves, the less we shall be policed.

Today, those forward estimates have been revised sharply upward. That is true of both the 1945 requirements to meet the needs of a two-theatre war, and of requirements for the Pacific war once the European phase is ended. For this upward revision four chief reasons are responsible:

1. Europe battle experience has shown markedly greater use of expendable munitions than was provided in the formulae upon which our original production schedules were calculated: the result has been a depletion of inventories on a scale that would become dangerous if allowed to continue.

2. Experience also has demonstrated the need for new types of weapons or increased complements of some existing types to match new enemy equipment or tactics.

3. A less easy optimism as to the early ending of the European war has given rise to a growing disinclination to gamble on the approximate date.

4. An increasing conviction prevails that the war against Japan may require ground-armed operations on the Asiatic mainland on a scale greater than originally premised.

Future changes in the fortunes and outlook of war may cause requirements to be revised downward again. But unless and until that happens, we have a clear duty to provide what we are told is needed.

What then is the production task with which we are charged? In over-all terms 1945 requirements show no important increase over the levels reached at the end of 1944.

But three factors combine to make the job a difficult one. First, with the program for nearly half of the requirement items declining, the rising schedules climb so steeply that a considerable shift of workers and facilities will be needed. Second, in addition to this shift between establishments, the recruitment needs of the armed services will make an important draft upon war workers, and where these are taken from expanding war industries, they must be replaced by workers drawn from less essential activities. Third, many munitions items are needed in as great quantity as can be produced in the first half of 1945, so that production from January through June should be higher than from July through December.

The adjustments called for come at a stage when shifts are difficult to make. Since they must be made, voluntary accommodation will save us from much otherwise necessary government regulation. The more we police ourselves, the less we shall be policed.

20 percent from the $89 billions spent in 1944. Reduction in munitions output would be somewhat greater, probably from 25 to 30 percent below 1944 levels. But it is important for us to acknowledge that the reduction is going to be substantially less than the 40 percent previously estimated.

Actually the newly augmented requirements would represent an increase of little more than 50 percent above what now is being produced for the Pacific area. This, certainly, is a modest estimate when we reflect that we shall inevitably more than triple the Army forces assigned to that theatre.

Such a program probably would give us a current munitions supply from three to four times that produced by Japan, but it is believed that we shall need that much to compensate for the advantages derived by Japan from the fact that she will be fighting a defensive war, from the volume of her accumulated stores, from her prepared positions, her shorter lines of supply and transport, and from her large troop reserves the bulk of which we have yet to meet in battle. Certainly our present 3 to 1 production edge over Germany does not appear to be excessive.

In short, we face for the immediate future a difficult production job. It is made the more formidable by the fact that we had dulled the keen edge of our will to produce by our premature expectation of a reduction in requirements.

Now we are told that the trend of war production for the immediate future is up, that it is unsafe to discount the date of victory in Europe, and that the amount of leeway for reconversion, after the defeat of Germany is less than had been anticipated.

Accordingly, we must rededicate ourselves to the task of increasing war production. We must do without some of the things that we have enjoyed on the civilian front rather than demand more of those things; we have still to devote our abilities and energies first and foremost to the demands of war.

Whatever will assure and hasten victory must have first place in any statement of American policy.

Without victory, our aims, and the underlying values upon which they are based, will be extinguished, blotted out by the opposing aims and values proclaimed by our enemies.

The needs of our fighting men must be put first. For, unless we win the war, the National aims and policies of the United States will cease to have meaning in the world.

SCHOOL BOARD CHANGES.

A bill has been introduced in the house at Springfield to change the method of selecting Chicago's school board members. At present they are appointed by the mayor, subject to approval by the city council. The bill proposes that the legislature divide the city into five districts, each of which would elect two members to eight year terms. The eleventh member would be chosen by the city at large for a four year term.

There is a lot that's wrong with the Chicago school system and no doubt a superior set of school trustees could correct many present abuses. There is, however, no slightest reason to suspect that the reorganization outlined in the bill would produce such a board. The chances are all in the other direction.

At present the trustees are chosen by the mayor and everybody holds him responsible for them and their acts. Under the proposed system, the members would still be selected by the mayor because he is the head of the dominant political organization in the community, but he would be spared accountability for their shortcomings. He could always say, with some truth, that if mistakes were made the voters must bear the blame for them.

By and large, Chicago's mayors have been sensitive to criticism of school management precisely because the responsibility leads directly to the mayor's office. Under the proposed system, the school board would get to look more and more like the county board. Politically speaking, the school trustees would be far more valuable to the machine than places on the county board because the schools collect and spend each year about as much as the city government does and three or four times as much as the county does.

The state of our schools does suggest that there are grave defects in the present method of governing them. The cure might lie in permitting each neighborhood to elect trustees for its school, just as is done in the suburbs. There, despite generally lower rates of pay for teachers and miserably pension provisions, the schools appear to be doing a better educational job than is being done in comparable neighborhoods within the city.

There will always be need for a central school board to divide the city's school revenues equally on a per capita basis and to choose a superintendent who will establish standards of accomplishment for the various grades and salary scales and standards of training for principals and teachers. The downtown board would also run the high schools. There is, however, no reason why each neighborhood should not elect the board for its elementary school by popular vote, and no reason why each board should not be free to select its principal and its teachers from an eligible list or in some other satisfactory manner, subject to rules of tenure.

There is no doubt that if this were done some schools would enjoy far better management than at present and, if the complaints about recent Chicago school boards are even half true, there would be few schools which would be worse governed than they now are.

Competition between school boards would be a wholesome influence, as competition between suburban school boards has been beneficial. More than that, those parents and teachers who are dissatisfied with present conditions in Chicago's school system would at last be in a position to do something about it. As matters stand, there is little that they can do beyond organizing undignified and generally ineffective demonstrations at the school board rooms or the mayor's office. The protests would be far more effective if they were made to trustees who were neighbors, who knew at least as much about the matter of complaint as those who were doing the complaining, and who would have to listen and answer if they wished to retain their standing in the community.

THE FLAG IS NOT AN IDOL.

The national flag code committee has sent a letter to Mr. Roosevelt protesting against the display of the flag below the platform on which Mr. Roosevelt took the oath of office. The committee thinks that Mr. Roosevelt "humiliated" and "disgraced" the flag by standing above it. Somebody around the White House should have known better, the committee says, particularly in view of the fact that army and navy regulations about the display of the flag are explicit.

All of which is pretty silly. Mr. Roosevelt could have meant no disrespect. The committee evidently shares with Jehovah's Witnesses the opinion that the flag is an idol. On that assumption the Witnesses refuse to salute it; on much the same assumption the committee insists that it be shown respect according to prescribed ceremonial forms.

Over the years the various flag committees have done a modestly useful work in publicizing the accepted methods of displaying the national emblem. Most people are glad to learn what are the seemly and decorous ways of doing it, but the flag is not an idol and it is not an object of worship. In the absence of clear evidence to the contrary, it can always be presumed that those who display the flag are doing so respectfully, and that's all that really matters. The rest is flagolatry.

ELLIOTT'S PROMOTION.

President Roosevelt has nominated his son, Col. Elliott Roosevelt, for a brigadier generalship in the army air corps.

We are reminded of the remark attributed to a member of parliament who was discussing the rapid rise in politics of Mr. Churchill's son-in-law, Duncan Sandys. Said the M. P.:

"Not since the late Roman empire has the world seen so clear a case of the reward of true merit."

TEACHING WILLIE HOW TO SNOOP.

Little Willie, who goes to school in Princeton, N. J., is coming home to lunch these days and asking mama what she paid for the hamburger and the butter. He enters the information on a blank furnished by teacher, takes it back to school, and compares the prices mama paid with the official OPA ceiling prices posted at the schoolhouse. Little Willie is doing part of his homework. It's a project.

This particular project was thought up by some consecrated idiot in the regional OPA office in New York. Little Willie and his Princeton classmates are guinea pigs. The scheme may be extended later. For any one to conceive such a plan it would be necessary to regard children as the property of the state, to be used, in this instance, for propaganda purposes.

The OPA says that children won't be asked to report violations. That, however, may come later. It is all that is lacking from the plan to put Princeton youngsters on a par with the Young Communists and the Hitler Jugend, who are required to denounce their parents for any deviations from the party line.

REFINEMENTS OF PEACE.

If the problem of restoring independence to eastern Poland or the Baltic states ever arises at one of Mr. Roosevelt's overseas conferences or before a new league of nations or anywhere else, as now seems unlikely, the Russians will have a pat answer. All they need do is inquire: To whom are you going to restore it?

They have seen to it that no "anti-soviet or socially alien" elements are left behind in the occupied lands once the Red army moves on. Those who cherished liberty have been transported either to the lumber and mining camps of Siberia or to the brick yards and cooperative farms of Kazakhstan. Some of them, of course, have died en route in overcrowded cattle cars, and others never got to make the trip. Firing squads disposed of them.

This technique of dealing with occupied countries was first brought to light by the Lithuanian Red Cross after the Russian occupation of 1940. Whole classes of the citizenry were marked down for "digestion and liquidation," and the orders of the N. V. K. D. secret police and the lists of deportees have been published by the Lithuanian American Information center and by the Institute for Russian Studies of the Rand School of Social Science in New York. By consulting one of these lists, the former American ambassador to Russia, Adm. Standley, was able to rescue Dr. M. Devenis, an American citizen of Lithuanian origin, from a camp in the Urals.

The technique of transporting dissidents from occupied countries is termed "social engineering" by the Russians. W. L. White, Kansas editor, recently discussed it in reporting on his trip thru Russia with Eric Johnson, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce. "Communists," he said, "recognize that in newly occupied areas many individuals cannot adapt themselves to the soviet system. Least likely to adapt themselves are those individuals who have functioned successfully under the preceding regime. The soviet blacklist includes all who have held positions of trust in the former state—public officials, government employees, local police and, of course, large landowners, as well as conspicuously successful manufacturers, merchants, and farmers. Prominent on the list are officials of trade unions. All these leaders are arrested for deportation immediately; the smaller fry are rounded up at a more leisurely rate."

Only infrequently, said Mr. White, are any of these people shot, for social engineering is a science and hate is unscientific and shooting wasteful. The solution is to sentence them to 10 years in a soviet labor camp.

Mr. White estimated that a million and a half civilians, in addition to 180,000 Polish prisoners of war, were sent in boxcars from Poland in the early part of 1940 to places of detention hundreds of miles from their homes. There were two small, high, barred windows in each boxcar; a stove, and a hole cut in the floor for a toilet. Thirty to 40 persons were jammed in each car.

"It is also an axiom of social engineering," he continued, "to separate families, not as an act of needless cruelty but because men are suited for stronger, more rugged work than are their wives and daughters. It was the practice to send men to lumber and mining camps in northern Siberia, women and children to brick yards and cooperative farms in southern Kazakhstan."

White says when the car doors were opened, it was nearly always necessary to remove a number of bodies of those who had died from general weakness induced by thirst or cold, but this was not deliberate; the soviet government under similar circumstances has treated its own people exactly the same way. Sympathy doesn't fit in with the "science" of social engineering.

The first World War was bloody and callous enough in its own right, but at least the populations which survived were left in their own homes in their own lands, and a beaten Russia, without the advances in bolshevism thought such as are represented in social engineering, could molest them no more than could a Germany toppling into defeat. It was simple enough for the peacemakers to assemble, decree self-determination, and start drawing new boundaries on the maps.

This time the refinements of cruelty to be achieved in the peace will almost surpass those resulting from the war. The cruelty and cynicism of statesmen who will call this peace should class them for history with the "social engineers."

HINDENBURG HOUSE.

The Russian capture of the Hindenburg estate and castle of Neudeck in East Prussia caused us to turn to Konrad Heiden's "Der Fuehrer," which appears to be an authoritative account of German politics between the world wars, in search of an inside story. We found that Reuter's dispatch from London, Jan. 24, giving the background, was not in the center of the target.

Altho an East Prussian Junker by birth, Hindenburg had no land holdings in the province, and came to the presidency of the German republic with only the meager savings from his career as a professional soldier. An estate formerly owned by his family came upon the market, and a Junker named Von Oldenburg-Januschau saw an opportunity to tie the chief of state more closely to the agricultural economy and class interests of East Prussia. He raised a fund among the Junkers, and a few outside industrialists chipped in. The farm and its old manor house was presented to Hindenburg on his 80th birthday (Oct. 2, 1927) as a gift from the Stahlhelm, a veterans' organization often in violent opposition to Hitler's Brown Shirts. To dodge inheritance taxes, Hindenburg's son Oskar was recorded as owner.

Of these Junkers and their estates, so often mentioned in the American press, Heiden gives this picture:

"Most of them lived in a barren region, extending from the banks of the Elbe to the eastern borders of the reich. The soil is full of clay and gravel, its chief products rye and potatoes. The land cannot support a population of small farmers; only large scale farming, with large, unpopulated areas planted to rye, potatoes, and beets, can hope to maintain itself. . . . The holdings of the Junkers are in the main no giant estates, but farms of 700 to 1,200 acres."

This country knows something about "the gentle rain of checks" from public funds for distressed agriculturists. The military caste of East Prussian squires has been nourished by such political benevolence for generations.

THE IMMORTALS.

Now in this world-night of the soul
Who dares to say that you are gone,
When by each lost and lone
Your phantom-leet go marching on?
The battle-rum and ocean-lost,
You are the victors, not the lost!

Alas, that we in grief forget
That you, O bright immortal dead,
Beside the waves are marching yet
With solemn and triumphant tread.
'Tis we who draw the feeble breath,
Not you—victorious in death!

Not you who march beside the graves
Where we may think you lie,
While many a wind of glory waves
Your banner in the blaring sky!
Not you who watch forevermore
Wake Island and Corregidor!

'Tis we—not you—for whom the tears
Of God's compassion now may fall.
Be with us when our puny fears
Hold back the dawn. To you we call.
O mighty dead! Sustain us yet.
'Tis but the living who forget.

Why Waiters Have Fits.

"I have a plan," spoke up Mazie, the breezy cashier.

"It won't work," groaned Pierre, holding his head.

"We'll ration waiters," continued Mazie. "I got the idea from the tobacco trade. Print cards saying, 'This entitles the holder to waiter service.' Give each of our waiters 10 cards and 10 bundles of 10 cards. Have them distribute one card and one bundle to each of 10 guests. Tell each guest to distribute his 10 cards to 10 other guests. See! Seven waiters times 10 cards is 70 guests; times 10 is 700 reservations, every one with a card entitling him to a waiter."

"But," moaned Pierre, "where do I get the waiters?"

"Go on. Try it!" commanded Mazie. "Are you mouse or mastiff? You'll get the waiters the same place the tobacco merchants get the cigars."

You would be classed as a childless widow and be entitled to receive not in excess of $1,000 of income from all sources to qualify for a pension because the child was not a member of the household at the time of the veteran's death.

L. E. F. asks: "Is there a 'temporary total disability' rating for veterans of this war? I've been discharged from service because of a service connected ailment which will prevent me from working for at least six months more, and until I report for work to qualify for unemployment compensation, I will be without funds unless and until I can get compensation from the government."

If your ailment is adjudged "service connected" you may be awarded what might be termed a "convalescent rating" ranging from $10 to $100 a month. This rating is paid until the veteran can be permanently rated or discharged.

ELEPHANTIASIS—OBSTRUCTED LYMPH CHANNELS.

THERE is reason to hope that the elephantiasis among our soldiers serving in the South seas. At any rate, every possible precaution is being taken against infestation.

What is the disease and what does it do? Primarily, the skin and the tissues which lie immediately underneath are first attacked. The leg, for example, may become enormously swollen and grotesque, resembling the old-fashioned carved support of a grand piano. The chief cause is a parasite (Filaria bancrofti). The female is from two to four inches in length and appears much like an ordinary bit of catgut.

How do these "varmints" invade the system? The mosquito known as "Culex fatigans" (and perhaps other varieties) is the transmitter. The insect sucks the blood of an infected person, whereupon the worms enter its stomach, passing later to the muscles. After 12 days, they undergo a complete change with the production of young, which migrate to the bit of the pest.

Thru the puncture wound of a bite, they reach the circulation of an innocent victim. When they pass into the lymph channels, these immature forms develop into adults, where they obstruct the flow of lymph to such an extent that the parts enlarge until they resemble the gnarled trunk of a tree. In human beings, while the legs are more commonly affected, the arms, the breasts, and other structures may be hugely distorted. As the malady progresses, the skin thickens and hardens, falls into numerous folds, and may be adorned with wartlike projections.

As we would expect, this ailment has long been known. Ancient writers described it, particularly along the Mediterranean, and even modern surgeons are aware that subsequent to amputation of a breast considerable puffing of the arm may follow.

The important question is, can anything be done? For the acute phase, injection of salts of antimony directly into a vein over long periods of time may be helpful. It should be recalled, however, that this chemical is toxic and must be employed with caution.

Within recent years, surgery has proved reasonably satisfactory. To excise all the patient is obliged to excrete all the water which he does not absolutely need. Every drop of inflammation is treated until the healing occurs. Thereafter, cuts are made in the epidermis, which are kept open by means of wet gauze soaked in a mild antiseptic solution. The second stage in the management is designed to establish new lymphatic conduits in order to drain away the stagnating fluid. This procedure consists in introducing short lengths of silk thread beneath the skin. Incisions are closed and sulfonamide powder is applied.

Nature then comes to the rescue. More often than not, substituent ducts will be created which carry back into the system the excess secretion. Needless to say, many lacerations may be required. But the net result is the restoration of the limb to normal, or practically so, with good functioning of the muscles.

In a recent article on left handedness, I referred to the "port" side as the "right," and the "starboard" as the left. My misdeed must have been brought to the attention of the grand jury because several lawyers among my correspondents have indicted me. The Box Car Sermon.

The 720th railway operating battalion was somewhere behind the lines somewhere in Europe, and what happened. Sgt. John Rice of Los Angeles writes, was something he would not have believed had he not been there. The chaplain had been taken to the hospital, ill, a church service for the Sunday before Christmas [Christmas eve] already had been announced in a bulletin to various detachments of the group, and the entire outfit was upset.

The service might have been skipped. The day might have gone along like any other day in the week or year, but the men would not have it. They held a mass meeting in the box car used as barracks, and Corp. Dick Cullen of Baltimore, who had been acting as the chaplain's assistant, went to work to find a substitute. Sgt. Rice continues:

"The pleadings of Dick to get some one to read the Scripture were enough to tear your heart. 'How do you spell Bethlehem?' some one asked. 'Hell, don't spell it! Just say it!' one of the brighter members suggested. 'Do we take up a collection?' asked Corp. Ray Althoff of Birmingham, Ill.

"Then some one said why not ask the major [Maj. William H. Roberts of Chicago] to pinch hit. A delegation was sent to him and he consented wholeheartedly, the plan in his eye making us think he was tickled pink with the opportunity to exercise his former membership in the Salvation Army. News that he was to be the speaker spread like wildfire."

"The next morning, glancing around the chapel, which had been converted from a captured German baggage car, I noticed faces that heretofore had never blessed the inside of a church. The majority of our cooks were there, the entire motor pool, and three of our four first lieutenants. Brother, when you get those guys inside a church something is bound to give."

"Around me was one of the toughest, crustiest sinners' gang of men I've seen for some time, all bent in single worship."

"The chaplain's assistant, his knees shaking like castanets, opened the meeting with 'O, Come All Ye Faithful,' which I later learned was the only one to which he knew the tune. This was followed by a few more familiar carols. Then Corp. Bob [Curly] Marz of Southgate, Ky.—we call him Curly because he has the best head of skin in the battalion—led the entire congregation in prayer. I don't know how he did it, but it was the most beautiful prayer I have heard since I was a tiny boy and my mother knelt beside my bed."

"We sang 'Silent Night' and 'Noel,' and then a hush fell over the car as though, rugged Master Sgt. Howard Hosenbein of Chicago got up and read the Scripture with an eloquence that would have put a Methodist circuit rider to shame. I sat there with my mouth open. I thought I knew this sergeant as the type that would kick a little kid and feel good about it. My former opinions were falling a dime a dozen, and the next time I pass him, I'll smile."

"Then the major took over. He made a wonderful talk, and I'll be willing to bet a lot of fellows are going to be writing home who have neglected that privilege."

And the meeting broke up and the men went about their work, but from the scraps of conversation I heard I was convinced they were different men inside. . . .

This I tried by getting in the middle of the street and stopping the first car, telling the driver the child was hit by an auto I begged him to take him to a hospital quickly. This motorist replied, "Can't take him," and went on his way. I stopped another one and he said, "Call the cops, that's their job." The third one looked at me and drove away. Finally we took the still form to the fire station at the corner, where police were called. After about 15 minutes or more the men there told me to go because there was nothing more to see, altho the boy still was not breathing. I walked out amid the cries of the mother to do something for her boy, and of the little brother who was crying as he held his mother. Three or four cars stood outside the fire station and Cook County hospital is a couple of minutes ride from there. The boy never regained consciousness and died a couple of hours after being admitted.

16 LIEUTENANTS MADE CAPTAINS; SIX ARE SHIFTED

Top Rankers in Police Test Promoted.

BY EDWARD SCHREIBER.

The long awaited promotion of 16 police lieutenants who topped the captains' eligibility list after an examination was made yesterday by Commissioner Allman in a brief ceremony in the city hall. The promotion was followed by a transfer order in which six of the new captains were given new assignments. The others, with the exception of Matthew J. Murphy, who is on leave for military duty, will stay in their present posts, but with the higher ranking and pay.

Those transferred and their old and new posts are: Michael L. Spatz, East Chicago av. to East Side; John J. Enright, chief of Mayor Kelly's bodyguards, to Grand Crossing; Redmond P. Gibbons, motorcycle division, to Graham; Andrew Aitkin, detective bureau to Marquette; Thomas A. Kelly, state's attorney's office to Albany Park; Kyran V. Phelan Jr., detective bureau to East Chicago av. Three other police officials were named in the order. They are Capt. Patrick Crotty, South Chicago to Kensington; Capt. Frank J. Malone, Marquette to Burnside; and Lt. John J. Walsh, Cragin, to South Chicago, as acting captain.

Capt. Murphy in Australia.

Others who were promoted but who retain their present assignments, at least temporarily, are Michael J. Ahern, Rogers Park; Jerome C. Looney, Warren av.; John T. Warren, 610 George Street, Chicago; Louis A. Capparelli, Maxwell st.; Charles C. O'Regan, Chicago Lawn; John T. O'Malley, Shakespeare av.; Joseph T. Graney, Des Plaines st.; George T. Barnes, head of the labor detail, and William M. Doyle, Pekin Inn station. Only 14 of the captains were in Allman's office to receive their stars. Besides Murphy, who is a captain of military police in Australia, Doyle was not able to appear, and the oath was administered to him by Department Secretary James McSweeney in the Little Company of Mary hospital, where Doyle is recovering from a minor operation.

Promote 45 More Today.
Seventeen sergeants will be promoted to lieutenancies and 26 patrolmen will be made sergeants today in ceremonies originally scheduled for yesterday.

The promotions still left vacancies in the department for the possible reinstatement of six captains who were discharged by the civil service commission last summer for alleged laxity in enforcing gambling laws. City officials are appealing an order by Judge Joseph A. Graber of Superior court to return the six to their jobs.

Commissioner Allman congratulated the new captains. Then Mayor Kelly said:

"You are not just thief catchers, but enforcers of the law, the pick of the department, and you have earned your jobs. But don't be czars."

STATE PLANNING WIDER PROGRAM OF MEDICAL AID

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Springfield, Ill., Jan. 25.—The state probably will provide medical and hospital care under its aid to dependent children program in the near future, the governor said in a speech tonight before the annual meeting of the Illinois Hospital association. The state's goal, he said, is adequate care for every "medically indigent" person in the state.

"The hospital advisory committee of the public aid commission, working with medical authorities, has taken over the important task of formulating standards and procedures for the new medical and hospital care program for the aged and the blind, which went into effect Jan. 1 of this year," Gov. Green said.

"In the months ahead we may be able to assume responsibility from state funds for medical and hospital care under our aid to dependent children program.

"I expect, likewise, that township supervisors, now freed of the burden of meeting costs for the aged, the blind, and eventually dependent children, will be able to give added attention to developing facilities for the marginal income group."

STREET CAR MAN, BEATEN BY 40, IS IN HOSPITAL

Police yesterday were unable to question Edward Wiesinger, 34, of 1463 W. 73d st., a street car conductor, who was in Holy Cross hospital as a result of severe injuries received when he was beaten by a crowd of 40 Negroes when he refused to allow them to ride on invalid transfers. The crowd boarded the street car early yesterday at 63d st. and Cicero av. and Wiesinger refused to honor their transfers, which were several days old. Then, said the motorman, Joseph Coad, 32, 4951 S. Ashland av., Wiesinger was knocked down and trampled.

STATE TO HELP CITIES IN DRIVE ON DELINQUENCY

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Springfield, Ill., Jan. 25.—The state government will spearhead a campaign against juvenile delinquency, Gov. Green asserted today. He disclosed at a press conference that a staff of 46 state paid community workers will help downstate cities combat juvenile crime. Already the state has a staff of 25 working in the Chicago office of the delinquency prevention division. The governor said the legislature will be asked to appropriate $165,000 for the work during the next biennium.

Supt. Clifford R. Shaw of the delinquency prevention division has carried on several neighborhood experiments in Chicago, the governor said.

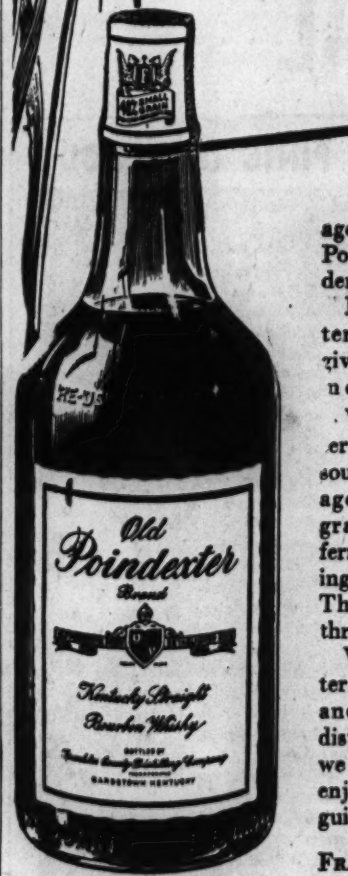

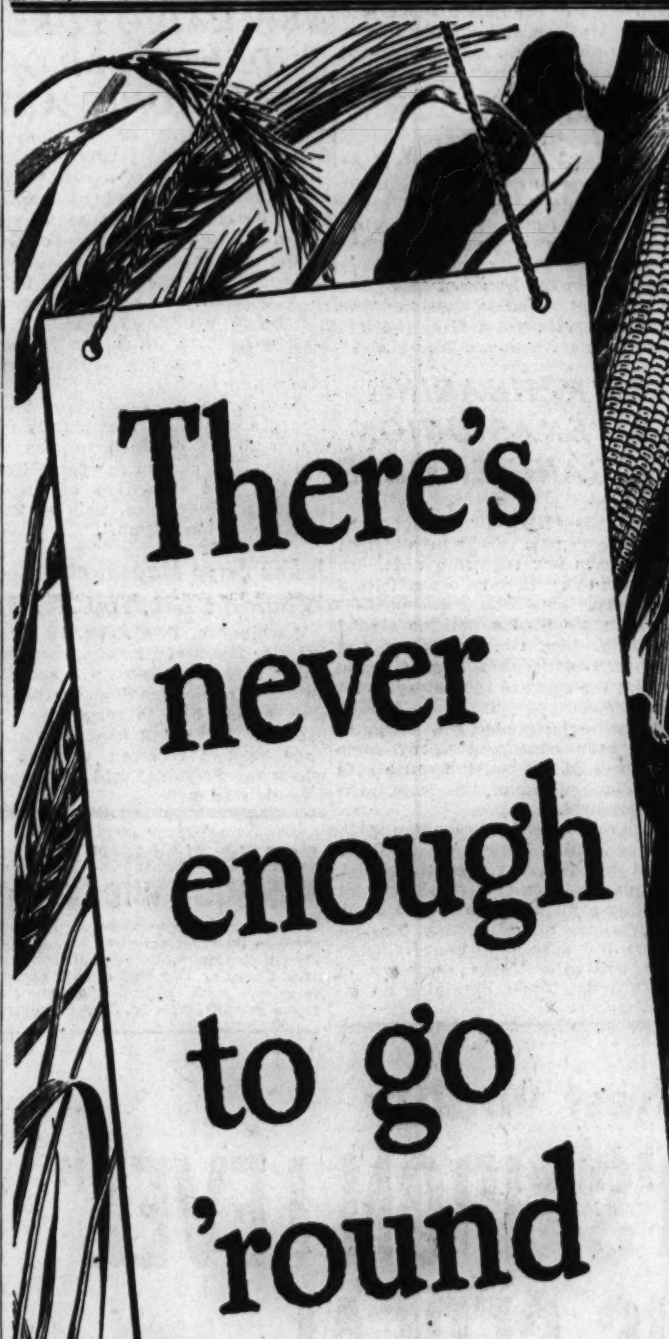

Downstate Illinois has been divided into six regions, with the community workers assigned on this basis: Rockford, 9; Peoria, 8; Springfield, 5; Champaign, 8; East St. Louis, 10; and Carbondale, 6.

E. B. FRED NAMED PRESIDENT OF U. OF WISCONSIN

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Madison, Wis., Jan. 25.—Edwin Brown Fred, a member of the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture faculty since 1913, and dean of the agricultural school since 1943, today was elected to the presidency of the university at a meeting of the board of regents. He will take office Feb. 15.

Fred succeeds Clarence A. Dykstra, who resigned to become provost of the University of California at Los Angeles. Dykstra was named university president in 1937 after the ouster of the late Glenn Frank.

A special regents' committee, headed by A. Matt Warner, Sheboygan, recommended Fred as 12th president of the university because of his standing as an "eminent scholar and educator of experience and attainment." He was chosen from a field of 40 candidates. The personnel committee emphasized that Fred "knows Wisconsin and its university."

J. R. REEVES, 65, TO QUIT INDIAN AFFAIRS OFFICE

John R. Reeves, 65, chief counsel for the office of Indian affairs, will retire Jan. 31 after nearly 40 years' service. He entered the service in 1906 as chief clerk at the old Sac and Fox Indian agency in Oklahoma. He later spent some time in the irrigation branch of the service and 15 years ago was appointed chief counsel. The Chicago office of the service will honor Reeves at a dinner tonight. He lives at 244 E. Pearson st.

WALLACE TELLS DREAMS; HITS BACK AT JONES

Has His Plans for World

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—Henry Wallace expounded his global schemes to the senate commerce committee today, and told how America fits into them.
The former Vice President told his story in his spectacular fight with Jesse Jones for Jones' dual job as secretary of commerce and head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.
And Wallace retaliated for the attack Jones made on him before the committee yesterday by urging that congress investigate the activities of RFC.

Jones Delegates Powers.
Meanwhile, Jones turned over all the powers of secretary of commerce and federal loan administrator to Wayne C. Taylor, assistant secretary of commerce, instructing Taylor to exercise all the functions of the two offices "until a new secretary has taken office."
However, Jones did not say he was resigning. Yesterday he told the senate commerce committee he intended to continue in office until his successor was confirmed by the senate.
Wallace, facing a stiff senate fight over his appointment by President Roosevelt to fill Jones' enormous shoes, replied to critics who have expressed fear that the former Vice President will use the vast powers of RFC to put his theories into practice if he gets the job.

Slashes at "Tycoons."
He said that precisely what he will do if congress doesn't stop him. Wallace, a laughing, joking witness in a plum colored suit, pictured himself as a friend of free enterprise. But his testimony rang with such phrases as these:
"Tycoons of American finance, giants of industry, spoiled darlings of government, greedy big business and vested rights."
He praised American progress and American ideals.

Pepper Leads Him On.
Yet he struck at his country for putting the pitiful "tycoon" belly of foreign nations after the las. war, and portrayed his nation as one too largely housed in "hovels."
Under friendly questioning by Sen. Pepper (D., Fla.), leading New Deal advocate of the committee, Wallace brought out an explanation of his "quart of milk for every citizen of the globe." It was born in a facetious remark to the wife of the former Russian ambassador here, Mrs. Maxim Litvinov, Wallace said.
Wallace's frequent allusions to having his plans "in a nutshell" brought frequent smiles during the hearing. But the pro-Wallace spectators' claque that crowded the hearing room to applaud his sallies did not participate.

Vote on Bill Today.
At the conclusion of the afternoon session, the committee decided unanimously to close the hearing and to meet in executive session tomorrow to vote on the bill. The hearing can be reopened by a majority vote of the committee. Sen. Pepper said he had additional witnesses to present, but was undecided tonight whether to move to reopen the hearing.
Sen. Bailey told reporters he hoped for early action on the George bill tomorrow so the committee could consider Wallace's nomination. "The committee has no right to pigeon-hole a nomination for cabinet office," he said.
If the committee votes against Wallace's confirmation, the nomination, under senate rules, still must be presented to the senate. The only way the senate can be kept from considering a Presidential nomination is for the President to withdraw it, and Bailey dryly remarked he anticipated no such action.

Outlines Rosy Plan.
Wallace told the committee, he hopes to assure prosperity for the nations of the world after the war and achieve global welfare thru a rosy utopian plan founded upon more money for every American.
The plan, so far as the United States is concerned, calls for the 60 million jobs which President Roosevelt has promised.
Wallace said his ideas would insure the jobs, but he left himself a loophole. Despite the assured success of his plans, he conceded, there will always be business "fluctuations."
When they come [he did not call them depression], the government should be ready to step in with a vast program of public works. He emphasized that this should not be regarded as relief work, and offered a proposal which political observers said would differentiate the public works, technically, from the old WPA projects.

Money from Government.
The government would supply the money, as under previous Roosevelt administration, but the work would be done by private enterprise under government contracts. The workers would enjoy prevailing wages.

TWO 'IDEAL CITIZENS' RECEIVE MEDALS FOR WORK IN BOYS' CLUBS

Anton Ciesielski, 2305 S. Troy st., a war worker at the Western Electric company, and Anthony Caspino, formerly of Chicago and now an economist in Washington, D. C., were given gold medal awards as "ideal citizens" yesterday by the United League of Nations Foundation for Boys' Clubs.

Anton Ciesielski.

Anthony Caspino.

Ciesielski was a member of the foundation's club No. 1 at 2157 W. 19th st. and Caspino was a member of club No. 2 at 524 N. Wolcott av. The medals were presented by Ferre C. Watkins, a trustee of the foundation, at its 25th annual meeting at the United League club.

Overton S. Chambers was elected president of the foundation, succeeding Lyman M. Drake Jr., William E. Hall of New York, president of the Boys' Club Federation of America, said the clubs have benefited 35,000 boys in 25 years and that 3,000 "graduates" are in military service.

Wallace struck directly at Jones and Jones' criticisms of him in summing up his aims.
"There are those," he said, "who say these goals are the dreams of a man willing to jeopardize the country's future with untried ideas and idealistic schemes." [Jones' hearing in referring to Wallace at the hearing yesterday.]
"These people think they are realists. Actually, they are the persons of limited vision and stunted imagination. These people are of the same breed as those sound business men who haggle over pennies in the purchase of strategic stock piles before the war, only to leave the materials for the Japs to use against us."

Wallace reiterated his determination to apply RFC to his schemes, if given its control, in calling for an investigation of the agency.
"I suggest," he said to the committee, "that congress appoint a committee to investigate the past activities of the RFC in order to determine whether or not the congress feels that the powers of the RFC have been administered in such a way as to do the most good for the American people."

Wallace painted an appalling picture of millions of homes, warned that a hovel isn't a home, and said that housing to free Americans from hovels and slums would create four million new jobs.
Wallace said public works should be undertaken when jobs fall below $7 million.

Wallace urged that wages be constantly increased, while hours are shortened, after the war, and said the time has come to "tackle" the question of a guaranteed annual minimum wage.
Despite the old pig killing program and the plowing under of crops in the days when he espoused the economy of scarcity, Wallace came out for farm production "expansion rather than curtailment."

Abhors "Spoiled Darlings."
Of business, he told the committee:
"No special class of business deserves to be the spoiled darling of government. The American people have no interest in preserving the vested interests and monopolistic privileges of greedy big business. We must protect free enterprise against monopolies and cartels thru continued vigorous enforcement of the anti-trust laws."

HOUSE IS TOLD WALLACE DEAL IS HILLMAN PAY OFF

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—Southern Democratic support in the house for the senate bill removing control of Reconstruction Finance corporation billions from the secretary of commerce was pledged today in a fiery speech by Rep. Gibson, (D., Ga.).

At the same time, house Republican support of the legislation was evidenced in the introduction of a bill identical to the senate measure by Rep. Baldwin, (R., N. Y.), member of the banking and currency committee.

Plutiful Spectacle.
Terming Henry A. Wallace, Roosevelt nominee for the cabinet post, "an anarchist" and "the brains of all the forces seeking to establish total regimentation in this country," Gibson recanted applause from the southern contingent as he drew:
"The George bill will save some of the resources of the government from the hands of this man. It is, however, a pitiful spectacle when you are forced to remove the dog from the kennel to keep his life's blood from being sucked out by the flea. It would have been much better to have killed the flea."

Gibson pleaded with the senate to turn down the Wallace nomination in addition to passing the legislation sponsored by Sen. George, (D., Ga.), to separate the federal loan agency from the commerce department.

Time for Plain Talk.
Asserting it was time for "plain talk," the Georgian called the removal of Jesse Jones as secretary of commerce, "a national tragedy" and continued:
"The President gave the payment of a political debt as the sole reason for the appointment of Wallace to the management of the largest financial institution in the world."

"Let's analyze this political payoff and see just who has been paid off. At the Chicago convention, the Democrats of the nation repudiated Henry Wallace and all his revolutionary philosophy. He was dropped from the ticket over the protests of Sidney Hillman and his communistic cohorts."

Pay-Off to Hillman.
"Therefore, when Wallace is given the machine to control every heart beat of enterprise, who is being rewarded? None other than Hillman and his CIO gang and brother Communists. God forbid that power be placed in the hands of this gang to regiment, socialize, and take over free enterprise and destroy the last hope of maintaining a free state!"

ASK REHEARING IN TEXAS UNION ORGANIZER CASE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP)—Texas today labeled "strange" the Supreme court's recent invalidation of a Texas law requiring union organizers to register before soliciting members.

The state filed a petition signed by Atty. Gen. Grover Sellers and Assistant Atty. Gen. Fagen Dixon asking the court to reconsider its 5-4 decision.

The majority decision seems to have been concurred in by some members of the court because of a misapprehension of the facts, the petition said.

The court's majority opinion, written by Justice Rutledge, said Texas went too far in prosecuting R. J. Thomas, a CIO vice president, for making a membership speech at an oil workers' union meeting. Thomas made the speech without registering with the Texas secretary of state and without obtaining an organizer's card.

Seized in Fraud

Mrs. Manuela Lopez, 30, of 3621 Elm st., East Chicago, Ind., arrested by Joliet police Wednesday on charges of impersonating an army nurse, was placed under $500 bond and her case was continued until Jan. 29 when she was arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday.

Assistant United States Atty. George Kelly said that Mrs. Lopez scanned newspapers for names of service men killed in action, then would write survivors, declaring that she talked with the service man shortly before he was lost. Invited to a home, she would produce a counterfeit newspaper clipping relating her experiences on Bataan, Kelly said.

She never dressed in uniform, but wore two war theater ribbons and a good conduct ribbon. Kelly said he did not know Mrs. Lopez motive for visiting survivors, since she had obtained only $5 in more than a half dozen visits. Her husband, Baltazar, is a laborer for Inland Steel corporation, Indiana Harbor.

NEW RADIO TUBE WIDENS FIELD OF ELECTRONIC ART

E. D. McArthur of the General Electric Research laboratory disclosed yesterday that a new "disk seal" radio tube, already nicknamed the "lighthead," because of its shape, provides a new means of producing very short radio waves.

He said that the new tube, built in a different manner from previous tubes, will effect a breach in electronics thru which the art can progress far and fast until it runs into a new barrier.

He said that the new tubes "have played a very important part in the war and are destined to play an equally vital part in the peace time creation and expansion of future microwave industries, such as television and navigation."

ICKES SAYS ROOSEVELT WOULDN'T LET HIM RESIGN

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP)—Interior Secretary Ickes announced today President Roosevelt had declined to accept his offered resignation, asking him to remain in the cabinet. Ickes told a news conference he had received a letter in which the President said he "hoped I would stay on."

The court's majority opinion, written by Justice Rutledge, said Texas went too far in prosecuting R. J. Thomas, a CIO vice president, for making a membership speech at an oil workers' union meeting. Thomas made the speech without registering with the Texas secretary of state and without obtaining an organizer's card.

WALKER IS RENOMINATED FOR POSTMASTER GENERAL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP)—Postmaster General Walker was nominated by President Roosevelt today for another term. His is the only cabinet position whose term is fixed by law. It lasts as long as the Presidential term plus one month, and hence requires a new nomination at least every four years.

SEE DIVORCE CUT IF PROSECUTORS ATTEND TRIALS

An amendment to the Illinois divorce law to require state's attorneys to be represented at all divorce hearings, as proposed by the Cook county judicial advisory council, would have the probable effect of curtailing the increasing divorce rate in this state, many court officers agreed yesterday.

The judicial council, composed of Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of the Superior court, Judge Cornelius J. Harrington, and Judge Harry M. Fisher of Circuit court, Atty. John J. Healy, a former state's attorney, and Atty. Amos Miller, will recommend the amendment to the legislature in Springfield.

"Worth Trying," Tuohy Says.
It would place on the state's attorneys a responsibility of detecting perjury, collusion, and other fraud. State Atty. Tuohy, who attended the meeting at which the council approved the amendment, said the proposal "would be worth trying" and that his staff is prepared to investigate divorce cases.

In default cases, in which defendants do not file answers to divorce suits, the amendment would require the plaintiffs to pay an appearance fee to meet the expense of an investigation. More than 10,000 of the 17,000 divorces granted in Cook county last year were by default.

The recommendation by the judicial council is this group's first step for divorce law reform. In the past it has devoted its proposals to reforms in the criminal code.

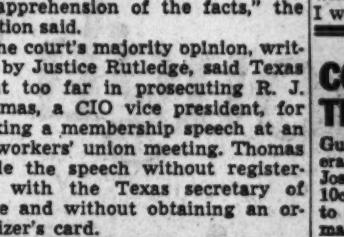

"Time to Guard Spirit of Law."
"We feel that the divorce problem is becoming alarming," Judge Fisher said. "We are led to believe that the volume will increase rather than decrease after the war and that steps ought to be taken to guard the spirit of the divorce law."

"Moreover, we feel that if the legislature speaks out on public policy in respect to divorces in all probability this policy will have a restraining influence on hasty marriages entered into because the parties believe that marriage can be easily dissolved."

WOMEN URGE INSANITY BE GROUND FOR DIVORCE

The Joint Professional Committee of Women Doctors, Lawyers, and Dentists wants the Illinois law amended to recognize insanity as a ground for divorce, Atty. Mary V. Neff said yesterday. The proposed amendment was approved at a meeting of the professional women at 30 N. Michigan av. and a proposed amendment will be submitted to the legislature.

WANT A $2,000,000 MANHATTAN?

Here's the recipe below! We call it a $2,000,000 "dream of a drink"—because that's what Fleischmann's invested in grains, skill and research before we released our golden bottle of this rich, luxurious, straight bourbon whiskey. We make it in limited amounts. We have to—it's so smooth and delicious!

FIRST, GET FLEISCHMANN'S BOND

THEN DO THIS!
1. In a mixing glass containing ice cubes put one dash of Angostura bitters.
2. Add 1/2 oz. of sweet vermouth and 1 1/2 oz. of delicious Fleischmann's BOND.
3. Stir. Strain into chilled glass. Garnish with Maraschino cherry. Then close your eyes—and drink!

The state filed a petition signed by Atty. Gen. Grover Sellers and Assistant Atty. Gen. Fagen Dixon asking the court to reconsider its 5-4 decision.

The majority decision seems to have been concurred in by some members of the court because of a misapprehension of the facts, the petition said.

The court's majority opinion, written by Justice Rutledge, said Texas went too far in prosecuting R. J. Thomas, a CIO vice president, for making a membership speech at an oil workers' union meeting. Thomas made the speech without registering with the Texas secretary of state and without obtaining an organizer's card.

WALKER IS RENOMINATED FOR POSTMASTER GENERAL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP)—Postmaster General Walker was nominated by President Roosevelt today for another term. His is the only cabinet position whose term is fixed by law. It lasts as long as the Presidential term plus one month, and hence requires a new nomination at least every four years.

SEE DIVORCE CUT IF PROSECUTORS ATTEND TRIALS

An amendment to the Illinois divorce law to require state's attorneys to be represented at all divorce hearings, as proposed by the Cook county judicial advisory council, would have the probable effect of curtailing the increasing divorce rate in this state, many court officers agreed yesterday.

The judicial council, composed of Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of the Superior court, Judge Cornelius J. Harrington, and Judge Harry M. Fisher of Circuit court, Atty. John J. Healy, a former state's attorney, and Atty. Amos Miller, will recommend the amendment to the legislature in Springfield.

"Worth Trying," Tuohy Says.
It would place on the state's attorneys a responsibility of detecting perjury, collusion, and other fraud. State Atty. Tuohy, who attended the meeting at which the council approved the amendment, said the proposal "would be worth trying" and that his staff is prepared to investigate divorce cases.

In default cases, in which defendants do not file answers to divorce suits, the amendment would require the plaintiffs to pay an appearance fee to meet the expense of an investigation. More than 10,000 of the 17,000 divorces granted in Cook county last year were by default.

The recommendation by the judicial council is this group's first step for divorce law reform. In the past it has devoted its proposals to reforms in the criminal code.

"Time to Guard Spirit of Law."
"We feel that the divorce problem is becoming alarming," Judge Fisher said. "We are led to believe that the volume will increase rather than decrease after the war and that steps ought to be taken to guard the spirit of the divorce law."

"Moreover, we feel that if the legislature speaks out on public policy in respect to divorces in all probability this policy will have a restraining influence on hasty marriages entered into because the parties believe that marriage can be easily dissolved."

WOMEN URGE INSANITY BE GROUND FOR DIVORCE

The Joint Professional Committee of Women Doctors, Lawyers, and Dentists wants the Illinois law amended to recognize insanity as a ground for divorce, Atty. Mary V. Neff said yesterday. The proposed amendment was approved at a meeting of the professional women at 30 N. Michigan av. and a proposed amendment will be submitted to the legislature.

WANT A $2,000,000 MANHATTAN?

Here's the recipe below! We call it a $2,000,000 "dream of a drink"—because that's what Fleischmann's invested in grains, skill and research before we released our golden bottle of this rich, luxurious, straight bourbon whiskey. We make it in limited amounts. We have to—it's so smooth and delicious!

FIRST, GET FLEISCHMANN'S BOND

THEN DO THIS!
1. In a mixing glass containing ice cubes put one dash of Angostura bitters.
2. Add 1/2 oz. of sweet vermouth and 1 1/2 oz. of delicious Fleischmann's BOND.
3. Stir. Strain into chilled glass. Garnish with Maraschino cherry. Then close your eyes—and drink!

HELP GUARD YOUR BLOOD'S "IRON LEVEL" WITH THIS DELICIOUS CEREAL

One-ounce dish of KELLOGG'S All-Bran gives over 1/3rd your daily minimum iron needs

YOUR blood wears out just like most other parts of your body. It must be replenished daily—to keep vitality up to par. To make this new blood, iron is one of the essential things.

The best way to get iron is in foods. But few foods provide significant amounts of iron. Thus, your diet can be poor in iron without your knowing it—and your "iron level" may decline. Fortunately, however, there is one well-known breakfast cereal that is extra rich in iron. And that is KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, which provides even more available iron than spinach.

KELLOGG'S All-Bran is made from the VITAL OUTER LAYERS of finest wheat

In addition to being rich in this vital element, ALL-BRAN, produced by Kellogg's in Battle Creek, is an important, natural source of calcium, phosphorus, vitamins B, B₂ and niacin. This nut-brown, crunchy breakfast cereal is made from the vital outer layers of finest wheat... chock-full of nutritive elements.

You know that the skin of a potato and the peel of an apple are richest in vitamins and minerals. In the vital outer layers of the wheat, as well, Nature has packed some of the richest gifts of sun and soil. ALL-BRAN is made of these vital outer layers and is more abundant in many needed food elements than even whole wheat itself.

America's Great Regulating Food

Besides being a storehouse of important food elements, delicious KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is Nature's great regulating cereal. Millions of people eat it regularly. Just a one-ounce daily serving is usually adequate for satisfactory laxation. ALL-BRAN, which is triple-milled for golden softness, does not interfere with the process of normal digestion.

Make sure your family gets a good start on its daily quota of iron and other vital elements so plentiful in ALL-BRAN! Serve KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly at the breakfast table, beginning today!

Many delicious ways to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

'OLD MAN OF 60' HELPS NAVY CUT GUN MOUNT COST

War Workers.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

A dapper "old man of 60," who, a few years ago, was let go by a Detroit auto parts company because he was "too old," is the 30th winner of The Chicago Tribune War Workers Award. He is Ray W. Collins, 5331 W. 23d pl., Cicero, naval inspector at the Danly Machine Specialties, Inc., plant at 2100 S. 52d av., Cicero.

Ray W. Collins.

Mayor Kelly will present the award—symbolized by a diamond studded pin—in a ceremony broadcast from 7:15 to 7:30 tonight by W-G-N. Capt. W. E. Malloy, officer in charge of inspection for the 9th naval district, will also be on the program.

The Detroit company's loss is the American taxpayers' gain, because Collins drew on his many years of industrial experience to devise a way to save annually a conservatively estimated $150,000—probably considerably more—on the cost of making mounts for the famed 40 mm. anti-aircraft and general purpose gun for the navy.

Mounted on Every Vessel.

Every vessel in the United States navy from a "canoe to a battleship" bristles with 40 mm. guns, which, besides being extremely effective against hostile aircraft, have been invaluable in blasting small enemy shipping out of the water.

The Danly company, along with other products, makes the gun mount for the 40 mm. gun.

Collins had the job of inspecting the mounts after their manufacture. He looked over the manufacturing operation to see if there was not some way to do the job better—to make a better part with less effort. He came up with five ideas—four of which were adopted as standard practice by the navy gun factory and the bureau of naval ordnance in Washington.

Two Major Improvements.

There were two major improvements. One was for the substitution of a formed steel plate for a seamless steel tube, which is both expensive and scarce. The other was for a faster and better method of machining the base of the gun mount.

Collins said that in perfecting his improvements he had the fullest cooperation from his superior, Lt. Comdr. Henry C. Van Deventer, then navy representative at the plant, and of George Danly, vice president of the Danly company, in charge of manufacturing.

The navy, thru its "beneficial suggestion awards" for encouraging its civilian workers to develop new ideas, has already rewarded Collins with a $1,250 payment.

WESTERN UNION AIDS VOTE AFL IN MOST OF U. S.

CIO Salvages N. Y. in Labor Election.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP).—The AFL's three organizations in the Western Union system won collective bargaining elections in virtually all of the United States today, leaving the CIO in control only in metropolitan New York area.

The election, conducted by the national labor relations board, was the outgrowth of the merger of Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies. The AFL previously had represented the workers in the Western Union system and the CIO union had bargaining rights for Postal employees.

AFL Wins 6 of 7.

The three AFL unions—the Commercial Telegraphers' union, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and the Federal Labor Union—previously had agreed on jurisdictional lines between them and they will be designated as bargaining agents for certain employees on that basis.

The AFL won six of seven divisional elections. The CIO union, which won in the metropolitan New York area, was the American Communications association.

The vote from the Lake district, first to be tabulated, showed a better than two to one plurality for the AFL. This district includes Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, and North and South Dakota. The tabulation was:

AFL, 5,244; CIO, 2,364; votes cast for neither, 72; votes void, 49; votes challenged, 150.

Opposed to Reds.

William Allen, president of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, said the results "proved" the majority of Western Union employees want no part "of the Communist led American Communications association."

Numerically the election is not the biggest the board has held, but it is the most widespread. Approximately 40,000 workers were eligible to vote.

Both the AFL and CIO had tagged this election as a major organizational objective. It takes in Western Union offices across the continent. Some 1,500 of these are too small for the NLRB to arrange group voting, so ballots from workers there were mailed. The vote deadline was Monday at midnight.

The ballots merely provided for a choice between AFL and CIO.

WARD SEIZURE DECISION IS SET FOR TOMORROW

The Montgomery Ward & Co. case, involving the seizure powers of the President, will be decided about 10 a. m. tomorrow, Judge Philip L. Sullivan of the federal District court, said yesterday.

Formal notice of the expected time of decision was given to United States Atty. J. Albert Woll, who in turn telephoned the offices of the attorney general and the solicitor general in Washington, which had presented the government's side of the dispute in court proceedings two weeks ago. Woll will receive the opinion for both. Ward lawyers also were notified.

Ward properties in Chicago and six other cities were seized Dec. 28 by the army on orders of President Roosevelt after the company's refusal to obey directives of the war labor board to grant certain benefits to a CIO union and strikes had been called by the union. In the hearing before Judge Sullivan, Ward asserted the seizure was unconstitutional. The government, suing for an injunction, based its plea on the President's right to order the seizure as a war measure.

DE MILLE TO DROP HIS $98,200 JOB IF $1 LEVY STANDS

Calls Ruling Favoring AFRA 'Tyranny.'

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 25 (Special).—Cecil B. DeMille, screen and radio producer, today denounced a Superior court ruling upholding the AFL radio artists union's right to levy a $1 assessment against him and declared he would forfeit his $98,200 a year radio job before he would pay the $1 because of the principle involved.

DeMille said he would take his case to the United States Supreme court before accepting what he calls "tyranny," and expressed the hope that his action would make state legislatures enact laws to eliminate what he considers a violation of voter rights.

He assailed yesterday's ruling by Superior Judge Emmet H. Wilson that the union could oust him and keep him from his radio job for failure to pay its $1 levy, assessed against its members to fight "proposition 12," a proposed state constitutional amendment opposing the closed shop.

Challenges Court Reasoning.

The producer said the "court evidently agreed with me that an assessment for a political purpose is unlawful, but does not agree with me that the assessment for proposition 12 is political."

Contending that "anything on a ballot which is in any way controversial is political," DeMille asserted: "If levying the assessment to oppose proposition 12 was not for a political purpose because AFRA [American Federation of Radio Artists] asserted that proposition 12 was inimical to the interests of the union, then, by the same logic, AFRA could levy an assessment to oppose a candidate for governor and candidates for the legislature, which candidates announced themselves in favor of proposition 12, on the theory that their election would be inimical to the interests of the AFRA."

Must Be Appealed.

"To say the assessment was not political because AFRA was defending itself from attack is to say that a party is not political because it is defending itself from attack by an opposing party."

DeMille charged the "court also said, in effect, that a union's assessment for money to oppose a specific proposition on the ballot does not interfere with a member's right of free suffrage, even tho that member is supporting that specific proposition and even tho he still be prevented from earning his living if he does not pay that union assessment. "These matters seem to me to possess the ingredients of freedom and tyranny, and I feel they should be submitted to our highest courts before we accept the principle of tyranny as part of our American citizenship."

Mother and Five Children Burn to Death in Home

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 25 (AP).—A mother and five children were burned to death today when fire swept their home. The dead were Mrs. Mildred Moyer, 40; Mary, 17; Jane, 11; Harry, 9; and James, 4, and Mildred, 1. The husband, Harry, 41, railroad brakeman, was at work. Origin of the blaze has not been determined.

ARMY SEIZES RAILROAD ONLY 20 MILES LONG

Magna, Utah, Jan. 25 (Special).—The army today restored service on the 20 mile long Bingham and Garfield railway, which hauls copper for war use, after a strike of an independent railway union, which demanded that firemen be assigned to three electric switching locomotives operated by the road.

The strikers, 37 members of the Independent Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, walked out at 6:30 this morning. The army, acting under orders of President Roosevelt, stepped in and effected a resumption of operations before noon.

Road Handles Copper.

Altho the railroad runs only 20 miles from the huge open-cut mine at Bingham Canyon to smelters here and at nearby Arthur, the war department said it carries a substantial part of the nation's copper ore output. The copper is critically needed in the manufacture of ammunition and other vital war materials, the department said.

"The strike was ordered in the face of an urgent appeal from the war department to the union, in which the need for stepping up ammunition production to intensify the blows we are delivering against the enemy was emphasized," the department added.

Union Defies Agencies.

The union called the strike even tho its case had been considered by all agencies established under the national railway labor act, including an emergency board appointed by President Roosevelt. The emergency board turned down the union's demand for addition of firemen to the crews of the electrically operated engines.

The railroad is operated by the Utah Copper company.

FORECAST FOR CAR-OWNERS

This Will Be The WORST WINTER
Your Car Has Ever Faced!

If ever a car needed and deserved extra care and extra attention, this winter is the time!

Cold-weather driving, always hard on any automobile, is doubly hard on older cars. And your car, and every car in the country, is an "older car."

Yet it is more important than ever, not only as precious personal transportation, but as a vital part of the nation's transportation system. So whether your car is three years, seven years, or ten years old... keep it alive, keep it rolling, keep it delivering essential wartime service, regardless of age or weather.

To aid you in doing that, to make your car and your tires go farther and last longer, there is intelligent and expert help waiting at every Phillips 66 Service Station.

Phillips Car-Saving Service includes checking of anti-freeze protection, battery, oil level, and air filter... regular lubrication of every friction point specified by the maker of your car.

Phillips Tire-Saving Service includes checking air pressures... inspection for nail holes, cuts, and bruises... examination of the tire carcass to warn when re-capping is needed... crisscrossing with the spare every 3,000 miles.

Remember that this winter, even if milder than usual, is a most critical one for older cars. So don't wait for the weatherman to tell you when cold spells are coming. Do your part to prevent the threatened crisis in home-front transportation.

Drive in for Phillips Car-Saving and Tire-Saving Service wherever you see the Orange and Black 66 Shield... the sign of famous Phillips 66 Gasoline and Phillips 66 Motor Oil.

Spring Coats in Gay Colors Are Exciting

BY REA SEEGER.

New spring coats are plenty exciting. Many are fur-trimmed, almost warm enough for blustery winter weather, though the fabrics are in vivid spring colors and of smooth texture. There are fitted models, especially sleek and streamlined and unfurled, that are ideal all-purpose coats for the spring wardrobe because fur stoles or detachable fur capes can be added for additional warmth. They're designed for day time as well as dress parade wear.

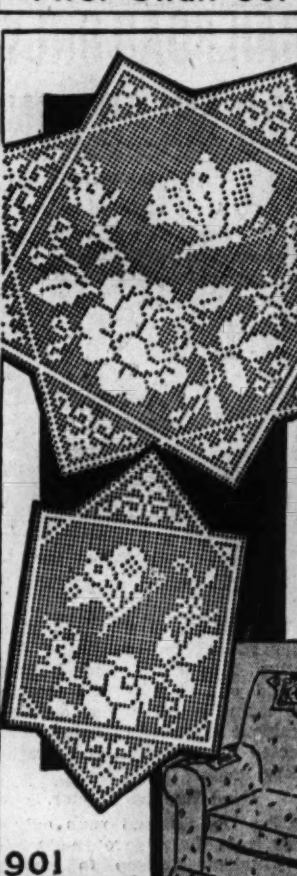

Black and white checks vary in size from the tiny checks to huge inch squares or even larger on coats. The rage for black and white checked wool is going to break sales records, with navy blue and white not far behind.

Jackets, three-quarter length, with or without belts, the kind that flare dashing at the back, are extremely young and smart. Smooth curved shoulder lines give a new soft feminine silhouette, and buttons are bigger than ever. A single dinner plate button, a good three to three and a half inches across, is the only decoration on most models of coats.

White coats are the big surprise in any spring collection. White wool in soft fleece or in smooth, suede-like textures are sensationally dramatic with dark suits and dresses, later as the summer time coat for occasional chilly days. Many of the white coats sweep in wide back flares, and around the knee line, and have collarless neck lines. White coats with huge cuffs, front facings, or bands of silver fur are quite the most breathtaking arrivals to date. Red and varying shades of shocking pink and the annual revival of navy blue provide other high fashion shades from which to choose.

BY MARY MEADE.

(Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.)

Satisfying family meat appetites undoubtedly is the homemaker's major food problem nowadays. With lard, vegetable shortening, and cooking oil back on the ration list and no additional red points to cover them, the problem becomes even greater.

The wise meal planner does not splurge on a roast when a new group of red stamps becomes valid, for such a practice usually leaves the family stranded on a meatless diet until the next points roll around. It is best to buy such a treasured meat item only after a stamp accumulation and toward the end of a point period.

Budgeting meat stamps to assure covering a current period (usually about a month long) is best accomplished by using no point and low point meats frequently and by serving meat alternatives (unrationed eggs, fish, dried beans) at least once or twice a week. If their cooperation is sought, most members of the family will be willing to accept these occasional substitutes without complaint.

Fish should be served once a week not only to save ration points but to include in the diet the healthful food nutrients of this fine food. Dried beans provide adequate protein to replace meat, so plan a baked lima, kidney, or navy bean dish (using low point salt pork) for another meal and complement this favorite food with homemade raisin brown bread and a big bowl of cabbage, apple, and carrot salad.

Include unrationed eggs, too, in your weekly menus, for their high quality protein makes them an appropriate dinner entrée.

In serving eggs as a meat replacer, make sure they do not resemble too much the breakfast egg. Scrambled eggs with herbs for the dinner main dish might appeal to the business woman, but the average man prefers his dinner eggs in a heartier form. Eggs baked in bacon rings, eggs terrazini, eggs baked in sauce, creole omelet, curried eggs with mushrooms, eggs a la king, and hard cooked eggs and vegetable shortcake are dishes to please a man.

Lighter egg dishes appropriate for the feminine appetite at dinner are poached eggs and deviled ham on toast, scrambled eggs with corn, scrambled eggs with dried beef or chopped crisp bacon, and top of the

Baked Macaroni and Cheese

Baked macaroni and cheese, a luncheon dish the children love and a well liked family main dinner dish, requires only 6 red points to serve six. Important in its preparation is the proper proportion of ingredients. For good results:

(Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.)

Use 1 package (8 ounces) macaroni, 2 cups medium white sauce (made from 4 tablespoons flour, 3 tablespoons fat, 2 cups milk, and salt and pepper), and 2 cups grated cheese. In a greased casserole put alternate layers of macaroni (which has been cooked in boiling, well salted water), white sauce, and cheese. Make a top layer of white sauce. Cover with 1/4 cup fine bread crumbs mixed with 3 tablespoons melted margarine. Bake at 375 degrees, 20 to 25 minutes, or until lightly browned. [To cut down on the amount of cheese used add flavor with a little chopped green pepper and some finely minced onion.]

stove omelet with mushroom sauce. Here's a dish sure to delight masculine appetites:

Baked Deviled Eggs.
(Serves four.)
8 hard cooked eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon onion
1/2 teaspoon cream
1/2 teaspoon mustard
1/2 teaspoon ketchup
1/2 cup milk
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms
Salt, pepper, celery salt

Hard cook the eggs, then slice lengthwise in half. Remove yolks and put thru sieve or mash well; add pepper, salt, onion, and enough cream to moisten slightly. Mix well and refill egg whites. Place eggs in a greased baking dish. Prepare sauce by melting fat, adding flour and smoothing to a paste, then adding milk and stirring constantly until thickened. Add salt, pepper, and celery salt to taste and mushrooms which have been chopped coarsely and sautéed in margarine. Pour sauce over eggs and sprinkle with chopped parsley. Bake at 350 degrees for about 15 minutes.

Some Parents Are 'Naturals' for Their Jobs

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

"I suppose I've just got to leave this and go in and get dinner for the family. I love gardening—even getting my hands dirty, digging in the good earth—but planning and cooking meals is something I just have to force myself to do every day."

"You're the exact opposite of me," answered her friend. "Flowers and plants are lovely, I'll agree, but I admire them full grown and blooming, and haven't the slightest urge to do the spade work and the weeding. My forte is fixing and serving well planned, nutritious meals. That's a form of relaxation to me."

Well, it's the old story: One man's meat is another man's poison. We're not all equally fitted for the work we have to do in the world. And that applies even to such a natural thing as being a parent.

Some women are born mothers. Some men are born fathers. They have a talent for it, a flair for the job. That doesn't mean that they work entirely by instinct and intuition, without ever doing any thinking. But it does mean that they enjoy it, take to it naturally, and do it well.

Here you have a native difference in people. A father may always have instinctively—no, I'd rather call it intuitively—done the right thing. He has, perhaps, not succeeded in analyzing why his way works, but he knows that his wife's way doesn't, so he asks for outside help for her. Perhaps he also realizes that the word of some one else has more weight than his.

We often see in families this natural aptitude on the part of one parent for dealing with children. Sometimes it is the father, sometimes it is the mother who knows instinctively the right thing to do. When this one is alone with the children friction is eliminated automatically, the whole atmosphere clears, and serenely reigns. There's the magic touch at work—a touch compounded of sympathy, a desire for the child's happiness, enjoyment of his presence, a firmness, and that loveliest of all attributes, "sweet reasonableness."

Often this magic touch, as we have said, an intuitive thing. But sometimes it is made even more magical, because the father or mother who possesses it deliberately thinks when a situation looks as if it were shaping up to trouble—then a wise word, a diverting of the attention, or a little joke will clear the air.

Benefits Help Fill Calendar for Week-End

BY JUDITH CASS.
A BUSY week-end will start today with three benefits and several other events of interest. In the fund raising category are the Emerson house "Two Bit Ball" at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the Casino club; a program by Ruth Draper tonight in Mandel hall of the University of Chicago which is the annual benefit for the University of Chicago settlement, and an exhibition of a bust of Gen. de Gaulle by Jo Davidson which will open today and continue thru Sunday at 2704 Lakeview av., the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster. The latter event is sponsored by the Chicago chapter of France Forever.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, president of the Emerson house board of directors and chairman of the gay dancing party, is among the many young persons who have reserved tables for the event which will benefit the Emerson House association in N. Wood st. The dance floor will be roped off, and dance tickets will be sold at 25 cents for three. The woman turning in the most stubs will receive a book of taxi coupons.

Others with reservations are the Solomon B. Smiths, the junior Byron S. Harveys, the William B. Coltrass, the John A. Barclays, the Otto Madleners, and the junior Chase Mellens.

Benefit Parties.
With the aid of a few bits of costumery and a small suitcase of assorted shawls, hats, and coats, Mrs. Ruth Draper is able to portray about 150 characters in her famed monologues, and some of these characters will appear in Mandel hall tonight and again tomorrow night in the North Shore Country Day school when Miss Draper gives a benefit performance arranged by the north shore committee of Russian War Relief, Inc.

Miss Draper is a granddaughter of Charles A. Dana, one of the most prominent figures in the history of American journalism, and aunt of the dancer, Paul Draper. Tickets to the settlement benefit may be obtained in Mandel hall.

The Winnetka program will be concluded with a monolog called "Vive La France, 1916; Vive La France, 1940." Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. Philip W. Moore, Mrs. Perry D. Smith, Mrs. Harve G. Badgerow, and other women on the committee are selling tickets to the event.

The public is invited to the France Forever benefit exhibit which will be open from 2 to 6 p. m. today and tomorrow, and from 3 to 7 p. m. Sunday. Admission is $1, and buses Nos. 34 and 53 will deliver visitors to Lakeview and Wrightwood av., near which corner the Brewster home is located. Mr. and Mrs. Brewster's collection of French paintings also will be on view. Some of those assisting at the exhibition will be Mrs. Arthur G. Cable, Mrs. John Holabird, Mrs. Brooks McCornack, Mrs. Alice Rouillier, Mrs. Pauling Donnelly, and Mrs. Charles Lebert.

On the Calendar.
The William M. Spencers will give a small dinner tonight and a small tea tomorrow for Mrs. Spencer's cousin, Lester A. B. Pearson, recently appointed Canadian ambassador to the United States, and Mrs. Pearson, who will spend the day with the Spencers while Mr. Pearson fills several speaking engagements. The Philip K. Wrigleys will give a dinner tomorrow for the visitors.

Mr. Pearson, who spent two years in business in Chicago after World War I, will speak on "The Organization of Peace and the Smaller Powers" at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations at 12:15 p. m. today in the Palmer House. He and Mrs. Pearson have been invited to the English Speaking Union's weekly tea this afternoon, and tonight Mr. Pearson will address the Canadian club, which will make him a guest in absentia at the Spencers' dinner.

Mr. Pearson is a nephew of Miss Kathleen Pearson and of Mrs. F. Edson White, who will not see her nephew on this trip, however, as she is on a long visit to her daughter, Mrs. Allan Kempe, at the Kempe's ranch in the Ojai valley in California.

Here and There.
Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy are in New York for the graduation today of Mr. Cudahy's son, Edward Jr., from the Merchant Marine academy at Kings Point. Young Mr. Cudahy will assume the rank of 3d officer in the merchant marine and ensign (inactive) in the naval reserve. He has been in training for 22 months, and in that period he was rescued once when his ship was in a collision and another time when his ship was torpedoed and sunk.

The Winter club's two day carnival will start at 7:30 o'clock tonight with competitions for the club's figure skating championships. Tomorrow, at 3:30 p. m., 250 children will participate in a costume parade on ice. Earle Cooper is serving as athletic director of the club this winter.

Other Events Today.
Mrs. Richard M. Rosenwald will open her home at 1250 Astor st. at 4 p. m. today for a reception for Mrs. Guy M. Gillette, Mrs. Augustus Bennett, and Miss Ruth Chatterton in the interests of the Emergency Committee to Save the Jewish People of Europe. Miss Helen Hayes, currently appearing in "Harriet," is chairman of the reception committee. Assisting her are Mrs. John B. Metzger, Mrs. John Nuveen, Mrs. Sheppard Remington, Mrs. Samuel Golden, and Mrs. George Brown, among others. Miss Chatterton, Luther Adler, and Philip Lord will take part in a satirical sketch by Ben Hecht which will be on the program.

The Cordon club will entertain at tea from 4 to 6 p. m. today for Laurette Taylor, Eddie Dowling, Julie Haydon, and Tony Ross, who are appearing here in "The Glass Menagerie."

Mrs. Chester Grigsby will open her Wilmette home for a program for the north shore auxiliary of the Chicago Maternity center at 2 p. m. today. Mrs. Ralph Huch is president of the auxiliary, which recently sent a check for $3,000 to the center.

On Committee for Tonight's Ball

Mrs. Walter C. Coleman, who is on the committee for a "Two Bit Ball" the board of directors of Emerson house is giving tonight in the Casino to raise money for the settlement it supports.

White Collar GIRL

Dollar a Year Men.
There are six officials in one loop office of a large corporation. For Christmas they chipped in $1 apiece and gave the white collar girl who works for all of them $6. Now her friends are calling the six bosses "Dollar a Year Men."

Don't Tell the Editor on Me.
Now you have got me in the soup! Your column shows the verse about the switchboard operator published last Saturday, with my signature. I didn't write it, and somebody is going to come gunning after me for taking the credit.

Won't you please put in a line mentioning that the ode to the switchboard gal was written by one of the members of the staff of the company where she works—some one who prefers to remain anonymous? I just thought it sweet enough to pass along to others—but, heaven forbid, I'm no poetess!

Mild Masculine Mummer.
O, the white collar girl's a superior girl, And she leads other classes by far; She has poise and ability, looks and sangfroid, In short, she is really a star. Efficient, attractive, and charming indeed, She plays all life's courses in par, She's lovely to look at, and lovely to know. Except on a stool at a bar!

One in a Million.
Some time ago I read of an employee of a war plant who thought she had a good personnel director. Well, I think we have the "one in a million."

Serkin Plays Brahms Work with Orchestra

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Deane Defauw, conductor; Rudolf Serkin, pianist. Presented at Orchestra hall Thursday evening, Jan. 25, 1945, and scheduled for repetition Friday afternoon. The program: Overture to "The School for Scandal" Barber Symphony No. 1... Shostakovich Concerto for Piano, No. 1, D minor... Brahms

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.
In many ways, Rudolf Serkin gave one of his finest Orchestra hall performances last night when he appeared as soloist in Brahms' D minor concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Désiré Defauw—but that is not to say that Orchestra hall was hearing one of its finest performances of the D minor concerto. A successful concerto is a two sided business, a true balance of power in which solo instrument and orchestra are matched, contrasted, and paced to cumulative climax. It simply can't happen without a conductor of sensitive authority and a touch of clairvoyance, a man who can feel out the caliber and sense the mood of his soloist, and let a brilliant one ride to triumph on the security of superb support.

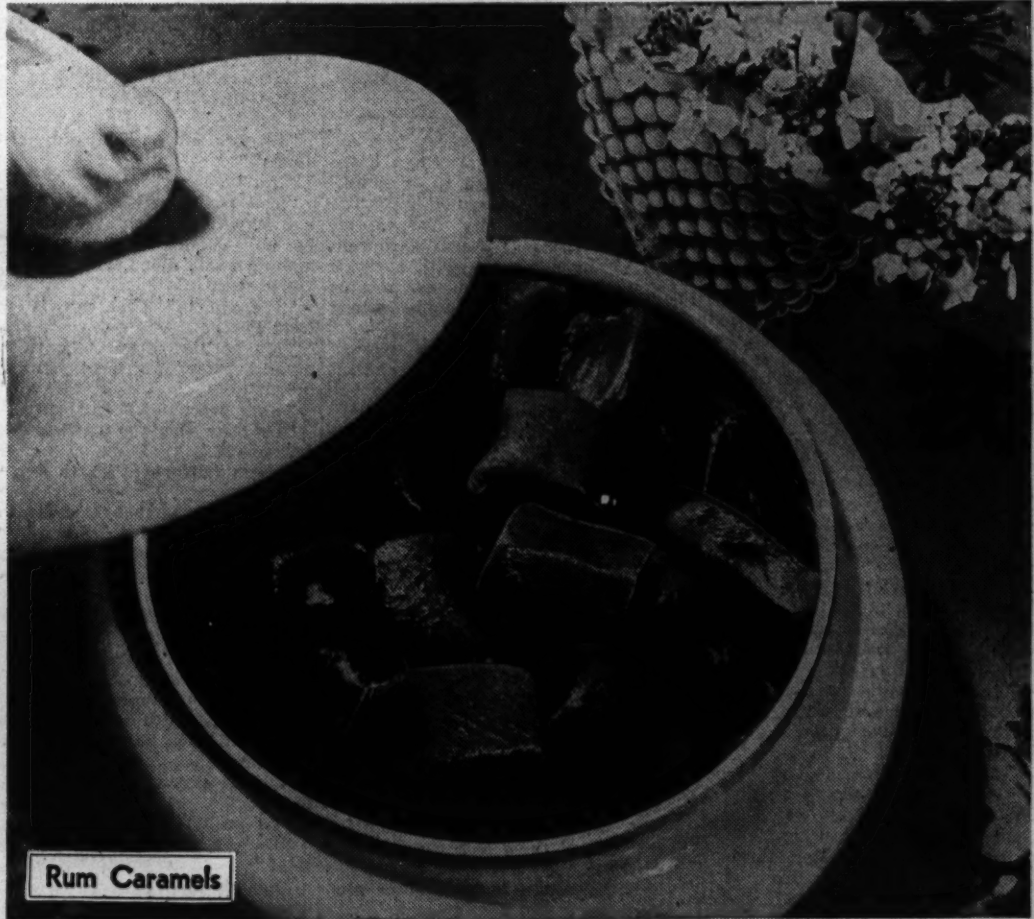

Mr. Serkin was playing on a big yet restrained scale. His performance was not unflawed, but it had beauty, brains, and backbone. With magnificent accompaniment he might have given a great performance; with expert help he certainly would have given a satisfying one. Yet last night you could walk out of Orchestra hall after the concerto and instead of exhilaration you felt disappointment. The Brahms simply petered out to nothing at all, and that isn't an easy trick to play on that fierce old gentleman who demanded things of pianists and conductors.

At its best, Mr. Defauw's accompaniment was sprightly; at its worst, it was a quagmire to trap the soloist. The Brahmsian spirit was among the missing. The orchestra began with a blast that must have shaken the piano, not to say the pianist, and the warm radiance of the slow movement was lost in lugubrious ineptitude. The concert opened with Samuel Barber's Overture to "The School for Scandal," a disjointed performance which bore little relation to a charming piece of music, and continued with a singularly undramatic version of Shostakovich's First Symphony, a brilliant work ordinarily effective to the point of the theatrical. I sympathized with the man who shook his head after Mr. Defauw's Shostakovich and muttered, "That's a lot of music. I wish some one would compose it."

Wisconsin Alumnae Plan Founders' Day Luncheon.
Mrs. Polly Coles Haight of Madison, Wis., will be guest speaker at a founders' day luncheon meeting of the University of Wisconsin Alumnae club of Chicago, set for Saturday, Feb. 3, in the Chicago College club. She will tell of campus and alumnae activities at the University of Wisconsin. Mrs. Harold Downing arranged the program, and Miss Edith Stoner will preside.

Rum Caramels

(Other recipes, menus, and food news will be found on the opposite page.)

2 cups sugar
2 cups light corn sirup
2 cups light cream
½ cup rum
½ cup margarine
Put sugar, corn sirup, and 1 cup of cream in large saucepan and boil to 234 degrees, or until a soft ball forms when small amount of mixture is dropped into cold water. Add remaining cup of cream, rum, and margarine slowly so that boiling does not stop. Cook, stirring constantly, to 246 degrees, or firm ball stage. Pour into greased pan to thickness of 1 inch. Cool. Before candy sets, score into squares. Chill until very firm. Remove to cutting board, cut into cubes. Wrap in waxed paper. If stronger rum flavor is desired, use ¾ cup of rum. Recipe makes 60 squares.

Hospital Care Plan Boosts Membership 28 Per Cent in Year

The Chicago Blue Cross plan for Hospital Care enrolled 160,643 new members in 1944, bringing its total membership on Jan. 1 to 729,671. John R. Mannix, executive director, reported yesterday. The year's growth represented an increase of 28.2 per cent.

The Chicago plan, one of 81 Blue Cross hospital insurance groups, provided benefits last year of $4,229,089, covering 518,971 days of hospital care for 76,483 members. Benefits paid by the plan since its establishment eight years ago total $13,582,719.

Penicillin, one of the most recently discovered drugs, was added as one of the plan's hospital benefits in August, with benefits retroactive to May 15.

Thru the Looking Glass

Tired of the blood and thunder shadings in so many lipstick? A great many women are, and they're looking for a shade that's softer and more luscious and more on the "pretty" side. And there is, for them, a brand new baby, offspring of a de luxe house, in a shade that is most attractively called Muted Rose.

The shade is new, created to meet the trend toward delicate loveliness that is high fashion in this season of pronounced femininity, but the lipstick itself is now something of an old timer and a tremendous favorite with the discriminating woman who like a creamy quality and the merest suggestion of a beguiling perfume. We have always liked it, and many of the companion items in its family. It's creamy without being unmanageably greasy, and its color always stays true. We have found it a long lasting stick; it doesn't feather at the lip edges or come off much faster than it should.

If you're lipstick shopping do look at this.

BY KAY CLANCY.
A nurse who knows what it is to dig a fox hole, do her laundry, wade knee deep in mud, and convert packing boxes into bedside tables is now on recruitment duty in Illinois and Wisconsin. She is Maj. Floramund Ann Fellmeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fellmeth, 1836 W. 52d st., and one of the last women to leave the Philippines after the landing of the Japs.

At a press conference in 6th service command headquarters yesterday, Maj. Fellmeth made a plea for more nurses in service, pointing to the army's immediate need of 18,000.

"The army nurse is the doctor's right hand; without her our record of 97 per cent recoveries among battle casualties and the present standards of health among our soldiers would be impossible," she said. "Nurses, more nurses, will be my plea from now until I'm sure the girls who have been on duty in the South Pacific for almost three years are relieved."

Lt. Col. Martha Jane Clement, superintendent of army nurses of the 6th service command and former director of nurses in the Southwest Pacific agreed with her assistant—who was also her assistant in the South Pacific area for 27 months. Lt. Col. Clement added the nurses insist upon remaining on duty because they know they are needed. "The rain, mud, jungle, isolation, and other hardships are forgotten when there is work to be done," she said.

Maj. Fellmeth entered the army in 1938 and was completing her second year as an army nurse at Fort William McKinley on Luzon, when the Japs landed. Sixty-four of her friends are still prisoners.

She wears the Legion of Merit, awarded for duty aboard the hospital ship Maclean, which sailed from the Philippines Dec. 31, 1941 with almost 275 wounded aboard. In Australia she set up the first American hospital unit in her Legion of Merit citation. Also, she wears the Distinguished Unit citation with two oak leaf clusters.

Fredrick Siebert to Head Radio Journalism Council

Fredrick S. Siebert, director of the school of journalism of the University of Illinois and president of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism, was elected chairman of the newly formed Council on Radio Journalism at an organizational meeting yesterday in the La Salle hotel. The council, with five members from educational institutions and five from the radio industry, will serve as a liaison agency in training personnel for radio news writing, reporting, and editing.

Social Council Report Reflects War Era Shifts

General relief funds declined in 1944, but an increase of 34 1/2 per cent in the number of children receiving care in day nurseries reflected a war time need, Wilfred S. Reynolds, director of the Council of Social Agencies of Chicago, said yesterday at the 30th annual meeting in the Palmer House.

Using figures from the 217 public and private organizations in the council, he said the 39,700 families aided monthly by family relief and service agencies represented a drop of 10 per cent from 1943. The 65,000 individuals assisted by public agencies because of blindness, old age, or child dependency were 12 per cent fewer than a year ago.

Patient days' care given in hospitals dropped 2 per cent and visits to clinics were 14 per cent under 1943. However, 1,467 children were cared for by day nurseries as compared with 961 the year before.

Points mentioned in his outline of goals and trends of the council included the narrowing of gaps between needs and services; improving adequacy of agency programs [such as expansion and systematizing care for unmarried mothers and their children]; and "coming to grips" with new or aggravated problems such as conflicting racial relations.

In a discussion of minorities in the post-war world, Robert C. Weaver, chief of community services, American Council of Race Relations, declared racial tensions originate in social and economic institutions. Reduced job opportunities after the war threaten the economic gains of the minorities and set up possibilities for renewed tensions, he said.

He cited the problems of returning Negro service men who have been trained in skills and the rural Negroes brought to the cities for war work. He asked for planning now for a flexible program of public works and for an economy in

FASHIONS

By Angela

If you are one of the winter travelers to warm climates, your wardrobe must include a variety of play clothes for fun in the sun. Beach togs are among the most important items.

The two piece pebble knit swim suit at the left is designed for unhampered swimming as well as beautiful sun bathing. The brief wool and rayon shorts are lined with cotton mesh. A snug band fits across the front and the back has an elasticized shirring. The lined top has decorative laces which also provide an adjustable feature, permitting the bra to be worn long or pulled up short.

The blue and white cotton check play suit in the center is trimmed with contrasting red and white check bands on the bodice and around the hemline. A red check belt runs thru slots at the waistline and ties in a flyaway bow at back. This same suit may double for swimming, since it is lined with cotton mesh.

The handsome white beach coat at the right serves a variety of purposes when not worn over a bathing suit. It is of such an unusual weave it may be termed an all purpose sport and brunch coat. The graceful shawl collar, turnback cuffs, and stitched belt with loose bow ties at the front are attractive details. A slight shirring in the back above the waistline provides flattering casual treatment.

Film Comedy Brings Touch of Nostalgia

"OUR HEARTS WERE YOUNG AND GAY."

By Mae Tinee

I am now afflicted with a severe case of reminiscence, and I'm sure the malady will affect many of you who see this film—particularly if you were young and gay when you made your first trip to Europe. The excitement of the first glimpse of "your" steamer, the fondness you develop for it and all the passengers (even the proverbial peck on the cheek), the thrill of seeing all the places you've read about for years—new countries, new languages, new people—ah me!

Even those who won't be made pleasantly wistful by their own memories will enjoy this film about two young girls on a trip abroad. It's gay and deftly directed, and the two principals, Gail Russell and Diana Lynn, are refreshingly natural and sweet. The story probably is familiar in a general way to many people because of the book's popularity, and the plot is fairly negligible, but there are plenty of laughs and, on the whole, it's good entertainment for people of all ages.

Dated in 1923, with its long waisted dresses and baggy plus fours and checked caps which men wearing on board, a squeaky ship's orchestra, a hefty soprano who monopolizes every ship's concert by screaming, and glaring at anyone who dares leave or laugh—the film handles all these touches ably and is a pleasant change from the pseudo-epic which seems to be prevalent in so many movies.

This film also brings back to the screen, after an absence of 15 years, Dorothy Gish, and she slips easily into her role as Mrs. Skinner. Charles Ruggles plays the famous actor, and he's good, as usual. It's a simple comedy, but I think you'll like it.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 25.—Barbara Stanwyck will have to finish "The Fountainhead" before Hal Wallis can have her for "The Perfect Marriage," which Wallis' script will be ready in two weeks. . . . Howard Dietz left for New York with a head full of tunes and an idea for another musical. . . . Nice that Jimmy Dunn's option has been lifted at Twentieth Century. . . . Wonder if Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn will make it three times and out. They've made two, are up for a third—or will they be out before they get to the third? . . . I see where Margaret O'Brien can't appear at the President's birthday celebration in Washington because of child labor laws. You mean when she's back there they're not going to change 'em for her? . . . About time somebody saluted Maj. Meredith Wilson. Paul Whiteman will be on Hall of Fame Sunday.

It's a Cinch.

I'm told Harry Gorman wants Milton Berle so badly for "Murder in Space" that he's offered him $25,000 for one week's work. Why, for that much money Berle would sprout his own wings and fly out. . . . "Air Pattern," made by Maj. Frank Lloyd and the 13th combat camera unit, is a picture so clear cut that even a child can understand what's gone on in the South Pacific. This you'll be able to see; also, I hope, the companion picture which was shown privately, called "Resisting Enemy Interrogation." It teaches you, in one easy lesson why you should keep your mouth shut. . . . Eight years ago Bill Bendix lived in a basement in New York while working for the federal theater project. Now he's moved from his Los Feliz home and is a neighbor of the Cary Grants on Belaggio rd., Bel Air. Yes, he's a nice guy, too. . . . Pals of mine were given copies recently by Sidney Hillman during his visit here. . . . C. B. De Mille's appeal from the decision about that union matter won't put him back on the air, which he loves. He'd give up producing any day to do "Good night to you from Hollywood."

Well, Wouldn't You? Edna Best is so proud that her elder twin, James Beard, won the flying cross. He's been in the R. C. A. F. three years, served two in England. Recently married a little English nurse, who leaves with him for Canada. Soon as they're able, they'll visit Edna here. Edna is beaming. . . . Now the Spike Joneses are having a six month marital holiday. I hope it won't continue. They're a nice pair, with an adorable daughter. Mrs. J. claims Spike's been away from home too long. What does she expect, when he plays that kind of music? . . . Not since Elsie the Cow has Hollywood had such a collection of hams as those assembled for "State Fair." I counted 28 choice Hampshire hogs. Blue Boy set Twentieth back 450 smackers. Lovely Emeraldale, Blue Boy's friend, is a dainty 700 pounds of love interest. But with red points what they are today, I wouldn't mind looking at a cut of Blue Boy alongside some candied yams.

Strange Bedfellows. Here's one for the book. Penny Singleton's Irish setter's pal is a 10 foot gopher snake. They even sleep together. What's that about the lion and the lamb? . . . Edward Everett Horton's mother, who thinks he's funnier at home than on the screen, said to him, while looking at Eddie's latest picture, "Hope you're saving your money. This sort of thing can't go on forever!" . . . Wonder why Metro insisted that John Hodiak shave off his mustache for "The Red Currier." It helped ring the bell for Adano. . . . Twentieth Century beat Metro by half an hour in buying Ruth McKenney's original story for $25,000. . . . I hear Dorothy McGuire refused to come back and do a picture David Seidman had her slated for, so she's suspended. She should care. She and John Swope are having a wonderful time back east.

Veterans' Need of Furniture Is Told by Sally

By Sally Joy Brown

A number of service men are filtering back to civilian life and are eager to reestablish homes for their families, many of whom were forced to give up their quarters, move in with relatives, double with friends, or go to furnished rooms in the interval of separation. We hope our readers will be able to supply some of the needs.

Mrs. A. writes: "My husband is a discharged soldier, able to work only on a part time basis. I lived with our three children in crowded furnished rooms while he was away, but now have located a flat. We lack living room furniture and bedding." The family lives on the south side.

Because of a disability, Mr. W. had difficulty finding work when he returned from service. Now, however, he has a job and has moved his family into an unheated flat where the rent is proportionate to his earnings. A gas stove, a heater, an icebox, and a dresser for the baby's clothing are the most important needs. Offers from the north side can be called for at the least expense.

Another veteran who is unemployed because of a heart ailment has an opportunity of moving his family from furnished rooms to more adequate quarters in a far south side housing project. He will be unable to make the change unless furniture is provided. The essential items are a full size bed, bedding, dresser, two cribs for their boys, 1 and 2 years old; a table and chairs, living room furniture, dishes, and utensils.

Household Forum

Mrs. Ed W. Chicago—I use a cake rack in a shallow pan when I have only a small amount of food to broil. I place this rack and pan on the broiler, and results are satisfactory.

Mrs. Grant G. Milwaukee, Wis.—I keep on hand a few bath mittens made from old Turkish towels. I make these mittens loose fitting and give them a button at the wrist. I wear one when I give baby a bath.

Sarah G. Chicago—For years I have used two thicknesses of cotton batting as a pad for my ironing board. This batting makes an excellent pad.

Follow directions on box for roll-overs. Sprinkle with brown sugar spices, and dot with shortening. Slice 1" thick, and bake in greased, floured tin.

UNDEFEATED IOWA MEETS ILLINOIS TONIGHT

DRAB DECOR NO DRAWBACK TO TENPIN MINDED

Score's the Thing in Petersen Classic.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
The place is not especially prepossessing, neither as to exterior nor interior. The decor is hardly moderne. In fact, you would have to smile twice if you were caught using those two terms out that way. Yet this battered building at 2055 W. 35th st.—better known as the Archer-35th recreation—is recognized as the cradle of bowling in Chicago. Beginning at noon tomorrow, there are several tenpin marks men who will forget the absence of neon lights, brick glass, and other modern gadgets in order to concentrate on the old place's 16 alleys. The man who can knock over the greatest number of pins in the eight game chere over those 16 lanes come the windup Feb. 11, will receive $5,100. No. 1 prize in the total purse of $43,200, embracing this 33d Classic, conceived and conducted by Louis P. Petersen, the bowling impresario for whom the event is named.

Doubles at Gateway.

Just to keep the boys busy when they are not rolling in the Petersen singles classic, Pete is also offering them a chance at a double target. This added competition will be held concurrently with the singles battle at the Gateway recreation, 6432 W. North av. In this, a team of two men will be given two shots at first prize of $1,000. The overall purse for the doubles will be $6,400, thanks to an entry of 248 teams. While the singles at Archer-35th will continue without interruption for 16 days, the doubles will be confined to the three Saturdays and Sundays thru Feb. 11.

The Petersen classic, which this year is the richest in purse and largest in entry in its career, carries a number of records. The entries hail from 263 cities in the United States and Canada and there will be two bowlers from the Aleutian Islands. One of these, Matt Krete, will be remembered as the sparkplug of the Windy City league's Gep Rods before he entered service.

Marino, Carlson Entered.

Only requirement for the singles has been maintenance of a 180 average in sanctioned league play. It would appear that the event would thus be at the mercy of those artists who consistently shoot 200. Yet the last two Petersen classics have been won by men who carried averages of only 185. In the last 24 years a total of 13,060 bowlers have battled for an aggregate Petersen purse of $326,500. Among other highlights of the tournament will be the appearance of Hank Marino, the veteran Milwaukeean, who is the only man to compete in all 33 classics. Nearest to Hank in the records of bowling year in and year out is Chicago's Ad Carlson, who has rolled in 27 of em, and holds the mark for cash collections, having cashed in 14 times.

2 NEGRO STARS FIGURE IN DAY'S SERVICE NEWS

Two of Chicago's outstanding Negro athletes figured in yesterday's service news. One was Lt. Lawrence (Bernie) Jefferson of Grand Rapids, Mich., former Northwestern football star. The other was Claude (Buddy) Young, rated the nation's fastest sprinter and one of the speediest half backs in the game as a member of last year's Illinois eleven. Lt. Jefferson is currently in the city on a 30 day leave after overseas duty wherein he earned a campaign ribbon which carries four stars and the air medal with four oak leaf clusters. Buddy Young, who is a graduate of Wendell Phillips High school, was inducted into the navy yesterday as an apprentice seaman. He will undergo eight weeks of preliminary training at the Great Lakes Naval training center.

170 GOLFERS TO TEE OFF TODAY IN TEXAS OPEN

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 25 (AP).—One hundred and seventy golfers start play tomorrow in the first 18 holes of the Texas Open—one of the largest entries in the 18 years of this event. Among the big field that tees off around dawn will be 66 professionals, 22 of them comprising the group following the winter tournament trail that started in November at Portland. Byron Nelson shot the day's best score in the pro-amateur event today, a 66, five under par for the course.

GOLDEN GLOVES BOXERS FACE FINAL EXAMS

The Naval Aviation Technical Training center, 87th st. and Anthony av., will send a team of amateur boxers to St. Sabina gymnasium for the south side Golden Gloves tournament which opens Monday night. Additional entries from the Glenview Air station, four boxers from the Ringside gymnasium, and 14 from the Duncan Y. M. C. A. complete the team lists for Chicago's 18th Golden Gloves tournaments.

The young men from Glenview and from the Ringside gym are entered in the north side sectional tournament, which opens Wednesday night in Loyola university gymnasium, Loyola av. and Sheridan rd. All sectional champions—16 novice division and 16 open division boxers—will be determined in the program of five nights of fighting next week.

Hold Final Tests Tonight.

Final preliminary physical examination for Chicago's amateurs is scheduled tonight in the Catholic Youth organization gymnasium, 31 E. Congress st. Candidates are requested to report between 6:30 and 8 p. m. at the second floor gymnasium. Boys who were scheduled to report at previous examinations and could not keep the appointment, are eligible to report tonight. Before any boxer will be examined he must present his parental consent card.

Lt. Gene [J. G.] Rankin, former National Collegiate boxing champion, has entered six men from the 87th st. Naval Training school. Two of them, Elmer E. Koske, middleweight, and Lou Police, welterweight, will compete in the open division. Police now is recovering from an arm injury and if he is unable to box at St. Sabina he may be shifted to the north side tournament.

Ringside Enters Smith.

The contestants in the novice division, representing the naval training school, are Don W. Darrah, welterweight; Stanley C. Huss, middleweight; Billie Marshman, light heavyweight, and James Esteragall, heavyweight.

Bob Smith, 135 pounds, will compete in the open division at Loyola for the Ringside gymnasium, 73 W. Randolph st., according to Danny Spunt, who submitted the team entry. Ted Christie is the coach. The Ringside novice boxers are Ronald Stevenson, bantamweight, and Arnold Stevenson and George Levy, lightweights.

The additional entries from Glenview are Robert Green, novice middleweight, and Ollie Hill, novice welterweight. Altho the Duncan Y. M. C. A. had two of its amateur boxers enrolled in the group from the metropolitan area, the west side branch will have its own team of 14 boys. All are novices and in the first four weight classes. They will report for preliminary examinations tonight at the C. Y. O. The Duncan fighters are: Don Russo, Mario Arini, and Al Stagnola, 112 pounds; Sam Tashin, Montana, John Aradio, Robin Gano, Tony Ramonita, and John Aradio, 118 pounds; and Louis Cotti, 126 pounds, and Ernest McCleary, 135 pounds, and Patsy Giglio, 135 pounds.

Sectional programs next week will start each evening at 7 o'clock. Boxers will report between 4 and 6 p. m. for physical examinations and pairings will be made at 6:30. One ring will be used through the tournaments. Admission each night is 85 cents, which includes the 20 per cent federal tax.

Timers Are Veterans.

Ten men, many of whom have officiated since the inception of the Golden Gloves tournaments, will time the bouts. Each round is two minutes with one minute rest between rounds. The Golden Gloves timers are J. J. Lipp, Charles Sidebotham, William Finn, S. R. Darwent, Theodore A. Gross, Walter Sonnenleiter, William Faehs, James Taylor, W. W. Adams, and Harry Normoyle.

READY AND WILLING TO TACKLE TOUGH JOB

Coach Lawrence (Pops) Harrison and five regulars on the University of Iowa basketball team on arrival last night in La Salle Street station for stopover in Chicago en route to Champaign for important Big Nine conference game with University of Illinois tonight. Left to right are Ned Postels, Dick Ives, Clayton Wilkinson, Harrison, Herbert Wilkinson, and Jack Spencer.

TRACK TEAM IS MAROONS' ONLY BIG TEN CONTACT

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

They have no Cunninghamham, Dadds, Warnerham, or Haggs at the University of Chicago, once the athletic members of the team, but they do have a track team, a big time coach, a fieldhouse and, above all, a working interest in Big Ten track affairs.

It's been five years

now since the period of athletic decadence set in at the old institution of learning on the south side, five years since Big Ten football fell by the wayside and was followed more recently by baseball and basketball, leaving Coach Ned Merriam and his track program the school's only medium of Western conference athletic expression.

Wins Five Individual Titles.

Merriam, an alumnus of the University of Chicago and one of its all time track greats, has been in charge of cinder path activities there since 1928 when he succeeded Amos Alonzo Stagg after making a name for himself as track coach at Yale university, where in 1924 the Old El track squad ran off with the I. C. A. A. A. championship.

The Maroon team under Merriam never has been able to accomplish better than a third place in the Western conference meet (in 1930) but back in 1906, 1907, and 1908 his bestness gave the university five individual conference titles, the low hurdles in 1907 and 1908, and the quarter mile in 1906, 1907, and 1908. The first coaching post was with Iowa State in 1913. Then he went to DePaul and from there to Yale.

Meet Wildcats Tomorrow.

This year's Maroon track prospects are none too bright, but Merriam has a squad of 12, mostly freshmen, and they're working hard and long for their debut tomorrow afternoon against Northwestern in the University of Chicago fieldhouse.

The squad consists of two sprinters, Conrad Fischer, a sophomore, and Wallace Tourtelotte, a first year medical student. There are three quarter milers, David McBride, a second year medical student, and Jimmy Rust and David Walsten, both freshmen, who also compete in the 880. Albert Friedlander is the team's only distance runner, while John Bokman, Lawrence Fisher, and Paul Russell specialize in the high and low hurdles.

Four boys participate in field events, Bokman as a high jumper; John Horton, shot putter; Christopher Stockbridge, pole vaulter, and Richard Grinker, broad jumper. As Merriam says, there are not many from whom to choose, but the University of Chicago still is carrying on in Western conference athletics.

Underdogs? The Role Just Suits Iowa!

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS.

There may be a team or teams in the Western conference which can knock the University of Iowa quiet out of the undefeated class, but the burden of proof lies with the opposition. So said Coach Lawrence (Pops) Harrison of the Hawkeyes last night as he hovered around his dozen proteges in the Morrison hotel, where they were to spend the night en route to Champaign for tonight's conference test with the University of Illinois.

Thus far the Iowans have won 10 straight games, including six non-conference affairs and four which count in the Big Nine race. Harrison, a former Iowa star himself, even tho he is much shorter than most of the current crop of Hawkeye stars, commented that there seems to be a tendency in some quarters to pick the Illinois to beat his team. "I don't know why that situation should exist," said he, "but it is all right with us to be classed as the underdogs. Possibly it is just what is needed to fire the boys up for a difficult game."

Foes Rate High, but

Hawkeyes Roll On.
The he admitted that the Illinois game is one of the most difficult assignments his team has faced this season, Harrison called attention to the fact that other opponents also were highly rated at the time the Illinois team met them. "It's true that Illinois now ranks third in the conference," said he, "but if you'll check over the records you'll find that Indiana was tied for third, Michigan was fourth, and Purdue was tied for fourth at the time they met Iowa. That leaves only Minnesota of our four victims as a second division club when we met it."

"You read and hear a lot about the 62.5 average which our team has maintained in winning those 10 games," the one man Hawkeye basketball coaching staff commented, "but we're just as proud of our feat of holding rivals to an average of 62.5 points a game. That is one of the best defensive records credited to any major college team in the country this winter."

Easy Squad to Guard?

Just Watch Entire Group!
One point on which Harrison agrees with most of the critics is the fact that one of the strong factors in the Hawkeyes' success is the distribution of scoring power. "When the opposition devotes too much attention to Dick Ives (last season's conference scoring champion), one of the Wilkinson brothers, Clayton and Herbert, Ned Postels, or Jack Spencer is likely to break loose. And in the Michigan game, when all five of these boys were pretty well stopped, our pinch hitter, young Murray Wier, a freshman substitute who's good enough to play on almost any team, came thru for us."

Having said that, Harrison begged to be excused so that he might see that his charges were fed and hustled off to bed for a good night's rest in preparation for some strenuous business tonight down in Champaign.

CENTERS HOLD SPOTLIGHT IN STADIUM GAMES

Chicago Stadium double headers this season have presented some of the finest centers in intercollegiate basketball. Each double header, of course, is certain to have George Mikan of DePaul, who generally is regarded as the peer of all pivot men and who led the Demons to victory Wednesday night over Hamline for the second time in five days. Howie Schultz, Hamline center, outscored Mikan in St. Paul, but he had 40 minutes to get his 21 points while Mikan fouled out in the second half. As DePaul prepares now to meet Marquette university in the opening game of tomorrow night's double header, the impressive fact is not Mikan's continued high performance but the shooting of Jack Allen in support of Mikan. Allen had averaged only three field goals a game until Wednesday night.

No Team Has Stopped Mikan.

The chance that Marquette has of repeating last year's upset victory over DePaul rests more on preventing Mikan from getting this kind of support rather than the hope that Mikan can be stopped. No team has held Mikan under control. Marquette will send a freshman center, Lawrence Engring, against Mikan but Engring's 6 feet 4 inches are not as impressive as Mikan's 6 feet 10 inches and height and George is far more experienced.

The second game tomorrow night matches Northwestern and Wisconsin, and again the centers are the high scorers. Max Morris of the Wildcats leads the Western conference in scoring and he has 183 points for the complete season of nine games. Ray Patterson, who tied for second in Western conference scoring last year, was moved to forward this season but now has resumed his former position at least part of the time.

Badgers Strengthened.

If Patterson plays center tomorrow night Morris will be assigned to guard him. When Ray plays forward, Frank Wright will get the defensive assignment. Benny Schadler will guard Des Smith, Badger forward.

Morris, Schadler, and Wright carry the Wildcats' attack. Schadler has scored 79 points in nine games while Wright has 71 points for eight games. Altho Northwestern defeated Wisconsin handily in the first of the series, the Badgers will be better because Patterson is available. He did not play against the Wildcats because of illness. Wisconsin has lost two regulars but substitutes apparently are ready especially Gene Mathews.

HAWKEYES AIM FOR FIFTH BIG 9 VICTORY IN ROW

Close Game Likely in Champaign.

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 25 (Special).—Illinois, fifth of six Western conference opponents on the University of Iowa basketball schedule this season, will make its bid to stop the undefeated Hawkeyes tomorrow night in George Huff gymnasium. The Iowans already have defeated Purdue, Michigan, Minnesota and Indiana and still must play return games with those four as well as two with Illinois, now in third place, and a pair with Wisconsin.

In addition to its four Big Nine triumphs, the Iowa team, coached by Lawrence (Pops) Harrison, holds six victories over nonconference teams, the most notable of which was at the expense of Notre Dame. Sentiment on the Illinois campus is that if the boys from the tall corn state can get past tomorrow's contest, it will be hard to keep them from gaining at least a share in the conference championship. The same sources believe the Illini, blessed with the home court atmosphere, have at least an even chance of being the first team to halt the Iowans this season.

Scoring Power Is Distributed.

Dick Ives, sophomore forward, is the Hawkeyes' top scoring threat. He led the conference in scoring last season and broke Andy Phillips' single game record by hitting 43 points against Chicago. Against Indiana, however, Clayton Wilkinson, 6 foot 4 1/2 inch center who transferred to Iowa from the University of Utah, was the offensive star with 20 points.

Coach Doug Mills of the Illini last night worried about the Hawkeye height, since his starting lineup will average 6 feet 2 1/2 inches, but frankly is much concerned because of the Iowans' balanced scoring and experience.

Orr Lands Forward Job.

Mills has indicated that Johnny Orr, Taylorville freshman, is likely to get the starting call at forward over Jake Staab, 1944 letterman.

The Iowa-Illinois game is the only conference contest tomorrow but three Big Nine games are on Saturday's schedule. These include Michigan at Indiana, Minnesota at Purdue, and Northwestern vs. Wisconsin in Chicago Stadium. Starting lineups for tonight's game:

Iowa		Free
Orr		Free
Delaney		C. Wilkinson
Burmaster		B. Wilkinson
Rick		R. Wilkinson

Chandler Will Swing Cudgel for Baseball

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP).—Baseball is worth continuing during war time and congress should look into its case, Senator Chandler (D., Ky.) said today. When work or jail legislation comes up in the senate, the Kentucky asserted he will go to bat for the game's continuance. Chandler was entering the senate chambers when a reporter asked him for his views. "I think baseball should have the right to serve men who have been rejected for service, if that would mean keeping the game going," Chandler said. Not more than three or four hundred men would be affected, he added. "He is not convinced that the man power shortage is that severe. "Playing baseball is the most essential thing most of those fellows (rejected players) can do," Chandler said.

"It is foolish to discount the value of baseball as a morale factor. For that reason alone those fellows (rejected players) would be more valuable playing ball than fiddling around at something else." Chandler's opinion is directly opposite to that of his Kentucky colleague, Rep. May, chairman of the house military committee, who recently said "they closed down the Kentucky Derby and they ought to close down baseball also."

OMA AND BAKSI MEET TONIGHT IN GARDEN BATTLE

New York, Jan. 25 (AP).—Lee Oma, Detroit heavyweight who once served as Joe Baski's sparring partner, will meet the Kulpmont (Pa.) boy tomorrow night in the 10 round main event in Madison Square Garden. The house is scaled for $112,000 but indications are that the gate will approximate $80,000.

NO GAME TODAY AT ST. IGNATIUS, BUT THE DANCE—!

Basketball Yields Floor to Junior Prom.

BY DAVID CONDON.
Tom Barnicle, basketball coach at St. Ignatius, sighed sadly.
"It was too good to be true," he said. "All week long the boys looked good. No stepping on toes. Their feet didn't get tangled up. They were polite. They flitted around the floor until I was proud of them."
He continued. "Such ease. You wouldn't know the team was scheduled to play St. Philip. They practiced with such grace you'd think they were preparing for a dance."
"They were," he sighed. "For the junior prom!"

Barnicle hated to admit it, but tonight's scheduled game with St. Philip, in which the junior fives were to meet for the north section Catholic league lead, had yielded to St. Ignatius prom.
Can't Practice What They Preach.
"It looks," he said, "like the wait is mightier than the hook shot, or whatever parallel you wish to strike up. However, the game will be played Tuesday. By that time our teams should be in fine shape, and you can look for some exquisite performances."

Barnicle, who was not alone in his troubles. In the St. Philip gym last night, the north section Catholic league coaches held a preview performance for their Sunday night game with the coaches of the south section. The game will be played in Loyola gymnasium, as a prelude to a game between high school stars from the North and South sections.

Tony Lawless of Fenwick conducted the coaches' practice session. "We have a trick offense," said Tony. "Even a secret defense. Some of our plays are so secret even we don't know how they go. Of course, this is our first practice, and we might look sloppy, but I'll show you what I mean."

It Looks Unstoppable.
Tony threw the ball out to the players. "Here's an example of our middle age break. We'll run thru it once to give you an idea."
The coaches lined up. George Bandy tossed the ball to Clem Naughton, who dribbled and passed to Max Burnell. Max pivoted and threw a bounce pass to Kieran Crowley. Lawless cut behind Crowley, took the ball, and passed to Dave Hayes, who threw in a layup shot. It was a perfect basket.

Lawless beamed. "See," he said. "Hayes was clear. No one covering him. It's a wonderful scoring play."
Some one added the players in the middle age break, and they totaled six.
"Sure," conceded Lawless. "Like I was telling you, it's our first practice. We haven't got all the details worked out yet, just the tricky parts."

N. U. SWIM TEAM, GREAT LAKES TO CLASH TONIGHT

Northwestern university's swimming team will oppose Great Lakes in a return meet in Patten pool tonight at 8 o'clock. Since their early season victory over the Wildcats, the undefeated Bluejackets have scored triumphs over Michigan, Purdue, and DePaul.
Three members of the Bluejacket squad come up to tonight's meet with undefeated records. They are Achilles Poulos, 50 and 100 yard free style; Everett Turley, back stroke; and Ray Mondro, breast stroke. Turley will face his strongest competition of the season to night when he meets Bob Tribble of the Wildcats, Big Ten backstroke champion.

YALE SWIMMING CAPTAIN BREAKS TWO U.S. RECORDS

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 25 (AP).—Alan Ford, Yale's swimming captain, continued his assault on American 20 yard pool swimming records today, smashing both the 100 meter and the 110 yard records established by Johnny Weismuller in 1927 and 1928.
Ford lowered Weismuller's 100 meter record of 57 seconds to 55.7, and slashed the 110 yard record of 57 to 56.4.

A. A. U. Swim Meet to Open Tomorrow

Approximately 60 men, women, and children swimmers will compete in the Central A. A. U. and open events meet to be held tomorrow in the Town Club pool on the 13th floor of the Continental hotel, according to Allene Warden, town club instructor.
Five Central A. A. U. championships will be decided in the finals which will begin at 8 p. m. Because of the large number of entries, preliminaries will begin at 2 p. m. Central A. A. U. events include the 100 yard free style, 100 yard back stroke, 400 yard free style relay, high board dive, and group synchronized swimming, all for women.

Barbara Werten Seeks Record.
Barbara Werten of the Town Club will defend her 100 yard back stroke title and will attempt to break the record which she set last year. In the 100 yard free style event Jeanne Wilson of Lake Shore, defending champion, is expected to receive her best competition from Rosemarie Voelker of the Town Club.
A free-for-all is in prospect in the high board dive event with Virginia Fitzgerald of Lake Shore, defending champion; Dorothy Ziegler, Town club, champion two years ago; and Marilynne Miller, Town club, competing for honors.
In the group synchronized swimming event the Chicago Water Ballet will be back to defend its title. Lake Shore and the Town Club also will enter teams.

Events for Junior Girls.
Open events will include the 100 yard free style for women, and the 220 yard breast stroke for men. Great Lakes Naval Training center is expected to enter a team.
This year, for the first time, events will be held for girls between the ages of 11 and 14. They will include the 25 yard free style and back stroke for girls 11 and 12, and the 50 yard free style for girls 13 and 14.

HARRIS SCHOOL'S 8TH GYM SHOW SET FOR TONIGHT

The eighth annual gymnasium show, sponsored by the Harris school, will be held in the school's gymnasium, 2400 Lake View av., this evening at 8 p. m. Proceeds will be donated to charity.
Sixty-five boys in the lower school, from third to seventh grades, will participate in five numbers on the program before a varsity basketball game between the upper school's quintet and Elgin academy. Included in the program are various races, tumbling, boxing, wrestling, callisthenics, and apparatus numbers."

FRANK SINKWICH TOLD TO REPORT FOR DRAFT TEST

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 25 (AP).—Frank Sinkwich, former University of Georgia All-American football player and later a Detroit Lions pro star, has been called for pre-induction examination by his draft board, according to an Atlanta newspaper.
Sinkwich received a medical discharge from the marine corps last summer and was classified 4-F.

St. Thomas Apostle Wins in Juvenile Meet Opener

St. Thomas Apostle needed an overtime period to defeat St. Cecilia, 23 to 19, last night in the opening session of a six day grammar school basketball tournament in the Visitation community center. St. Mary's of Perpetual Help and St. Columbanus, tournament favorites, will play their first games tonight.
Other results:

OLSEN REVEALS COLLEGE TITLE TOURNEY PLANS

Columbus, O., Jan. 25 (AP).—Harold G. Olsen, basketball coach at Ohio State university and chairman of the National Collegiate Athletic association's basketball tournament committee, announced today the eight district committees which will select the teams to participate in the N. C. A. A.'s seventh annual basketball tournament in March.
The four teams selected from west of the Mississippi river will play at Kansas City March 23 and 24. The four selected from east of the Mississippi will compete in New York's Madison Square Garden March 22 and 24.
The fourth district, which includes Western conference universities, is comprised of Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota. The committee appointed by Olsen for this district is Z. G. Cleveland, Indiana university, chairman; Ben Van Alstyne, Michigan State, and William S. Chandler, Marquette university.

VALPOS DEFEAT HOLY CROSS IN BOSTON, 64 TO 51

Boston, Mass., Jan. 25 (AP).—Valparaiso university's basketball team defeated Holy Cross 64 to 51, in the feature of the Boston Garden's double header tonight before a seasonal record crowd of 7,414.
The Crusaders, who beat DePaul 41 to 35, gave their opponents the stiffest sort of argument until, while leading 31 to 27, they lost their stellar guard, Bob Hogarty, who drew his fifth foul before the second half was four minutes old.
In the opener, the Albright college quintet, thanks to its airtight defense, managed to gain its 11th straight victory of the season and its 15th in a row by topping the University of Detroit 39 to 33.
Shortly after Valparaiso was elected, Milt Schoon, Valparaiso's tallest performer at 6 feet 9 inches, also fouled out but his loss did not appear to hamper his sharpshooting teammates, who were paced by John Janisch and Bob Dillie with 17 and 13 points, respectively.

DODGERS ADD FORT WORTH TO FARM LIST

Bear Mountain, N. Y., Jan. 25 (AP).—The Brooklyn National league club purchased the Fort Worth franchise in the dormant Texas league today, Branch Rickey, Dodger president, told a group of baseball writers inspecting the club's spring training quarters.
Rickey said Brooklyn acquired the Fort Worth baseball holdings completely, including field, uniforms, and reserve list, but would not reveal the price, except to say it was an expensive move.
The Dodgers now have a 10 club farm system.
Rickey also said that Luis Olmo, Puerto Rican outfielder, and Ben Chapman, pitcher, had been classified 1-A since last October and that Erwin Rudolph, pitcher, purchased from St. Paul, already had been inducted. "Despite that, I believe baseball will go this season, and I think we should elect a commissioner right away," he said.

Gloves Boxers to End Tuneup Bouts Tonight

Alex Tsakiris, Proviso Township High school middleweight, and Glenn Murphy, Madison Athletic club featherweight, will finish preparations for competition in the north sectional Golden Gloves trials next week when they appear in two bouts of three rounds tonight in the Madison Athletic club. All Madison is the former against Doug Jordan of the Savoy A. C. and Murphy against James McGary, Caleb A. C.
Also on the program will be Robert Williams, 1944 city Golden Gloves novice lightweight finalist. Williams is paired with Virgil Atkins in one of five intercity contests between boxers from St. Louis and Chicago. The program:
Virgil Atkins, St. Louis, vs. Robert Williams, Chicago (5); 135. Louis Gray, St. Louis, vs. Cesar Douglas, Chicago (5); 147. Lester Jones, St. Louis, vs. William Marrow, Chicago (5); 135. Fred Jaton, St. Louis, vs. Cale Colton, Chicago (5); 130. Spencer Gully, St. Louis, vs. Stanley Sherer, Chicago (5); 140. Glenn Murphy, Madison A. C., vs. James McGary, Caleb A. C. (5); 126. Alex Tsakiris, Proviso High, vs. Doug Jordan, Savoy A. C. (5); 165.

Robert Satterfield, 1941 city Golden Gloves open welterweight champion, will make his professional debut under the management of Ike Bernstein in a four round bout against Larry O'Connor of Detroit in the Coliseum next Friday night. The program will be topped by a 10 round event between Pvt. Joe Maxim, heavyweight of Camp Maden, Mo., and Cleveland. Satterfield sparred three rounds with Hubert Hood, also a former Golden Gloves titleholder, in Eddie Nichols' gymnasium on E. 50th st. last night. Hood is preparing for a 10 round bout with Bob Garner, Louisville heavyweight, in Marigold Gardens Monday.

The 1945 officers of the Veterans Boxers' association of Illinois were installed last night at a meeting of the organization in the club's headquarters in the Garrick building. The list of new officers follows:
Martin Luck, president; John Bart, first vice president; Maurice Flynn, second vice president; Patrick Ledyer, treasurer; Buty Fischer, financial secretary; James Bivell, editor; Morris Small, recording secretary; Dick McAdams and Morris Bloom, sergeants at arms.
After the installation it was announced six members will go to County hospital in a group tonight to donate blood to Paul Paloski, former wrestling and boxing promoter, who is seriously ill.

City League Quintets Draw Rest from Games

City league basketball squads yesterday enjoyed their first official day of rest since the winter sport began early last month. No league games were scheduled from last Wednesday until Monday because of mid-term graduations in the public high schools.

Shutdown at Oriental May Be Permanent

HAVANA, Jan. 25 (AP).—Possibility of a complete shutdown of Oriental Park, Havana's suburban race track, was hinted today when the plan's management refused to increase the purses because it fears the Cuban government intends to halt all wagering after March. The tourist law legalizes betting only from January thru March.
It has been reported unofficially that the government plans to put a tight ban on race track betting after the winter season, following the broad anti-gambling policy established by the newly inaugurated President Grau. He already has shut down the daily lottery and has been driving against other forms of gambling.

Orlando Rodriguez, Cuban sports director, held another conference today with the Oriental Park management and the striking horsemen's association representatives.

Hunters Ask State Check on Fox Life

BY BOB BECKER.
Upland game hunters in northern Illinois are agreed that their mid-winter slogan should be: "Down with the foxes." The reason is that the foxes in Illinois are too numerous for the good of wild life. In most states, where these animals are kept in check, there is comparatively little damage inflicted on the game bird population.
Arthur B. McDonald, Wadsworth, Ill., sums up the attitude of most sportsmen toward the fox situation in this letter:
"Your Jan. 12 article on the killer fox was timely. I have observed since early last spring about 25 den and found the remains of 30 to 35 pheasants, chickens, ducks, and geese around each of them. Several farmers have complained to me about fox depredations.
"I admit that fox kill mice; I have seen many signs of where the rodents were dug from the ground. But I believe that the stomach contents of the foxes in and around this territory would show at least 80 per cent made up of domesticated and wild birds, probably 10 per cent of other animals, and maybe 10 per cent mice.
"The trappers in this area seem to have failed—the foxes are just too smart. I suggest that you and I and other game lovers go to Mr. Livingston Osborne and try to change the game laws with respect to foxes. I have no desire to exterminate all foxes. All we want to do is to control them."

DALLAS WANTS JESSE JONES—AS FOOTBALL COACH

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 25 (AP).—Jesse H. Jones, Houston financier ousted this week as United States secretary of commerce and head of federal lending agencies, can have a shot at the Highland Park High school [Dallas] football coaching job vacated by the recent resignation of H. N. [Rusty] Russell if he wants it.
Dr. Harold G. Clark, president of the Highland Park High Quarter Back club, today announced the dispatching during the day of the following telegram:
Hon. Jesse H. Jones, Washington, D. C.
We have just lost our football coach to southern Methodist university. Understand you have been head of the political coaching staff in Washington. Would you consider job at Highland Park High school, Highland Park High school, Dallas? We must furnish your own priority. If in here your express. 23 Races Are Scheduled at Elgin Sunday

Twenty-three races will complete the tri-state ice skating championship program scheduled for Sunday at Lords park in Elgin. Included in the list are three races for senior men and an equal number for the senior women.
According to Merrell Calame, director of the meet, all the leading skaters in this part of the country will compete, including teams from the C. Y. O. Northwest Skating club, Glen Ellyn A. F. Ice play-ground, George F. Barrett A. C. all of Chicago, with a representative list from the leading clubs in Wisconsin, Michigan, and Missouri. Outside of the senior men's class, in which the C. Y. O. has its main strength, the titles should be well divided.
Frank Jelich of West Allis, Wis., defending champion, will be back and is in top skating form.

DARING HAWKS TO KEEP DATE WITH RED WINGS

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Manager Paul Thompson, in drilling his Blackhawks yesterday in preparation for week-end games with the Detroit Red Wings, opined that the reason the Hawks looked so terrible in losing to the New York Rangers Wednesday night was because they were overzealous. Paul is one of those fine Canadian gentlemen who would rather take all the blame himself than refer to his charges as clowns.
In the drill yesterday the squad was divided into two teams and scrimmage was held. Work was done in skating, passing, rule interpretation, shooting at the cage from close in, and from far out, body checking, fore checking, back checking, poke checking, and goal tending.

They Get Shoes on Sight

These were the principal departments in which the Hawks were clumsy in their loss to the Rangers. In the matter of locating and getting out of the Stadium they were proficient, and a check-up revealed they had their left shoes and left skates on their left feet and were similarly accurate in their right feet. All have sticks of the same quality used by the re players.
The Hawks will work out in the Stadium again this morning and tomorrow morning will depart for Detroit, where they will play the Wings tomorrow night. Then the team will come to Chicago for a match in the Stadium Sunday night.

Detroit Ice Is a Jinx

The Chicagoans haven't won a game in Detroit for several years, but they have whipped the second place team twice this season, 6 to 5, on Nov. 26, and 2 to 1 on Dec. 17. These two defeats represent one-third the total losses of the Wings in league competition this year. They also represent two-fifths of the total victories achieved by the Hawks this season.

A Native of Aurora.

Mr. Reid was born in Aurora on April 19, 1870, and had made the town his official residence all his life.

He attended the University of Chicago in 1899 and 1900 and the Chicago College of Law from 1900 to 1901, and had been a power in Kane county politics from the time he was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1901.

His first job after admission to the bar was as attorney for Kane county. Three years later he was state attorney, in which capacity he served from 1904 to 1908. For the next two years he was an assistant United States attorney in Chicago.

Elected to Illinois House.

Then Reid began his career as an elected representative by winning a seat in the Illinois house of representatives, where he served until 1912. He then was chairman of the Republican county central committee of Kane county for two years.

During the first World war he was appointed a special attorney for the city and while in the position he became well known for his fight to lower the 10 cent elevated fare.

He was first sent to congress in 1922 and won success in 1934 until he resigned in January, 1935.

Known as Prohibitionist.

Reid was best known during his congressional career as a prohibitionist. In nearly all his congressional battles he was indorsed by the Anti-Saloon league.

While in congress Reid gained considerable fame as chief attorney for the late Gen. William (Billy) Mitchell in Mitchell's court-martial trial in 1925 for criticizing the army's air force policy. In recent years Reid had limited himself to a private law practice, although he was a delegate to the Republican conventions in 1936 and 1940.

In 1905 he married Emily Kelley.

STRANGE NOISE BRINGS POLICE ON THEFT HUNT

The home of Walter Dill Scott, retired president of Northwestern university, at 1729 Chicago av., Evanston, rented during his absence by Capt. Richard K. Gaines of the navy, was the scene of a burglar hunt last night.

A strange noise disturbed Mrs. Gaines as she awoke her husband. He is deputy chief of the naval air technical training command in Chicago, and she called the police. Policemen Albert Brielmann and Zigmund Wroblewski traced the noise to an old fashioned gas range.

The oven was empty, but the noise seemed to come from the stove. The mantle stoppers and most of the stove before they found the cause in a chimney outlet. It was an owl which got down the chimney without damaging a feather.

SCHOOLS DONATE 245,790 BARS OF SOAP TO POLAND

Chicago public elementary school pupils donated 245,790 bars of the equivalent of 30 tons, for Polish war relief in a one week drive completed recently, Supt. William H. Johnson said yesterday. Chicago park district trucks collected the soap from the schools and it was sent to New York for shipment to Poland, where the supply has been reported short since the German invasion. The top 12 schools in the amount of soap collected were Doolittle, Parkside, Farnsworth, Kozminski, Bateman, Burlew, Darwin, McLaren, Calhoun, Bryant, Ravenswood and Audubon.

CHICAGO PHONE
TALK PRECEDES
KILLING IN AUTO

A verdict of "brain destruction by gun wound" . . . from hands of a person or persons unknown" was returned by a Lake county coroner's jury at Antioch yesterday at the inquest into the death early Wednesday of Floyd Ventura, 30, of 2016 57th st., Kenosha, Wis. The ex-convict and restaurant owner was found shot to death in his automobile on Deep Lake rd., half a mile south of the Illinois-Wisconsin line in Lake county.

His fiancée, Katherine Rammel, 29, assistant manager of the Esquire grill in Kenosha, testified that Ventura was shot to death with a man whom he identified as either "Tom or Don." She said she believed the call came from Chicago.

Ventura recently bid $110,000 on Kenosha's largest office building, but lost. He served a year for operating a still in Kenosha after conviction in March, 1943.

Friends Greet Goldman,
Free After Prison Term

Albert Goldman, Chicago labor attorney and one of 18 defendants convicted in the government's first edition trial in Minnesota in 1942, was given a welcome home party last night in the Ashland auditorium, Ashland blvd. and Van Buren st., by more than 200 friends and well wishers. Goldman and 11 others were released Wednesday from the federal penitentiary at Sandston, Minn., after serving 15 months. Goldman is a member of the Minnesota Truck Drivers, local 544 (CIO), and national chairman of the Socialist Workers (Trotskyist) party.

ISBELL SEEKS SUSPENSION OF 13 GAS STATIONS

The first 13 of a projected 125 gasoline station suspension cases were filed yesterday by Marion W. Isbell, area office of price administration director, in an announced move to wipe out the gas black market here. They will be heard by John R. Allen, regional hearing commissioner, within the next two weeks.

Isbell said 125 cases have been investigated and completed, and will be filed shortly. Each charges the station operator with accepting and using counterfeit ration coupons.

Nearly 200 operators have been suspended since July 1, 1944, and the suspensions range from one week to the duration of rationing. Isbell said duration revocations will be asked in all the new cases, which, he said, involved flagrant violations.

The following stations, and the gallons of gasoline represented by the alleged counterfeit coupons, were named yesterday: Michael Schwartz, 3401 N. Ashland av., 600 gallons; C. M. Mazur, 9556 Skokie hwy., 2151; John Hill & Son, 5530 Calumet av., 2,525; Oakley Auto Company, 2300 Division st., 2,724; Polner's Standard station, 48 E. 55th st., 2,049; D. J. NEW SCHOOL TOO
SMALL; SPACE TO BE LEASED

The board of education has made arrangements to rent four residence structures of the Altgeld federal housing project for schoolrooms to augment space in the new school under construction at 5,680 Illinois av. It was learned yesterday. The school already has been found too small.

Plans are being made with the government, which pays 40 per cent of the cost, to construct a fourth addition of the school. Meanwhile, the board will pay $450 per month for each residence structure.

Parents of Manierre school, burned by fire last week, will meet at 8 p. m. today in Olivet institute, Blackhawk st. and Cleveland av., to discuss problems caused by the shift of Manierre pupils to Franklin school and to the Washburne-Wells High school branch.

De Tarnowsky Belonging Reported Gone from Home

Atty. Norman Becker, representing Capt. Alexis de Tarnowsky, who is in Europe, reported to Judge Michael Feinberg in Circuit court yesterday that the captain's civilian clothes, his children's toys, china, and a piano have disappeared from the De Tarnowsky home in Barrington.

Investigation is being conducted by the police. The house has been occupied since Mrs. Alice Rand de Tarnowsky, who was married to Pvt. Charles L. F. McIntosh after obtaining a Mexican divorce from the captain, went to California.

Fulton Lewis Jr. to Give Broadcasts from Europe

Fulton Lewis Jr., W-G-N-Mutual Washington reporter and commentator, will leave shortly for Europe to make a series of broadcasts from the fighting fronts. Lewis' reports will be heard at 6 p. m. on WGNB and on W-G-N at 10:45 o'clock on week nights.

MRS. MAY BEQUEATHS $912,000; ESTIMATED ESTATE IS $500,000

Mrs. Alice Chapin May, 87, who died Jan. 15 in her home, 1420 Lake Shore dr., made bequests totaling $912,000, including $115,000 to 42 charities and philanthropies. Her will was filed yesterday with Frank Lyman, clerk of the Probate court. She was the widow of Francis E. May, an official of the Union City Bridge and Carbon corporation. John R. Heath, who filed the will, said the present estimated value of the estate is $500,000.

One bequest by Mrs. May, a daughter of Marietta Armour Chapin, was to her niece, Mrs. Alice Silverthorn, a former Traffic, Chicago's "tragic countess," who committed suicide in 1942 on her Kenya colony farm in East Africa.

Organizations to receive gifts include Illinois Institute of Technology and First Presbyterian church, $5,000 each; Sunday Evening club, Presbyterian hospital, Grant hospital, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, Ar. Institute, Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A., Chicago church federation, Chicago Tract society, Pacific Grand mission, and Moody Bible institute.

LEFT DAUGHTER

New York, Jan. 25 (Special).—Rep. Clarence Boothe Luce, Connecticut Republican, is seeking the trust fund shares left Ann Clare Brokaw, 19, who was killed Jan. 11, 1944, in an automobile accident in Palo Alto, Cal.

Her action was disclosed today when Howard Crosby Brokaw, former brother-in-law of Mrs. Luce, filed accounts in Surrogate's court here as trustee of two trust funds set up by his father—Ann Clare's grandfather—Isaac V. Brokaw, who died Sept. 29, 1917.

Brokaw said his father's will was not clear regarding the disposition of money left a grandchild who died during his or her minority. Mrs. Luce claims her daughter's share as administratrix of Ann Clare's estate.

One trust fund is worth $297,000, and the other $879,000, Brokaw said.

RESTRICT NEW WAR ORDERS IN CRITICAL AREAS

Cut in Authorized Building Forecast.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP).—The war production board today acted to prevent new munitions contracts from piling up in tight labor areas. Effective Feb. 1, the order by Chairman Krug requires that plants in 72 cities and industrial areas be classified as "group 1" or "group 2" areas.

This will be followed by drastic new curbs on nonmilitary construction and a further squeeze on civilian manufacturing.

"Spot" Program Hit Again.

The checks on the procurement power of the military services, navy, time commission and treasury department were made effective upon both prime and sub-contractors. They make up two elements of a four-point program. The other man power conservation measures:

First, a further curtailment of the already reduced spot program for civilian goods manufacturing. It is to be suspended, probably in mid-February, in about 77 additional cities. WPA sources said, by extending the present ban covering 125 cities so that it will cover all "group 2" areas.

Second, a tightening of building regulations. WPA proposes to review all construction projects now permitted, to discover whether they compete for labor needed to build new plants for the expanding shell, ordnance, high octane gasoline, and other urgent military programs.

Hospitals May Be Held Up.

Thus, schools, hospitals, theaters and other buildings previously approved as essential to health, welfare, or civilian morale, would be halted if they were found to be using labor needed for war plants.

WPA approval already is required for arms contracts placed in five west coast cities and a few others.

When a contractor in an acute labor area asks WPA whether he can accept a new contract requiring an increase in his labor ceiling, WPA will forward the request to the production urgency committee under which the plant operates. This committee, headed by a WPA field officer and including representatives of the war man power commission and the army and navy, will make the final recommendation.

LOW PAY HARMS CHICAGO PLANTS, SAY CIO CHIEFS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—Officials of three CIO unions today told a conference of Illinois congressmen, summoned by Sen. Lucas (D., Ill.), that there was "trouble ahead" in Chicago if the government does not revise the Little Steel formula and authorize wage increases.

Ernest De Maio, president of the Chicago unit of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, asserted the radar industry in Chicago had been "endangered by low wage levels" and said 2,000 workers quit one plant because wages had not been raised.

Al Glenn, international representative of the United Automobile Workers, warned that the referendum now being conducted on the "no strike" pledge in the UAW might result in abolition of the pledge if wages were not increased. Employment at the Studebaker plant in Chicago has been slashed by 30 per cent, he said, and even those remaining on the pay roll cannot meet living expenses.

Representatives of the United Steel Workers endorsed these statements.

ADVANCE BY RYE LEADS PRICES OF GRAINS HIGHER

Grain markets on the Chicago Board of Trade rallied strongly in the late trading yesterday under leadership of rye, which closed 1 to 1 1/2 cents a bushel higher on buying regarded as professional.

Wheat declined early and at one time December sold at a new low since late November. It rallied with rye and finished unchanged to 1/8 higher.

Corn advanced 3/4 to 1/2 and oats 1/4 to 1/4. Barley was unchanged to 1/4 higher.

The advance was made despite favorable war news, but bearish sentiment was tempered by firmness in securities and cotton and shorts covered freely when it became apparent pressure was light.

Britain Gets U.S. Tools at Fifth of Cost

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—Fifty-eight thousand American-made machine tools, which originally cost the United States 166 million dollars, have been sold outright to the British government for 2 1/2 million, less than a fifth of their cost, Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator announced today. The tools were delivered to the United Kingdom under lend-lease.

Crowley said the original cost figure includes the value of those plants which were lost by enemy action en route to England or after war. The purchase gives the British full title not only to all the lend-lease machine tools, but to attachments and spare parts.

Based on Depreciation.

Crowley said the 3 1/2 million dollars paid by the British is based on depreciation caused by "hard use" of the tools under war-time conditions and represents an agreed estimate of the value they will have after they no longer are required for war work. He said the use of these tools by the British under lend-lease will be taken into account "in whatever general settlement is ultimately arrived at with respect to lend-lease and mutual aid."

Crowley asserted the transaction resulted from the recognition by both governments of the special problems associated with machine tools. He said the tools should be sold in advance of the end of hostilities. He added, however, that the transaction is not to be regarded as a precedent for the disposition of other lend-lease property or as prejudging whatever general lend-lease settlement may be reached.

U. S. Needs Canvassed.

The FEA administrator reported that current United States machine tool requirements were canvassed thoroughly to determine that no need for such tools existed in this country. He said that in acquiring title to the tools, the British have agreed to make available to the United States on loan without cost such idle tools as may be needed here for war purposes in the future.

He said the British also have agreed to withhold the tools from the export market for at least five years after the end of the war with Germany.

As a result of this purchase and others, the British have no machine tools of American origin in its possession which have not been bought outright.

Crowley said that only 12 1/2 per cent of British machine tools requirements have been filled by lend-lease—73 per cent having been provided by United Kingdom manufacturers and 14 1/2 per cent by cash purchase in the United States.

STOCK MARKET TURNS UPWARD; TRANSFERS DIP

New York, Jan. 25 (AP).—The stock market advanced today for the first time since Jan. 17, although on the smallest five hour turnover since Dec. 21.

Rails led a moderate recovery at the opening. Low priced issues accounted for most of the activity.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite rose 0.4 to 58.2. Of 888 issues registering, 567 were in the plus column. Transfers were 973,890 shares, against 1,012,460 yesterday.

New York, Jan. 25 (AP).—A long list of rail bonds scored gains of a point or more in the bond market today, although trading declined. Buying spread to the rest of the list, but carriers retained the lead. Ten per cent $7,971,500 face value, compared with $9,247,800 yesterday.

CHICAGO PRICES RISE

Prices advanced yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange and turnover increased to 60,000 shares. Active issues included Standard Dredging common and Consolidated Edict, each up 1/2. Commonwealth Edison, down 1/4, and Middle West corporation, unchanged.

CIO, U. S. STEEL RESUME PARLEY ON WAGES PACT

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 25 (AP).—The CIO United Steelworkers union and five United States Steel corporation subsidiaries today resumed negotiations for a contract based on a war labor board directive of Nov. 25.

Negotiations were broken off more than a week ago when union and management were unable to agree on the meaning of six clauses in the WLB directive. On Monday a joint petition was submitted to the WLB, asking clarification of these clauses, and both parties asked another 30 days in which to negotiate on severance pay.

INCREASE RAIL TRAFFIC CURBS TO FIGHT TEUP

Bar Non-war Goods from 10 States.

Both freight and passenger service in some parts of the east was curtailed further yesterday as a result of renewed snow storms and cold in the Buffalo and Mohawk valley areas of New York state. Severe weather had made necessary an earlier embargo.

The Association of American Railroads at Washington, D. C., issued a new embargo tightening that put into effect Tuesday. At the request of the office of defense transportation, the A. A. R. embargoed consignments of all except war freight to, thru or within 10 states both east and south of the Great Lakes.

Made Effective Tomorrow.

The original embargo was to expire Sunday and the new one will become effective at 12:01 a. m. eastern war time tomorrow to continue until 12:01 a. m. eastern war time Tuesday. Saturday and Sunday are lighter days in freight movement, so the order will be less severe than might have been expected.

The new embargo removes exceptions contained in the original order which means that live stock, live poultry, fresh and frozen meat, coal and coke, and certain less than carload shipments will be barred during the three days.

The association said the latest embargo was intended to keep essential lines open for freight consigned to seaports for export or to ordnance plants and for government freight.

Will Relieve Congestion.

The announcement said that by stopping the flow of all freight other than that for war thru the surrounding territory and surrounding areas it is expected that the congestion will be relieved sufficiently by Monday night to permit resumption of usual traffic.

States affected are Indiana, lower Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, West Virginia, and Virginia north of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway line from Huntington, W. Va., to Potomac yards, Va.

J. W. Switzer, passenger traffic manager of the New York Central, announced that passenger service curtailments have been filled by train No. 90, the Advance Forest City, which usually leaves at 12:30 p. m. for New York, will operate only as far as Cleveland. Coach service will be available to New York from Cleveland. Train No. 90 leaving at 8:10 p. m. for Cleveland, with transfers for Youngstown, O., and Pittsburgh, Pa., will make its last run on Jan. 28.

WEATHER IS SEVERE

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 25 (Special).—The eastern part of the country was gripped by the winter's most severe cold wave and snowstorms. Temperatures ranging down to 35 degrees below zero were reported in many parts of New York and adjacent states. Another heavy blizzard at Syracuse increased the winter's snowfall there to almost 9 feet. It was estimated that 5,000 empty railroad cars are tied up in this area.

SENATE PASSES COMPROMISE ON INSURANCE BILL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP).—The Senate today passed and sent to the House a compromise bill providing for continued state regulation and taxation of insurance companies.

Under its terms the insurance companies are granted a moratorium until June 1, 1947, from application of the federal Sherman act and until Jan. 1, 1948, from application of the Clayton act. It would give insurance companies time to adjust their operations and permit congress and the states to consider further legislation dealing with agreements on rates and other phases of their operations.

Beech Aircraft Capital Stock Increase Voted

Wichita, Kas., Jan. 25 (AP).—The capital stock of the Beech Aircraft corporation was boosted today from 500,000 to 1,500,000 shares of $1 common stock at the delayed annual meeting of stockholders. All directors and officers were reelected.

Capital Transit Gets New Bond Bid of 98.5 Pct.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 25 (AP).—Capital Transit company, Washington, D. C., today filed with the securities and exchange commission an amendment to its registration of 12 1/2 million dollars of first and refunding mortgage bonds substituting 98 1/2 per cent for the 97 1/2 per cent price submitted by the single group of bidders under competitive bidding. The new price was offered by the same group of underwriters headed by Alex. Brown & Sons, Baltimore. SEC had denied approval to the earlier bid.

Money in Circulation Falls 100 Million in Month

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP).—Money in circulation decreased in the week ended Wednesday for the fourth consecutive week, the federal reserve board reported today. A seasonal drop is usual in late December and January, but the decline of 160 million dollars of the last four weeks is the largest for the corresponding period in four years.

THE QUESTION.
What has been your most unusual or amusing experience in the fruit or vegetable business?

WHERE ASKED.
United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable association, Stevens hotel.

THE ANSWERS.

Perry Stern, auctioneer, 1404 Sherwin av.—At a fruit auction, I explained the operations to an elderly gentleman. He said he understood everything. Ten days later I received a letter from him. His club had asked for a speech on the auction and he wanted to know two things: "Who buys the fruit and what he is paid?"

Alan T. Rine, grower, Redondo Beach, Cal.—In a cold snap I hired some transient help to keep the fruit from freezing. Ignorant of the system, in the middle of the night they wanted their pay because they thought I was crazy. They said, "You can't heat the whole outdoors."

Fred S. Johnston, sales manager, Tampa, Fla.—After the hurricane in Florida in October, I made an inspection tour of the groves. In the area hit, from 50 per cent to 95 per cent of the fruit had been blown off the trees. It was a disaster to sight to see, but it was certainly unusual.

Don S. Nelson, Salt Lake City, Utah.—In Honeyville, Utah, I was removing the fans from a pre-cooled berries that had just been pre-cooled. The temperature was down to about 39 degrees. I was accidentally locked in the car, and the train pulled out for Tennessee. At the first stop, I yelled until help came.

Max Himelstein, Fort Wayne, Ind.—We sent a wire to an agent in Florida: "Ship one car tomatoes wrap well." They had to be wrapped because it was cold here. The wire arrived: "Ship one car tomatoes weigh well." As a result, a carload of tomatoes arrived, frozen solid. The telephone company stated.

M. L. Catania, retailer, Toronto, Canada.—About 35 years ago in Toronto, Canada, bananas were a new fruit on the market. To get customers to buy bananas, we had to eat them to prove they were edible. Some days we'd have to eat as many as a dozen to make a sale.

Public Works Held Essential to Peace Jobs

More public works must be planned immediately if a high employment level is to be maintained after the war, Patrick F. Sullivan, president of the Chicago Building Trades council, warned yesterday. At the annual meeting of the Greater Central District association in the University club, Sullivan said few municipalities have the money to proceed with post-war planning.

He explained that of 996 million dollars of work ready for immediate action after the war, three-fifths was concentrated in five states, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, and California, and two-fifths in New York City, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, and Los Angeles.

Example of Planning.

"This is an example of what is happening in post-war planning throughout the country," he said. "It is a good indication of what may happen in the way of employment." He criticized interference by the government in the construction industry and said restrictive regulations should be lifted so that private industry should be permitted to handle its own business.

"If the construction industry is left alone, it will be a great deal better off," he said. "We should not have everybody telling the industry what to do."

Little Material Ready.

Sullivan said that material stock piles were inadequate to permit building of homes immediately after the war to any appreciable extent.

"Let us not fool ourselves that industry will start off with a bang," he warned. "Conversion takes time. I doubt if there is not going to be unemployment after the war."

"One man employed in the construction industry means three will be employed in allied industries. If the construction industry does not get a fast start after the war, I doubt if there will be any going to be unemployment after the war."

POTATO SUPPLY PLACED 23 PCT. BELOW YEAR AGO

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP).—The potato supply on Jan. 1 was 23 per cent below a year ago, the department of agriculture said today in a report lending support to trade forecasts of a possible severe shortage in the spring.

The quantity held by dealers and growers was estimated at 103,530,000 bushels, compared with 134,020,000 bushels a year ago. The reduction was attributed to a 19 per cent drop in production of storable potatoes and in a larger disappearance during the fall and early winter.

The current Jan. 1 stocks were about the same as those held on the corresponding date in 1943, the year in which a severe spring shortage developed.

Capital Transit Gets New Bond Bid of 98.5 Pct.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 25 (AP).—Capital Transit company, Washington, D. 1944 EARNINGS OF BETHLEHEM RISE 4 MILLION

Result of Tax Drop, Grace Reports.

Bethlehem Steel corporation in a preliminary statement yesterday reported 1944 net income was $36,167,723, equal after dividends on the preferred stock to $9.93 a common share. It was the largest annual profit for Bethlehem since 1940 when $48,678,000 or $14.04 a share was earned. In 1943 net income was $32,124,592 or $8.58 a common share. Directors declared the usual quarterly $1.50 dividend.

The company reported net income in the final quarter of 1944 was $16,379,398, equal to $4.94 a share, against $6,621,944 or $1.67 a share for the September quarter and $12,708,000 or $3.72 a share for the fourth quarter of 1943.

Ingot Production Rate Falls.

E. G. Grace, president, said the increase in the year's profits was attributable mainly to lower taxes and the rise in fourth quarter profit resulted from the usual year-end clean-up of contracts in the shipbuilding department.

Grace disclosed that man power shortages and severe weather with consequent transportation difficulties had cut the company's current steel ingot production rate to 95 per cent of rated capacity, lowest in several years. He said transportation handicaps were reducing the inflow of coal and scrap metal and slowing shipments of finished products.

Coal Situation Critical.

He described the coal situation as "critical." Bethlehem's supplies on hand were down to a two or three week supply from the normal six weeks' supply and Grace predicted further difficulty as a result of the long continued bituminous coal production loss from man power shortages.

The company's backlog of unfilled business amounted to 1 billion, 240 million dollars on Dec. 31, compared with 2 billion 100 million a year earlier. The shrinkage reflected completion of shipbuilding contracts. The company's steel orders have shown no diminution, Grace said.

TREATY PERILS COTTON TRADE, SAY OPPONENTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25 (AP).—California opponents of a Mexican-United States war treaty said today they would show that the proposed allotment of 1 1/2 million acre feet of water from the Colorado river eventually would result in the United States cutting into the Mexican cotton market.

Those preparing to make this stand before senate foreign relations committee hearings said the groundwork for such an argument was laid to Sen. Johnson (R., Cal.) ranking minority member of the committee.

Johnson brought out true questioning of treaty supporters that the cotton brokerage firm of Assistant Secretary of State Will Clayton is financing Mexican cotton farmers who would benefit by additional allotments of Colorado river waters under the treaty.

COMPETE TO BUY LIMITED MEAT ANIMAL SUPPLY

Chicago and eastern packers competed for volume at the stock yards again yesterday when shipments of meat animals continued abnormally small for late January. In the Chicago area the pork shortage was termed the most severe of the war.

This emphasized the hog shortage and increased competition for supplies of pork by eastern distributors. All buyers had many more orders than they could fill. Prices of virtually all hogs held at the price ceiling. Only some underweights, pigs, inferior grades, and boars were not sold at the limit.

Prices of most steers held steady, but butcher stock advanced. Lambs and sheep were firm.

Field Holders Vote Feb. 26 on Stock Plan

Stockholders of Marshall Field & Co. were notified yesterday by Hughston M. McElin, president, of a special meeting on Feb. 26 to vote on a proposed preferred stock refinancing, involving a substantial reduction in dividend rates.

The plan involves the replacing of all outstanding $100 par 6 per cent preferred shares with an issue of new preferred shares carrying an expected 4 1/2 per cent rate. Glor, Forgan & Co. and Lee Higginson corporation will head the underwriting group which will offer publicly all new preferred shares not issued in exchange to holders of the 6 per cent shares.

Offers Cash Adjustment.

The proposal provides for the exchange of each share of the company's preferred shares for one share of new preferred, plus a cash payment equal to the difference between the redemption price of the 6 per cent shares and the sale price to the public of the new shares with cash adjustment for dividends accrued to the date of exchange.

McElin said also the proposed authorized issue will total 300,000 shares, there is no intention of issuing at present more than the 150,000 shares necessary to replace the outstanding 150,000 6 per cent preferred shares. He said approval of the plan at the special meeting would permit the exchange offer and public sale to be made in March.

Seeks Better Position.

In December the company completed a refunding operation, permitting a rescheduling of its debt maturities and sinking fund requirements, reducing the fixed annual retirements from $1,400,000 to $900,000. Thru the refunding and refinancing operations the company will be placed in a more favorable position for carrying out its post-war plans, McElin said.

The stockholders also will be asked to approve an amendment to the articles of incorporation which will restate the objects and purposes for which the company is organized. McElin said this is unrelated to the recapitalization plan.

OPA Obtains Judgments in 10 Price Suits

The office of price administration yesterday obtained 10 consent judgments and several injunctions in federal district court against wholesalers and retailers charged with selling merchandise at prices above OPA ceilings. Nearly 100 more cases are being prepared, Marion W. Isbell, area director, said.

Largest judgment was $5,753, entered by Judge Igou against Richard Pick & Heller company, 223 W. Lake st., on admitted overpricing of upholstery and drapery materials. Judge Shaw entered a judgment for $3,457 against the Midwest Mills, 1735 Arcade pl., and Judge Isbell entered a $4,862 judgment against Adler, Inc., Merchandise Mart, in similar suits.

Enjoins Restaurant Operator.

Judge Sullivan allowed a judgment of $3,500 against the Zuk Furniture and Manufacturing company, 828 N. Wells st., on overpricing of novelty furniture, and an injunction without damages against Mrs. Fern D. Foss, a restaurant operator in Harvey, accused of increasing prices illegally.

In cases brought on three meat distributors, Judge Sullivan entered a judgment for $341 against Rudolph Zeman, 2502 East av., Berwyn; Judge Barnes one for $488 against Jerry Becka, 1638 S. 48th st., Cicero, and Judge Campbell one for $474 against Mark M. Zuro, 6556 S. Wolcott av.

Other Industries Affected.

Isbell said two judgments in other fields also were obtained, one from Judge Igou for $2,275 against the K. & C. Blouse company, clothing manufacturers, 302 S. Market st., and one from Judge Barnes for $3,478 against the Central States Manufacturing and Sales corporation, 1838 W. 33d st., makers of plumbing supplies and equipment. Both suits alleged overpricing sales.

Lee Rubber Negotiates for Midwest Tire Plant

New York, Jan. 25 (AP).—Lee Rubber and Tire corporation is negotiating for a Defense Plant corporation factory in the midwest which eventually will produce 1,000 truck tires daily under the government's expanded truck tire program. A. A. Garthwaite, president, told the annual meeting today. He also said the company is making additions to its Conshohocken, Pa., plant to double pre-war output.

Hiring Rules Eased to Get Transit Labor

Order City Control Plan Chained.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.
Tentative moves toward better transportation for passengers of the Chicago Surface Lines were made yesterday by the war man power commission, the city council and attorneys planning unification of the surface lines, and the Chicago Rapid Transit company in behalf of the federal district court.

1. They were: WMC Area Director Lester Brown announced that permission had been granted the street car system to hire 150 trainmen in the week beginning next Monday without clearing these workers with the United States employment service.

2. The council committee on local transportation, after listening to numerous complaints against street car service, approved early preparation of an outline of a surface-elevated unification plan under municipal ownership, and filing of the plan with the court. Philip Harrington, city subway commissioner, said the matter would be taken up next Tuesday at a conference in his office.

3. Counsel for the surface lines trustees will present to the court today, it was learned, a report on their activities, including the ordering of 570 new pieces of rolling stock, some of which may be delivered in a few months.

The V.C.C. announcement said that the surface lines was the only transit company which had asked higher priority in hiring labor, to hiring permission was contingent on the holding of a conference between the commission and surface lines representatives at which all phases of the company's labor problem will be discussed.

Move Tended Helpful.

E. J. McElrath, acting general manager of the lines, who told the Illinois commerce commission on Tuesday that the system needs 1,000 more trainmen, said that the simplified hiring plan would be helpful. Just how helpful is uncertain, because the USES normally returns about 75 per cent of the men referred to it to the lines, the others going by free will or persuasion into war plants.

At the council committee meeting it was generally agreed that lack of man power was responsible for many street car troubles. However, complaints were made of poor traffic engineering. The committee asked that such complaints be offered in writing to Maj. R. F. Keller Jr., city engineer, for transmission to the Illinois commerce commission, which will forward them to the WMC.

Ald. Merrymann (45th) said the street car labor shortage could not be relieved without hiring women conductors.

Lines, Union Oppose Women.

Company officials and the surface line unions have opposed employing women. They have made it known that union seniority would not be disturbed and that if women are hired they will have to work on the least desirable routes and possible split.
